Another Explosion In Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- A military warehouse used for storing oxygen tanks blew up this evening, casting a pall of smoke over Saigon.

Most of Saigon's fire brigade was called out to stem the flames because of fears the fire might engulf several other oxygen sheds.

Authorities declined to say whether they thought sabotage was involved.

There were no reports of serious casualties. Only one American adviser worked in the compound and he was not hurt.

Tens of thousands of spectators on foot and on bicycles jammed streets leading to the compound, blocking movement of emergency vehicles.

All of Saigon is jumpy with expectation of new Viet Cong terror bombings, particularly in view of this week's air raids on Communist North Viet Nam.

Earlier today, planes dumped tons of leaflets over the city, giving details of the air raids and explaining to the people why they were carried out.

Along with the jitters over possible return strikes from North Viet Nam, a twin-engine airplane that failed to file a flight plan put the newly installed U. S. Hawk antiaircraft missile battery to a test at Da-Nang air base north of here Friday. The plane proved to be friendly, but not before causing a combat alert.

The Hawk battery's radar tracked the plane and jet interceptors scrambled and escorted it toward the base.

The incident underscored that the missiles, coupled with a radar system, were ready for a possible air strike from Communist North Viet Nam.

President Johnson ordered them to Da Nang from Okinawa this week after the Communist attack at Pleiku that killed eight Americans.

Supersonic U. S. Air Force F102 jet fighters are also on guard at the base, from which the United States launched two of its three retaliatory air strikes this week against military installations in North Viet Nam.

More than 1,800 U.S. servicemen are stationed at Da Nang, which is considered a prime target for Viet Cong Mortar crews.

Vietnamese planes blasted Friday a band of Red guerrillas dug in at the base's perimeter. Five Communists were killed and ten others captured.

North Viet Nam claimed today that the Viet Cong killed or wounded more than 300 Americans and 1,700 South Vietnamese government forces in four days ending Wednesday.

Dr. David Morris

The meeting is especially designed for the forming of the district Cattlemens Association, and an invitation is extended to all cattlemen in the district.

Situation Is Still Serious

WASHINGTON (AP) — Longshoremen headed back to work today at most major East and Gulf Coast ports while efforts to settle local disputes at South Atlantic and Western Gulf ports were in recess for the weekend.

Most locals accepted an order by Thomas W. (Teddy) Gleason, president of the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association, to end the 33-day strike in ports where local accords have been reached.

These agreements cover more than 80 per cent of the 75,000-80,000 dock workers at East and Gulf ports, including such major trade centers as New York, New Orleans, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Two Baltimore locals split on whether to return to work but they seemed to be the only holdouts against Gleason's order.

Gleason issued the directive as ILA leaders at Southern Atlantic and Western Gulf ports rejected recommendations of a three-man presidential panel for ending the dispute in their areas. Shippers approved the proposals.

The principal union objection was against a proposal that the men return to work while the conflict was being resolved.

President Johnson, after meeting with both sides and three federal mediators, tossed the problem back to Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz Friday. After further meetings, Wirtz announced the talks will be resumed in Galveston, Tex., Monday and in Miami Tuesday.

"It's perfectly obvious there's nothing more that can be done here," Wirtz said. He added that although Gleason's order had greatly relieved the emergency caused by the strike, the situation in the South Atlantic and West Gulf areas was "extremely serious."

Wirtz, Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor and Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., comprised the panel named by Johnson Wednesday to seek a solution to the dock impasse by noon Friday.

Although the mediators failed to end the strike at all ports, sources said the ILA's agreement to return to work at the major ports accomplished Johnson's major objective.

Johnson called the board's recommendations "wise, sound and prudent." He said they had his full backing and added that "to the extent that this procedure has resulted in reopening ports, it is a job well and superbly done."

Discuss Plans and Cost of A New Charleston High School

CHARLESTON — At the public meeting at the Charleston High School Thursday, February 11, the cost of the new high school was discussed by W. R. Pierce Jr. the assistant superintendent. He also explained how Dr. John Gilliland, director of the School Planning Laboratory, University of Tennessee would save the taxpayers money by planning a school for our needs. Eight men on Dr. Gillilands' staff will come to Charleston February 18 and 19 to talk with the teachers and the administrators to work up plans for the new building. All of these men hold a Doctors degree and are well qualified in their specific areas.

Mr. Pierce next gave the figures for next years budget which are as follows. There will be an income of $1,116,950.00 in 1965-55, 50 per cent of this will come from the state. Expenditures will be $1,206,665.00, this means we will need $89,715.00 more dollars which will eat into the $90,000.00 surplus we now have from re-organization.

The anticipated balance for July 1, 1965 is $347,956.00 and the balance for July 1, 1966 is $258,241.00. This will give a surplus of $28,241.00.

If Bertrand, Texas Bend, and Thompson Bend join the R-2 district then we will have in 1966-67, $92,241.00; this includes the $28,241.00 surplus we will have. This is why we can go two years with a $3.19 tax rate.

Mr. Pierce also told the group that in 1965 if reorganization takes place the tax rate will be $3.19 per $100.00; if reorganization doesn't take place the tax rate will remain $3.19 and if the reorganization and boundary changes are made the tax rate will still be $3.19. But in the next two years the tax rate will change. In 1966-67 if reorganization takes place the tax rate will be $3.19; if reorganization doesn't take place the tax rate will be $3.50 and if reorganization and boundary changes are made the tax rate will be $3.70. In 1967-68 it will be $3.50 if we reorganize, $3.70 if we don't reorganize and $3.90 if we reorganize and boundary changes are made.

Mr. Pierce said that this is the worst possible picture and the tax rate will be lower rather than higher than the tax figures he gave.

The $1,400,000.00 bond issue will be sold on the open market at an anticipated interest rate of 3.25 cents. Mr. Pierce stated that if we could hold off selling the bonds until October or November then the payments wouldn't be due until the following October or November. This would mean we could take the tax money in January and invest $90,000.00 for six months. Over a 20 year period we would draw $75,000.00 interest. This would get our interest rate down to 2.70 cents.

SANTA MARIA, Calif. AP -- Robert B. Alexander, 23, wanted an airplane so much that he saved for it by selling his car and riding a bike.

Alexander died in the crash.

Harold Reuber

Is Teaching As He Studies At College

Drury College, in co-operation with the Springfield school system, began its student-teacher program, Monday, Feb. 1. Under this program, senior education students spend a minimum of three hours a day in a public school classroom observing the regular teacher and then teaching under supervision. This apprenticeship period, which lasts for one semester, is designed to give the student teacher the training necessary for handling his own classes after graduation.

Participating in the program this semester is Harold Reuber, son of Mrs. Harold Reuber, 534 N. Ranney. Mr. Reuber is student-teaching at Jarrett junior high school in the English department.

While at Drury, Mr. Reuber has also been active in the Student Senate, the college choir, and the bowling team. He has been on the school newspaper staff and is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon, social fraternity.

Two persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Friday. Glen Helms, Charleston, and Bobby Finley, Charleston, in car accident.

Teen-agers of Area Injured In Accidents

Two of the nine traffic accidents reported by Troop E, State Highway Patrol, for its territory Friday, took place in this vicinity and involved Sikeston, Charleston and Morehouse teen-agers, four of whom received injuries. There were no fatalities and eight were injured in the area.

At 6:30 p.m. Friday, the Patrol reports, two miles east of East Prairie on Highway 105 at the junction with Highway 102, Carl Gene Wesbern, 16, Route 3, Sikeston, lost control of the car on a curve. It went off the road and turned over several times. Taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises were the driver and three passengers, Dennis Lee Morgan, 17, Sikeston; Bobbie Joe Finley, 18, Charleston and Glen Allen Helms, 18, of Charleston.

At 12:05 a.m. Friday, the Patrol reports, a mile east of Charleston on Highway 62, Richard Morse, 18, of Morehouse, lost control of his car. It spun around and hit a road sign. No injuries.

William M. Lingle

Sikeston Boy On Dean's List At Carbondale

CARBONDALE, Ill.,-- A total of 1,245 students at Southern Illinois University's Carbondale campus have been named to Deans' Lists for high academic achievement during the fall quarter.

Deans' Lists include students who compiled grade averages of 4.25 or better while taking at least 12 hours of class work during the quarter. A 5.0 average is the equivalent of straight "A".

The lists represent nine per cent of the total Carbondale campus enrollment during the term, and include 231 students with straight "A" grades for the quarter.

JOPLIN, Mo. AP -- Residents of the Jasper County Junior College district will vote May 7 on a $2.5 million bond proposal for the beginning of a new campus.

Chemical Co. Is Erecting A Warehouse

A new distribution center and warehouse is now under construction by the California Chemical Company's Ortho Division, for the M and M Grain Company, located in Miner. The building is to be completed in the near future.

The new sales - storage outlet will have a working capacity of about 600 tons of fertilizers, and has a drive-in facility for trucks, spreader or wagon. The railroad tracks are nearby, so products can be moved by rail

A pole type building is being constructed that can withstand weight and stress loads, built mostly of wood and painted white. The fertilizer sold at this firm is made at Ft. Madison, Ia., one of three of the company's major plants.

A CORRECTION

Cargo Plane Falls; Two Are Killed

Flames quickly consumed the cabin and fuselage of the plane. Both occupants apparently were killed.

They were identified by the plane's owner as Geronimo Diaz Granados, the pilot, and Jose Ravel, the co-pilot.

Two minutes after takeoff from Miami International Airport on a flight to Latin America, the two-engine C46 plunged from 300 feet, clipped the edge of an auto body shop and plowed into the yard. Several cars were destroyed.

Sheriff's deputy Robert James said trouble obviously developed immediately after takeoff and the plane had swung completely around in an effort to return to the airport when it dived into the ground.

KANSAS CITY, Kan. AP -- This city has officially annexed 3,000 acres and about 4,700 persons to make the city boundaries conform to those of the Kansas City, Kan., school district.

Corn Crop Is Threatened by New Disease

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—The nation's corn crop this year appears fated to suffer some inroads from a newly-recognized plant disease, maize dwarf mosaic.

The affliction, at first thought to be familiar disease called corn stunt, turned up two years ago in bottomland fields of Arkansas and Ohio. It has since been recognized in five other states, including Missouri. Corn stunt disease, found in Kansas and other states, is being examined.

It has farmers worried and scientists puzzled, because its nature has not yet been fully proved, and defenses against it have yet to be developed.

Prof. H. H. Thornberry, plant pathologist at the University of Illinois, said today that the disease has been proved infectious. But much work remains to be done in establishing its full nature and in developing hybrids which can resist it.

The destructive potential of maize dwarf mosaic, Thornberry said, was demonstrated last year dramatically in Ohio where yield loss was estimated at five million bushels.

Thornberry and M. C. Shurtleff, a fellow plant pathologist at the University of Illinois, reported in the winter issue of the technical bulletin, Illinois Research, that some 2,000 acres were infected in southern Illinois last year.

"Although economic loss in Illinois was relatively light last year," they said, "we need only to look to Ohio to recognize the potential threat of the disease."

Besides Arkansas, Ohio and Illinois, the new strain has been found in Indiana, Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky. An infestation in Iowa is under investigation.

States where a corn stunt disease is being re-examined are Mississippi, Louisiana, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Kansas and Alabama.

The two diseases have similar symptoms, discolored streaks of yellow in plant leaves, and a stunted development, especially when the plants are infected early in the season.

Serum from infected plants does infect healthy plants, the Illinois scientists demonstrated. They also found that the apparent transmitted agents are aphids which winter in Johnson Grass.

Vote Count of Steel Workers At Standstill

PITTSBURGH AP -- The vote count in the United Steelworkers election drifted almost to a standstill today with both candidates for president still predicting victory.

The steel industry, meanwhile, said the inconclusive election has had no effect on orders.

I. W. Abel, the union's secretary - treasurer, shut his Chicago campaign headquarters Friday night, confident he had unseated incumbent David J. McDonald.

McDonald, steelworkers president for 12 years, said at a news conference in Pittsburgh that he would be returned to office but declined to predict his victory on the basis of figures he had tabulated.

Three Health Care Programs Being Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal program to provide health care for the elderly is picking its way through the congressional labyrinth again this year. Most observers expect it will win approval.

But the situation is somewhat tangled because three versions are actually under discussion: one that has President Johnson's backing; another espoused by many House Republicans, and a third that was prepared by the American Medical Association.

Here, in question and answer form, is a run-down and a comparison:

Q. Will Congress pass a health care for the aged bill this year?

A. All signs point to approval of something along the line of President Johnson's proposal for hospital benefits for those 65 or older.

Q. How far would it go?

A. It would be limited to some hospitalization, convalescent care in nursing home or at home and some diagnostic and similar outpatient services. Ordinary doctor bills and medicines would not be covered.

Q. Isn't there other legislation pending in Congress that would provide broader health benefits?

A. Yes. Two bills that have been much discussed lately call for covering many more kinds of health costs. These are a bill introduced by Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., in behalf of a group of Republicans and another measure drafted on suggestion of the American Medical Association.

Q. Why isn't everybody for these, if they would do more for the old folks?

A. Several factors are involved, mainly coverage and cost. The Administration bill would provide its limited benefits to all those 65 and over as a matter of right, without questioning them on income or property, and without cost to the beneficiary after he has retired.

Byrnes' bill would offer broader benefits to all the aged, but those who could pay would be charged a premium, which he estimates would average $6 a person a month.

The AMA bill contemplates covering the aged by private health insurance, with help to lower-income persons in paying the premiums. The states would set the financial standards at which retired persons would qualify for help.

Q. So the question is whether the aged as a group would prefer to have limited help for all at no cost to them, or to have the possibility of bigger benefits, but with an income factor in one way or another?

A. That's one question. Another is the impact of the various plans on public funds.

The Administration plan is designed to be self-financing, with an additional pay roll tax on those still working and on their employers providing nearly all the cost. There would be a limited contribution from the general treasury for a while, to pay the way for persons already 65 and not covered by Social Security.

Byrnes' plan would look to the general federal treasury for about two-thirds of the cost, with the remainder coming from premiums. The AMA plan would use both state and general federal funds.

Q. How much would the various plans cost?

A. Plenty, and beyond that you get into arguments. Backers of each tend to say that the costs of the others have been underestimed. Social Security actuaries estimate the Administration plan would have a first-year cost of about $1.7 billion, all of which would be raised from the new pay roll tax on employers and employes, plus about $50 million net from the general treasury. The $50 million would be the difference between the amount the federal government would put up for the benefits to the aged not covered by Social Security, and the savings that would come from reduced welfare expenditures for some of these same people.

Byrnes has estimated the cost of his plan, above what would be contributed in premiums, at $2 billion to $2.4 billion, all out of the federal treasury, assuming all those eligible signed up, which he says is unlikely.

There is no way to figure accurately in advance the cost of the AMA plan, because so much would depend on the standards established by the states. Its backers say it would cost less than the Administration plan.

Q. So it's all settled that the Administration bill is the one that is going to pass?

A. By no means. Backers of the others are fighting hard to have theirs substituted in whole or in part. Moreover, the bill that comes out of the Ways and Means Committee will not be exactly the Administration bill as introduced, although the main outlines likely will be the same.

That is why no very meaningful comparisons of benefits and costs with the rival measures can now be made. But, given the heavy Democratic majorities in the committees and in the two chambers of Congress, it now seems probable that a bill close enough to the original to please Johnson will be enacted.

And in "The Philanderer," he cracked:

"The fickleness of the women I love is only equalled by the infernal constancy of the women who love me."

And:

"Though women are angels, yet wedlock's the devil."

Jerome K. Jerome opined that "love is like the measles; we all have to go through with it."

Thus the dim views of savants who perhaps should be forgotten. I entertain no hope that their blistering comments will interfere with the old boy-meets-girl routine, on St. Valentine's Day or any other time. Perhaps it is here to stay.

A DAY FOR 'AFFAIRS OF THE HEART'

Sunday is St. Valentine's Day. There will be new, young faces among the ranks of this year's celebrants, but the spirit of the day will conform to tradition-- a throwback to the Elizabethan era when gentleman pursued their ladies with romantic couplets each February 14, the Feast of Juno, goddess of marriage. Today the couplets go by mail, some would gray the hair of true romantics and, often, the pursuer of old is now the pursued. But these changes are minor. There will still be gay dances, and gifts will be exchanged as tokens of affection, for even in our automated society, St. Vanentine's Day commemorates "Affairs of the heart."

In recent years, in fact, this significance has deepened. St. Valentine's Day has become the mid-point of the annual Heart Fund drive, also dedicated to "affairs of the heart." This added meaning, we think, is most appropriate, for what could be more apt on this day for hearts than some special recognition of the organization working for the hearts of all of us? On a day symbolized by giving gifts from the heart, what could be more meaningful than an extra gift to the Heart Fund to help protect the hearts of all we love?

COMMON MARKET AND FARM PRICES

Under a time table laid down by France last December, Monday (Feb. 15) would be the deadline for a European Common Market agreement on unified prices for meat and dairy products.

BEHIND THE FACADE of the European Common Market, the inflexible Charles de Gaulle is quietly allowing himself to flex. That would appear to be the real meaning of an agreement between the Common Market and the United States to put off trade bargaining on most farm products until Sept. 15. Originally this bargaining was to have been part of the tariff talks beginning in Geneva on April 1.

France on Dec. 17 -- only 24 hours after the Common Market had met a French ultimatum on grain prices by giving De Gaulle sweeping concessions -- announced a new schedule for agreement on other farm products. For meat and dairy products the agreement deadline was mid - February; for fruit and vegetables, the end of February; for sugar, June 1.

It now appears that these deadlines will not all be met, and that De Gaulle will curb his impatience, if any. This would be in contrast to his threat to pull out of the Common Market if his grain ultimatum had not been met.

WEST GERMAN CHANCELLOR Ludwig Erhard had fought De Gaulle for 12 months on grains, trying to protect the high prices received by his less productive farmers. Subsequently, at his Feb. 4 press conference, De Gaulle proved that he was a generous victor. That was the logic behind the new French appeal for German reunification -- a gift to Erhard in the election year of 1965.

De Gaulle after so signal a victory is not likely to repeat his threat to pull out of the Market. Indeed, the reference at the press conference was to his old idea of building a Europe that exists "from the Atlantic to the Urals." The American correspondent Claire Sterling probably did not overstate the case when she wrote from Brussels, where the grain agreement was reached: "By goading the Six into breaking the long deadlock on farm prices, he (De Gaulle) has in fact pushed them so irreversibly toward complete economic integration that none of them -- France least of all -- could conceivably back out of the Common Market any more."

Even earlier, in a report at the October meeting of the European Parliament, Andre Ross of France had observed: "The withdrawal o one country would not solve the agricultura price - fixing problem. On the contrary, the hope of finding additional farm markets would vanish. Industry would be hard hit by the probable tariff reprisals."

THE GRAIN AGREEMENT means that negotiating on that commodity will begin in Geneva shortly. Eventually a slowing down of U. S. wheat exports may be expected, but other farm products will probably go to the six-nation trade group in larger volume. Greater shipments of soybeans and soybean products, feed grains, corn, grain sorghum, barley, and oats are expected.

Europe's growing and increasingly prosperous population is eating more meat as living standards rise. The Community is a net importer of cattle for slaughter. Even if common prices encourage intra - community production of meat, a better market for American feed grains and soybeans would be in order. But the net effect on American agriculture of the Kennedy round of tariff talks remains to be seen -- and has just been further postponed.

FRIENDSHIP DAY

The world will be watching how the Soviet Union and Communist China observe the 15th anniversary of the signing of their economic and military treaty on Saturday (Feb. 13).

ANGRY FRIENDSHIP, Edmund Burke declared almost two hundred years ago, is sometimes as bad as calm enmity. At this late date the Chinese and Russian Communists are proving the great conservation a prophet as well as a statesman. If they follow the pattern of recent years, the 15th anniversary of their friendship treaty will be marked mostly by recriminations.

Last year, for example, the Soviet Union observed the anniversary -- Feb. 13 -- by blaming Peking for the "undesirable turn" in relations between the Communist neighbors. Izvestia listed Soviet economic aid since the treaty was signed and went on: "It was not the Soviet people's fault that during recent times the economic cooperation of China with our country was reduced."

A year earlier, Chang Chih-hsiang, secretary of the Chinese-Soviet Friendship Association, had declared that the "great friendship and unity between the Chinese and Soviet people are indestructible." At the same time he attacked the revisionism of President Tito of Yugoslavia. When the Communist Chinese bother to be subtle, they attack the Russian Communists through their friendship with the Yugoslavs.

THE CHINESE COMMUNISTS contend: 1) that the struggle between socialism (communism) and capitalism has not been changed by the advent of nuclear weapons, 2) that genuine peace cannot be assured while imperialism survives, and 3) that socialism's victory cannot be attained without war.

The 20th Soviet Party in 1956 laid out the policy of "peaceful coexistence" -- or in the words of Nikita Khrushchev, "the repudiation of war as a means of solving controversial issues."

The Soviet Union since 1959 has steadily reduced economic and military aid to Red China. Thousands of Russian technical advisors and specialists were abruptly recalled in the summer of 1960. Earlier the Russians had cut off nuclear assistance.

THE NEW BREED in the Kremlin indicated at the recent meeting of the Supreme Soviet no change from the old Khrushchev positions. High priority was given to consumer goods and living standards, increased freedom was promised in industrial management, and extension or probing feelers toward the West was resumed.

More recently a quiet flirtation with President De Gaulle has become apparent -- though it must be admitted that France seems to be doing the wooing. China also has been making eyes at De Gaulle. And Pravda on Jan. 31 said the Soviet Union looks with favor on President Johnson's invitation for Russian leaders to visit the United States. The announcement was in a sense a double slur on the Chinese Reds, for it came only hours after a Kremlin announcement that Premier Alexei N. Kosygin would lead a Soviet delegation to North Viet Nam. Hanoi is generally considered Red China's own fief.

To revise the Broadwayese, with friends like the Russians, the Chinese Reds don't need any enemies. And vice versa.

This is St. Valentine's Day, which should be a proper occasion for the flagellation of that ugly and evil old man, George Bernard Shaw, who ran a dead heat with Oscar Wilde in saying unnice things about love, romance and the sweetpatootie routine.

Even if his own life gave the lie to many of his utterances, GBS righly earned the reputation of being an old curmudgeon concerning the sweetest story ever told. Valentine should be the day to nail his hide to the barn door.

Some Cynic, perhaps Shaw, remarked that "courtship is the process of a woman pursuing a man until she catches him."

He also growled:

"It is a woman's business to get married as soon as possible, and a man's to keep unmarried as long as he can."

Did you ever? That old man must have been weaned on a pickle.

In the play, "Man and Superman," he had a character say:

"There Must Be a Paved Road Around Here Somewhere!"

NEW YORK CITY'S GOALS FOR PUBLIC WELFARE

The philosophy of New York' huge Department of Welfare has become that of the federal government, thanks to the city's commissioner of welfare, James R. Dumpson.

Dumpson states in the Catholic Digest that "the goals of public welfare should be: 1. prevention of destitution; and 2. rehabilitation of those who are dependent. In other words, don't place total emphasis on eligibility--any one in need is eligible. Instead, render the services that keep people from becoming destitute."

Overseeing the spending of one-third of 1 billion each year, Dumpson has a ready answer for his critics. "Isn't it a crime not to spend a dollar if you can save a human life? After all, the best case for public welfare comes out of our Judeo-Christian heritage. The motive behind public welfare is that I am my brother's keeper."

WHITE HOUSE FIRST

79 years ago this June, the society pages of newspapers all over the U. S. carried accounts of a marriage ceremony unique in orange blossom history. It was the White House wedding of President Grover Cleveland to his former ward, Miss Frances Folsom, the first and only instance of a U. S. Chief of State taking his marriage vows while in office. The bridegroom president was 49 at the time of his marriage, and his bride, the daughter of Cleveland's former law partner, was almost thirty years his junior. The wedding took place on June 2, 1886.

If it is folly to kill the goose that laid the golden egg, then it is even greater folly to kill the goose before the golden egg is laid.

This is the apparent attitude taken by the nation's independent business proprietors in strongly opposing the repeal of Section 140, the "right to work" clause of the Taft-Hartley Act. On three separate nationwide polls made on this issue in the last few years, the businessmen have opposed it by average majorities of 80%.

This is mentioned in the monthly mailing released today to the economic departments of the nation's high schools, colleges and universities by the National Federation of Independent Business.

In discussing the matter, C. Wilson Harder, president of the Federation, said that the emotional tides evoked by the issue should be disregarded and instead every consideration given to the economic factor.

He said that the position of the independent businessmen is that if the economically underdeveloped states of the nation are forced to comply with labor terms imposed on the big industrial complex cities, there will result a system of economic colonialism in America.

The discussion takes the position that more than 50% of the people live in 25% of the land area of the nation, and that enterprise located in other parts of the country, in order to compete in this market, must compensate for increased transportation expenses. He also stated that what is required to furnish a high level of living for a worker in a state such as Wyoming is much less than that required by his counterpart in one of the crowded industrial complexes of the East. This concentration of industry in those areas, he also asserts, has created the urban problems for which the entire nation is now taxed in an attempt to solve them. Repeal of Section 14b would only intensify concentration and the resulting problems, he states.

MEDICARE BILL BENEFITS EXAGGERATED, SAYS MILLS

If the Medicare plan should be enacted under Social Security it may have the paradoxical effect of proving a disappointment to the very elderly persons it is supposed to help.

That is the opinion of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee who insists that the provisions of the proposed legislation have been exaggerated by its supporters to the point that they wrongfully picture the extent of the benefits.

"Contrary to the widespread assumption on the part of many elderly people," Chairman Mills has said, "the bill does not cover such items as doctors' visits to the home, visits to doctors' offices, surgical devices, drugs which many elderly people require, private nursing services or any nursing home services except when the patient has come out of a hospital and goes into a hospital-affiliated nursing home."

Chairman Mills added that his mail indicates that many elderly people mistakenly believe that Medicare will take care of all their hospital and medical requirements.

"This simply is not true," he said. "Unfortunately, 'Medicare under Social Security' has become an all-embracing slogan which in my opinion has not advanced the cause of those who need it."

Most folks think the same could be said of Unk in Vietnam.

I am against federal aid to education--This positively means federal control of education, as the Department of Health, Education and Welfare admitted in a secret document. The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON-- Administration officials have assured Senate leaders confidentially that President Johnson did his best to avoid an incident in North Viet Nam during Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's visit.

The President personally called off all surveillance flights over North Viet Nam. He also stopped a clandestine raid on the North Vietnamese coast by U. S. Navy boats disguised as fishing vessels.

He wanted to take no action that might affront the Kremlin leader at a time of continuing East-West thaw. Significantly, Kosygin also coupled his trip to North Viet Nam with an announcement that he hope to exchange visits with President Johnson.

But the Sunday sneak attack on the American airstrip at Pleiku, killing and wou al GIs, shattered the President's patience.

Still he tried to avoid trouble with Russia, Senate leaders were told, by sending Soviet expert Llewellyn Thompson to explain to Russian Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin why the retaliatory raids were necessary. Dobrynin was given assurances that every precaution would be taken to assure Kosygin's safety.

To make sure there was no slip-up, the President ordered attacking pilots not to bomb through the clouds. He wanted to be sure they saw and recognized their targets before striking.

This would eliminate any chance of bombing a target near Kosygin by mistake. The President also wanted to spare innocent civilians who might be killed by blind bombing.

In the past, Johnson has resisted the appeals of his military advisers for attacks upon North Viet Nam.

"You fellows think a bomb is the solution to every problem," he once told them.

He was supported by Vice President Hubert Humphrey, who argued that bombing North Viet Nam would be "obscene." The Vice President favored meeting ambush with ambush, sabotage with sabotage.

It took the attack on Pleiku to persuade them that retaliatory raids were necessary.

As for the future, President Johnson told Congressional leaders: "We are going to respond to Communist provocations, but we are desperately trying to keep from getting involved in another Korea."

--POWELL AND POLICE--

Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem Globetrotter, demanded and got an apology from Federal Aviation Authorities the other day for ticketing his illegally parked car.

He was driven to Washington National Airport by Odell Clark, an aide, who pulled up to the entrance at an angle that blocked two lanes of traffic.

When Clark at last emerged, one airport policeman was parking the car and another was writing out a ticket.

Clark informed the officer that the car belonged to Congressman Powell. This failed to impress the policeman, who kept scribbling away.

"Congressman Powell doesn't get tickets," said Clark.

"Well, he has just got his first ticket of the year," disagreed the officer.

A few more sharp words were spoken, and the policeman volunteered that he "would never vote for Powell."

A few days later, airport authorities received an angry letter from Congressman Powell demanding that the policeman come to his office and apologize.

Instead of sending the policeman, G. Ward Hobbs, director of the two Washington airports, showed up in the Congressman's office with the canceled ticket.

--GREGORY'S HUMOR--

Dick Gregory, the Negro comedian, has been in more jails than the Rev. Martin Luther King but has never lost his sense of humor. He can calm an angry crowd or put a nightclub crowd in stitches with equal ease.

At the beginning of President Johnson's "National Children's Dental Health Week," Mrs. Helen Blumberg of Philadelphia held a luncheon to promote better dental care for children. Gregory was the principal speaker.

He was presented with an electric GE toothbrush which he accepted with a quip: "Being around Drew Pearson on that Mississippi turkey deal has made me Washington conscious. I'm almost afraid to accept any gifts."

He also agreed to pose with a giant toothbrush as if scrubbing his gleaming molars.

"This is the kind of picture," he remarked, "That the NAACP doesn't approve of."

Referring to the nation's youth, he said: "My son told me the other day, 'Dad, I'm going to run away from home. Call me a taxi.'

"You don't walk into a kid's room these days. You have to knock. They've got rights."

Inside Labor

By VICTOR RIESEL

President Angered By Danger Of New Strike Crises

Washington, D. C.: -- Behind President Johnson's cold fury over the $2 billion waterfront stoppage has been the fear of a new fever -- strike fever.

Work stoppages are contagious and with war bulletins pouring in, the nation can ill afford an epidemic of strikes. Few realize that the season is just ripe for such a chain reaction amongst hundreds of thousands of workers in the nation's key industries.

On the 31st day of the longshoremen's paralysis, with 800 heavily laden ships frozen in or just outside U. S. ports from Maine to Mexico, White House insiders were briefed on looming new labor crises.

Within six weeks union contracts begin to expire in the strategic rubber and aerospace installations across the land.

These expirations run right on through the end of the year affecting such companies as Goodyear, Firestone, Goodrich, Boeing, Douglas, North American Aviation, Martin-Marietta and Ling - Temco-Vought.

Just how high the demands on these basic space, defense, industrial corporations will run won't be known until after the auto union aerospace council meets in San Diego Feb. 25 and 26.

Certainly since the longshoremen have already gotten hikes of 20 cents an hour and the auto workers won just about as much during long strikes last year, the aerospace workers will demand as much.

Their leader is the auto union's hard - bargaining Leonard Woodcock who also heads the UAW's General Motors division. And certainly the aerospace companies, whose biggest customer is the U. S. government, will resist.

In the midst of all this will come the snarled steel industry negotiations which will affect over a million workers.

Adding a strain to the already sleepless Labor Secretary Wirtz, who has been briefing the President personally and regularly, is a sleeper crisis.

Sometime in May the already distraught ship owners will begin bargaining with some really tough labor leaders -- those who lead the 100,000 men who actually go to sea.

Their contract expires on June 15. Let no one be surprised if there is another dockside tieup, this time hitting the West Coast, Alaska and Hawaii as well as the Maine to Mexico stretch.

With two billion dollars as the estimated cost of a month of longshore stoppage, there's no doubt that massive strikes in the other key fields would far more than triple such losses in the event of long walkouts in the next six months.

The President already has been angered by the fact that his labor friends would do this to him and to the country itself. Reportedly he hit the White House ceiling when he was informed that the dockers walkout had kept $67 million a day from being exported. Since $44 million a day is the import figure, the U. S. lost a balance of $23 million daily in the first month of the pier stoppage.

True, some of this will be made up, but the figure which irritated the President was the immediate loss of $690 million in the first month of the dockside strike. This is disastrously high at a moment when each dollar is vital to the gold reserve.

Furthermore, millions of dollars have been lost in taxes. In all there were some 23,000 fully loaded freight cars immobilized right in the harbors and as many more embargoed across the country. Each car holds an average of 40 tons.

With no place to load and unload and no freight cars heading for the ports, at least 45,000 railroad workers and truck drivers were laid off. In all, about 190,000 men went jobless in those first 31 days.

They lost millions of dollars in wages and companies' profits were equally cut. Thus the tax income level will be off for the year.

And most dangerous in this period is the fact that it will take six to eight weeks to clear up all stalled traffic. Small wonder the president and his advisers are deeply disturbed by the threat of strike fever.

The bride's parents were host and hostess at an all-day reception and dance held in the Knights of Columbus Hall here after the ceremony. Guests were registered by Miss Elma Trankler and Miss Sharon Pobst.

The bride, a 1962 graduate of Oran High School, was employed as a teller at the Bank of Chaffee until her marriage.

Members Needed For Psychology Class At SEMO

An organizational meeting was held Thursday night at Sikeston Senior High School to begin an under-graduate college course in General Psychology to be taught through Southeast Missouri State College.

Eleven people enrolled at this meeting, which is insufficient to continue the course--a minimum of 15 is needed. The class will be open for additional enrollees at the next meeting. However, this will be the last opportunity to enroll, and if by that time the minimum of 15 has not been reached, the course will be discontinued.

One may enroll to audit the course provided he already has credit for it and provided he pays the tuition fee.

This is a three-semester-hour course and will meet each Tuesday from 7--10 p.m. for 17 weeks.

Those interested in this course, but who have not enrolled should contact Dolan Rogers at GR 1-5440 before the next meeting.

Crowded? Put Walls to Work

Need more space? Just put the walls to work! Here's how:

Cover old walls with wood-grained hardboard panels, two feet wide, separated vertically by steel lockstrips which hold the panels securely. The strips serve also to support desks, dressing counters, cabinets, magazine and book racks, and many other objects.

Panels, lockstrips and wall accessories for a wall 12 feet long and eight feet high cost at retail approximately 70 dollars. Additional items needed are furring strips and nails.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: My fiance, Bob, and I are both 20. We have been going together for two years. Bob wants to be married next May. My problem is that I don't know if I should marry him.

Friday night we planned to go to the movies. The last complete show started at 10:05. We arrived at the box-office at 10:15 and found it closed.

Bob was so furious he pulled out of the parking lot like a maniac and careened down the street at a dangerously high rate of speed. He kept saying "I have to get this out of my system."

Finally he swerved off to a side-street and drove into an alley. He brought the car to a screeching halt and put his head in his hands and cried. I sat silent for about 10 minutes while he sobbed. Suddenly he changed the subject and was extremely pleasant as we rode back to my house.

I'm afraid Bob may take his erratic temper out on me after we are married. What do you think? —DESPERATE

Dear Desperate: A 20-year-old man who deals with frustration at an infantile level is the worst possible husband material. This boy needs psychiatric help, not a wife. And you need to go with others for two years at least, to see if the young man is ever going to grow up.

The letter below is from a woman who married such a man. Please read on:

Dear Ann Landers: Can you help me? My husband has a TNT temper. I try awfully hard not to rile him — even to the point where I have memorized a list of things I must not do, or subjects I must not bring up.

It is useless. One wrong word and the table or chair gets a kick or I am in for a terrible tongue lashing.

On the highway he is forever cursing the other drivers, trying to pass them if he feels they have passed him "for spite." He takes everything as a personal affront — a chance shove in a crowded area is always "on purpose." If it rains on a day he had planned to do some gardening he just sits and sulks for hours — won't even read.

Worst of all is his violent temper. He explodes over nothing and now I am the target. What can I do so his outbursts do not hurt so much? Thank you for any help you might give. —FLORADORA GIRL

Dear Girl: Your husband's inability to deal with frustration demonstrates that, emotionally, he is still in knee pants. He needs professional help. If he refuses to get it, I hope you will handle this childish behavior as you would a child's tantrum. Let him blow himself out and ignore him.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old girl who has just started to date. I need some answers to a few questions which have been bothering me.

One certain 17-year-old boy comes over almost every Friday evening to watch TV. He always gets tired and wants to lie down on the sofa or the floor. Then he pulls me down next to him. Before I know it he is getting very comfortable with his head in my lap.

I don't know if this is wrong or not. When I suggested that maybe he should not lie down he told me he needs to relax after a hard week in school and if I won't let him relax at my house he will find a girl who is not so formal.

Please tell me if I am being prudish. — UNCERTAIN

Dear Uncertain: Any 17-year-old kid who is so tired he can't sit up when he goes to visit his girl should be sent home. I have stated my rules for necking. "Both parties sitting up—four feet on the floor, and all hands on deck."

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A young woman, trying on a new bikini in her apartment, noticed that there was a window washer outside her picture window. As she stood there in her living room, he continued to wash the window. She moved up closer and paraded back and forth. Still unnoticing, he continued to wash the window. Finally she opened one of the side windows -- whereupon the man said to her, "What's the matter, lady -- haven't you ever seen a window washer before?"

Bulldogs Suffer 59-38 Set Back At Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF --Ron Dunning with 14 points in the first half and then the rest of the Mules the last half proved one thing last night. Their impressive 17-2 record is no fluke. They defeated Sikeston Bulldogs 59-38 with Dunning leading the Bluff attack with 17 big points.

The "B" Bulldogs pulled off a first of the season. Before going into this 42-41 loss to the Bulldogs, Poplar Bluff had waded through to come up with a 5-0 record. If the Bulldogs can win their last two conference games they will be assured of at least a tie for the league title.

The Sikeston varsity started action off the first frame with Gary Stallings putting in two quick free tosses. Poplar Bluff then went to the boards hard and edged out to their first lead of the game on a shot by Tinsley and the Mules continued to march to put the Bulldogs down 12-8 as the first period play subsided. Poplar Bluff's defense was extremely tough allowing Sikeston only two field goals for the frame and ten for the game.

The Mules held their lead until 4:19 was left before the half when George Tucker drilled a seven foot jumper to draw up the score to 17-16. Then again the Mules hung tough around the boards and managed to pull back out front to a three point advantage 23-20 before first half play ended. It looked as if Bluff was going to get in serious foul trouble with them committing ten fouls the first half and two of their starters had three each.

As is the case in lots of games it was decided who was going to be the winner in the third quarter. The Mules got their defense dug in tighter than ever and managed to hold Sikeston down to six points for the quarter while dumping 20 for themselves. This put the Bulldogs down by 43-26 at the end of the period.

In the "B" game Bluff led the Bulldogs through the first three periods before going down to defeat with John L. Mitchell hitting a free throw with :03 seconds left to play. Mitchell also paved the way in scoring with 17 big points. Raymond Carlock with ten was the only other Bulldog to reach double figures.

Players Take To Air Not To Miss Any Class Time

LAS VEGAS, N. M. AP -- "The boys won't miss any class time," Mexico Highlands basketball coach John Givens told the administration when he explained why the team should fly to its game against Southern Utah at Cedar City, Utah, last week.

The trip was planned to take four hours going and four hours returning.

Here's what happened:

Saturday -- The team left in two chartered six-passenger planes. One made it to Farmington, N. M., landed for one hour and was told to return because of bad weather. The other plane couldn't land at Farmington, flew to Albuquerque, returned later in the day to Las Vegas.

The game, scheduled for that night, was postponed until Monday.

Sunday -- the planes left again, flew to Farmington where they stopped to refuel. The Federal Aviation Agency warned the pilots not to continue so the team stayed the night, working out in the local high school gym.

Tuesday -- The planes were snowed in and couldn't leave the Cedar City airport.

Wednesday - The team left but couldn't fly east toward Las Vegas so the planes flew south, landing at Winslow, Ariz., where the players spent the night.

Thursday - Each plane left. One finally gave up and landed at Albuquerque, with the pilot and five players renting a car and driving the 130 miles to Las Vegas. The other plane, with Givens, four players and the pilot, got to an air strip 20 miles south of Las Vegas from where rancher W. O. Culbertson drove the team home.

Oh yes, Highlands beat Southern Utah 108 - 93 and the players, with only pocket change and without a change of clothes, had to wire home for lunch money.

Lilbourn Stops Arch-Rival 67-47

LILBOURN--It's look as if the Lilbourn Panthers are back to their normal defensive selves. They defeated the New Madrid Indians 67-47. It was New Madrid that took Lilbourn out of the New Madrid County Tournament just last week by a slim one point.

At the start of the season Lilbourn was exceptionally tough on defense but they hit a slump and before they pulled out of it their record had jumped to 14-6. In their last two ballgames it is apparent that they are back and from all reports they are back to stay. Now they are 16-6.

Thompson again paced the Panthers, this time with 21 points. Horn and Bodine followed with 14 and 10 respectively.

Glenn continues to be the offensive ace for New Madrid. He dumped in 15 last night. Shibley followed with 12.

Paced by Taylor with 18 points the Panthers swept the night's action by winning the "B" game 43-14. This win puts the young Panther's record to 17-1 for the season. Their lone defeat was dealt to them way back in the second game of the season when the Richland Rebels defeated them 43-40.

CHAFFEE -- The Kelly Hawks downed the Chaffee Red Devils by a slim 60-53. The winning move by Kelly was made in the second period when they outscored Chaffee 15-7.

Displaying even more the balanced attack that the Hawks have, four men hit in the double figures. Merrick led with 18, followed by Morrow with 12, Dodson with 11, and Thomas with 10.

Kelly swept the nights action by winning the "B" game 65-47 behind the shooting of Urhahn with 14 and Adams with 14. White was high for Chaffee with 14.

Scott Central Continues Winning Ways

BELL CITY -- Like famous comedian Jackie Gleason says, "And away we go." The Scott Central Braves rolled to another victory last night by dumping Bell City 71-55 with a blistering third period scoring assault. The score was tied 33-33 at the end of the first half but the Braves caught fire and outscored Bell City 25-7 in the third period to ice down the victory.

Richard Taylor was the ace pointmaker for Central with 26 sizzlers. Owens pumped in 17 to round out the double figure men.

Central also proved unbeatable in the "B" game winning in 65-45 paced by Miles with 14 points. Ellis and Watson with 8 points each were the high scorers for Bell City.

LOS ANGELES AP -- World record holder Peter Snell of New Zealand and Bill Crothers of Canada meet in the 1,000-yard run tonight in the feature event of the sixth annual Los Angeles Times Indoor meet.

A sell-out crowd of 13,735 was set to see an impressive collection of international track and field stars compete on the boards at the Sports Arena.

Domestic champions, plus such invited foreigners as Valery Brumel and Igor Ter-Ovanesyan of the USSR, Mary Rand of England, Iolanda Balas of Rumania, Witold Baran of Poland and John Davies of New Zealand are on the program.

LAWRENCE, Kan. AP -- Kansas defeated Oklahoma 66-56 Friday night in a dual track meet in which Oklahoma broke two fieldhouse records and tied another.

Oklahoma's mile relay team set a mark of 3:23.6, and Bill Calhoun posted a record of 49.4 seconds in the 440.

Mike Hewitt of Oklahoma tied the 60-yard high hurdles record of 7.4 seconds.

The Swiss artist Alberto Giacometti told an interviewer who asked him why he traveled so little: "To look at one and the same face every day of the year and never fail to find something new in it -- that is the greatest of adventures, and greater by far than any journey round the world."

Bloomfield Star Injured At Fisk

FISK You may beat them, but you won't beat them bad. Fisk is going down to defeat regularly this year, but no one is humiliating them, not even the Bloomfield Wildcats who only dumped them 59-45 last night. This is Bloomfield's twenty - fourth victory of the season opposed by one defeat.

One of Bloomfield's star starters, Dennis Gillespie, got injured in the second period as a result of getting knocked to the floor while going up for a rebound. He was taken to the Poplar Bluff Hospital and was reported to have been released. It's not definite just when he will be able to return to action, but there was an unofficial report that he may be out for some time.

Another Wildcat was out of the game due to an injury. Ron White, little playmaking guard for the Wildcats, suffered a knee injury in practice last week, but is expected to resume playing next week.

In spite of his advanced age, Konrad Adenauer, while he was Germany's chancellor, received numerous marriage proposals. According to his aides, the chancellor seemed uninterested and told his secretary, "Just put them in the nonaggression-pact file."

Dorothy Thompson could, at will, contact any president, king or prime minister on earth to ask a question and receive an answer. She did not abuse these privileges, but she had them. Pope Pius XII came somewhere near to consecrating Dorothy's greatness in her profession when he said to her, at the end of the war, "My daughter, I know you are a Protestant."

She said, "Why, Your Holiness? Because of my rudeness? " (She had been pounding on his desk and weeping because of the German orphans she had seen.)

"No," said the Pope, "because you so greatly overestimate the powers of the Roman Catholic Church. And for your tears I bless you, my child."

Marcy and Cantrell Move In Semi-Finals

ST. LOUIS -- It's Ken Cantrell and James Marcy moving into the semi-finals of the St. Louis District Wrestling meet. In last nights action Cantrell defeated Scott with a strong 8-0 verdict and Marcy edged out over tough Gordan 5-4.

Bill Vaught lost 2-6 to Scott, a brother to the Scott that wrestled Cantrell, and Sitzes dropped his match to Koetter 3-7.

Sikeston's semi-final matches got underway today at 2:00 with Marcy, who is 9-0 for the season, meeting Micka from St. Louis. Cantrell will wrestle Budda from Mehlville. The championship bouts will be held tonight.

Mr. Lincoln Goes to Disneyland--- to Stay

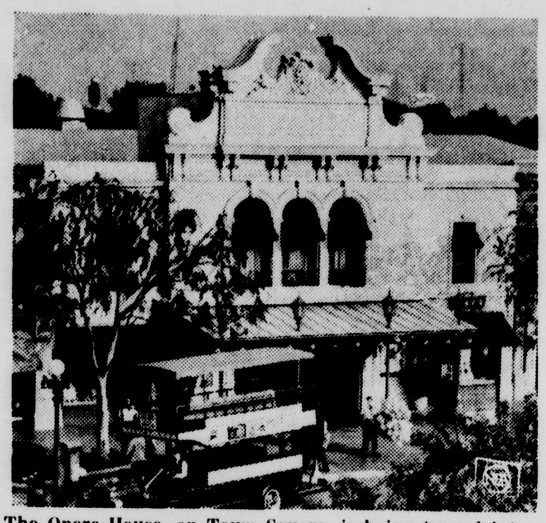

Individual star of the New York World's Fair's 1964 season was Abraham Lincoln. In "Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln," major feature of the Illinois Pavilion, Walt Disney's life-like electronic-mechanical figure was seen and heard by 2,000,000 people, and as many more are expected to view it when the 1965 season opens on April 21. Many enthusiastic viewers urged that a permanent home be found for the inspiring presentation. Disney did just that. In addition to its World's Fair showing, Lincoln will have a twin presentation and a permanent home in Disneyland. What is now the Opera House on Town Square is being remodeled as a 499-seat theater, to be ready in June. The Disneyland Lincoln will be even more sophisticated than the New York version.

Bootheel Beat . . .

—By MAX STURM—

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI NEWS SIDELIGHTS, FEATURES AND OBSERVATIONS.

SCHOOL REORGANIZATION PLANS and discussions are attracting a lot of attention in the lower Bootheel these days. One by one smaller districts, faced with declining enrollment due to shifts in population and smaller families, are finding it necessary to join larger districts so that their students will have adequate education, especially in high school.

Coming up next week will be an election in the Clarkton district in Dunklin County on a proposal to annex to the Gideon district. Gideon is a Triple A school, offering a fairly broad course of study, and is in position ot serve the additional students from Clarkton. The Malden Board of Education, however, has offered the Clarkton district patrons all of the services "offered by any other school district" if Clarkton would join their district. Thus the people of the Clarkton district are faced with deciding on a choice.

In Pemiscot County an election has been scheduled in the Wardell district for Feb. 23 on a proposal to annex to the Ross district. Also consideration is being given to a plan to combine Deering, Braggadocio and McCarty districts. Deering and Braggadocio both have high schools but the McCarty district, known as R-3, is an elementary school district formed a number of years ago by the consolidation of some nine small elementary districts, mostly one-room units.

Serious consideration is being given to the possibilities of combining the Hayti and Caruthersville districts. This will be the last year Bragg City will have a high school. This district has annexed to Kennett with Bragg City's high school students to attend the Kennett High School, starting next term.

Some years ago when the State Department of Education introduced its school reorganization program, small elementary districts in the county began joining adjacent high school districts, but when it was all over the county wound up with one more high school than it had at the start--the Charles G. Ross High School located between Hayti and Portageville. Now the trend is in the other direction--to combine the high schools. It will be a number of years yet before it is all settled.

THE MCCARTY ELEMENTARY SCHOOL (R-3), between Caruthersville and Cootonwood Point, is due a salute from everyone on the success of their recent carnival which brought in $3057.56 and which has been divided three ways for the polio, cancer and heart funds.

Supt. Floyd Hamlett said that the event was the eighth of its kind held annually by the school for charitable funds.

Included in the evening's entertainment were an auction, country store, grab bag, eat and drink stands, attendance prizes and a cake walk. Since the cake walk has been one of the most popular features of the carnival, Hamlett, some years ago, painted a pattern for the contest on a large piece of canvass. This saves having to draw the design on a floor each year and all he has to do is unroll the canvass and his cake walk concession is in business. He thinks his is the only such ready-to-use cake walk pattern in Missouri. Other schools and organizations have borrowed it. Can anyone out there say he doesn't have an exclusive on this?

I AM USUALLY WARY of taking part in national prize contests because of the odds stacked against me. A couple of months ago, however, I bought some records which I needed and in the process I was to qualify for one of about a million dollars worth of prizes, including sports cars, station wagons, color TVs, etc. "An electronic computer has already selected the winning number and yours may be included..." the broadside read. I received the records okay and they were as good as advertised, but so far I haven't been notified of winning a sports car or anything else in the prize award division of the promotion.

It appears that the number assigned to me was overlooked by the computer, or maybe it wasn't even in its memory bank. Anyway, I didn't win anything.

So it was refreshing the other day to read about this new prize award scheme advertised on one side of a milk carton distributed in the Bootheel by a national dairy firm.

This one is entitled "No-Losers Contest." It says, "We've fixed it so you practically can't lose. . .everyone (practically) wins first prize."

I especially like the rules of the contest which are not very binding. They read like this:

"Here's How to Win. On this carton we've printed a message about our superb dairy products. And just to be crazy, we've printed it backwards. Read our backward message--a mirror will help-- and you'll find two magic words. Write (do not print) these words--forwards--on a piece of paper or postcard along with your (or somebody's) name and address. Main your entry to ____. No purchase required. One first prize per entry."

Maybe that's the kind of contest I ought to enter. I'm (practically) sure of winning a first prize....

IT APPEARS THAT THE PROPOSAL for a new municipal swimming pool in Caruthersville has died with recent action by the city council to rescind an ordinance which would have presented the plan in the form of an $80,000 revenue bond issue before the voters in the April 6 city election.

After the ordinance was enacted it was discovered that it might be almost impossible to sell the revenue bonds. The council also voted 5-2 against presenting the plan to the voters in the form of a general obligation bond issue on the basis that the city still owes $15,000 on its airport improvement bonds and also faces a sizeable financial outlay on a sewerage disposal system in the near future.

Thus, it still boils down to the same old thing. All we need is the money.

SUPPORT FOR MOST KINDS LIVE STOCK ON MODERATE RUN

National Stock Yards, Ill., Feb. 13 — Live stock markets, with a few exceptions, received effective buyer support during the week, according to Producers Live Stock Marketing Association. Moderate receipts was a constructive factor in trading.

Salable cattle, calves, hogs and sheep of 50,718 head compared with arrivals of 48,946 a week ago and 60,326 a year ago.

Hogs reached a top of $18.35 cwt. Wednesday, the highest since early last September, but eased to a closing peak of $18.15. The best hogs this time last year stopped at $15.50. Select meat type porkers 190 to 230 lbs. finished 10 cents net higher for the period, while other butcher hogs were steady to 25 cents lower. Sows, too, were uneven and ended steady on the lighter weights and 50 cents higher on the heavier kinds. Sales Friday were downward from $16.25.

Slaughter steer cattle sold unevenly steady to 25 cents higher and heifers were steady to 50 cents up. Strength was coincident with a firmer tone in wholesale beef trading late in the week. Cows, by way of contrast, sold steady to weak, instances 50 cents lower. Bulls held unchanged.

Choice steers 900 to 1100 lbs. realized $23.25 to $23.50; scattered loads Good to mostly Choice 850 to 1200 lbs $22.75 to $23; load Choice 1300 lbs. carrying a moderate amount of mud $23; mixed Good and Choice 900 to 1175 lbs. $22.25 to $23; Good $19.50 to $22.25; Standard and low Good $17 to $20.

Mostly Choice heifers 850 to 950 lbs. brought $22 to $22.50; Good and low Choice 750 to 950 lbs. $18.50 to $22, including mixed Good and Choice at $21 to $21.75; Standard and low Good $16 to $18.50.

Veal calves were mostly steady at a top of $34, but sagged Friday to a peak of $32. Slaughter lambs finished steady after losing an early advance. Choice and Prime woolskins reached $25 at the best time, a new high since last summer, but the closing top was $24.75.

The live stock inventory report released Friday by USDA showed 107,152,000 cattle and calves on U.S. farms and ranches on Jan. 1, a record high, but only slightly greater than the 106,743,000 on hand a year earlier. The number of all hogs and pigs was 53,052,000, a decline of 9 pct. and sheep and lamb numbers totaled 26,668,000, down 5 pct. and the smallest inventory of record.

Cotton Market News

Purchases of cotton loan equities increased from a week earlier. Farmers received from $1.00 to $4.00 per bale above support levels. Demand was best for Strict Low Middling and higher grades with 1-1/32 inches and longer staple length. Buying on central markets eased slightly from the preceding week. Shipper demand lessened for most qualities. Most purchases were for prompt and nearby delivery. Inquiries from foreign spinners were less numerous and prices bid were mostly unattractive.

Rains and wet field conditions slowed outside farm work. Many farmers in early southern sections started pricing and booking, planting seed, fertilizers and chemicals.

Some friends had the same girl as baby-sitter for several years and she was always available when they wanted to go out. Even after she got married, she was glad to help out. But one evening she couldn't come, and the wife explained to her husband. "We can't go tonight. Barbara can't baby-sit."

"Can't baby-sit! Why she's been sitting for us for years," fumed the husband.

"I know. But you know she's married now."

"How do you like that!" said the outraged husband. "We teach her everything she knows, and now she goes into business for herself."

"FILE IT AND FIND IT"

There are few occupations that require knowledge about as many different subjects as farming. In the course of a day a farmer may have to make decisions that require him to be an entomologist, a livestock specialist, a marketing expert, etc.

These decisions must be made in view of the knowledge he has in his mind or the information at his finger tips. However, in many cases farmers don't use the information they have because they can't find it. This very thing can mean several dollars less profit at the end of the year.

What is the answer to this problem?

The answer is a good filing system.

Your University Extension Center has information on how to set up such a filing system. The "File It and Find It" system is based on University of Missouri and Michigan State University work.

Instructions are given on the material and equipment that are needed and a step by step procedure for setting up the system.

As my wife and I were having coffee at a friend's house, a neighbor's clothesline pulley squeaked. Our friend jumped up and ran to her window, but quickly came back and sat down again, looking relieved.

"Eleanor has her house up for sale," she explained to us. "When she gets a call that somebody's coming to look at it, she hangs out her red tablecloth and we all go over and help her straighten up the place. But she's just hanging out her regular wash now." ---R. T. Casey

WAYS TO WASH WALLS

Several ladies of our community are beginning to clean the inside walls of their home. Here are a few hints from the Cleanliness Bureau which might be of some help to you.

MOST PAPERS, FABRICS, AND PAINTS ARE SUDSABLE

Most wall coverings — paper, paint, or vinyl — are made to be washed. Other papers and some fabrics can be made washable by applying commercial coatings — either to wall covering after it is hung, or through a custom service at the time of purchase.

In addition to being safely washable with soap or detergent suds, water-resistant or plastic-treated wallpapers present other attractive features: they are color fast to light; they are often heavier, easier to hang, and more durable; and many come coordinated with fabrics for draperies, slipcovers, and other decorative purposes.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS

Wallpapers should be dusted weekly with a clean dry mop, a soft cloth wound over a broom, or a vacuum cleaner brush. It is best to start at the top, except that cobwebs should be removed with upward strokes to prevent greasy streaks.

If doubtful about the washability of a wall covering, first test its color and finish by suds-sponging an inconspicuous spot. If it looks the same — except cleaner — start washing from the bottom and work upwards. This prevents hard-to-remove streaks which develop when water trickles down over the unwashed area, causing concentrated damp soil. A cloth "bracelet" wrapped around the wrist, then fastened with a rubber band, will keep water from running along the arm when washing up high.

The approved washing method is to wipe one section at a time with thick soap or detergent suds, using a sponge or soft cloth. Then wipe each section with a clean damp cloth, overlapping sections as the work progresses. Change to clean suds and rinses as soon as the water begins to look dirty. For stubborn stains, wash once, let dry, and wash again; this is preferable to rubbing when wet.

To avoid excess water during washing, prepare "dry" suds in one of these three ways: 1) add soap or detergent to a pail of warm water and swish this with your hand until thick suds rise to the surface; 2) mix soap or detergent with a little water and whip this until the suds stand in thick peaks; or 3) spread some soap or detergent on a wet sponge, and squish it to quickly produce a small amount of dense suds.

WALLPAPERS — WATER-RESISTANT paper can be washed by wetting a cloth or sponge in suds and swabbing the entire surface with long, free strokes. It is safe to actually scrub some of these papers, so follow the manufacturer's instructions. Then rinse-wipe with a damp cloth.

PLASTIC-COATED or PLASTIC - IMPREGNATED papers, which are impervious to stains and grease, can be suds-scrubbed as often as needed.

WATER-SENSITIVE papers cannot be washed. Instead, rub a dough-like cleaner over the surface, from the top down. Then brush off the loose crumbs. Semi-stale, crustless bread can be used the same way if this type of paper is only slightly soiled.

FABRIC AND OTHER WALL COVERINGS — COATED FABRICS can be washed with suds, and are usually scrubbable with a soft brush. To remove normal smudges and stains, use a pail of warm soap or detergent suds, a pail of clean warm water, and two sponges or clothes — one set for sudsing, the other for rinsing. Always work with a minimum of water in order to avoid drips which may leave streaks.

VINYL — Most self-adhesive products are made of vinyl plastic which is stain-resistant and easy to wash without scrubbing. Just wipe the surface with warm suds and warm rinse water. Never use abrasives.

WASHABLE PAINT AND ENAMEL

If properly applied, all modern paints are washable but their resistance to scrubbing and abrasion varies. Gloss enamels withstand scrubbing best, followed by the semi-gloss type. Alkyd resign - based enamels are tougher than oil-based enamels. Water-thinned latex paints are washable but must first be completely "set," so allow them to dry at least 30 days before washing. Alkyd flat paints can be washed successfully once they have "cured," but will not take hard scrubbing. Varnished surfaces can be washed repeatedly.

Dust painted surfaces often with a wall mop or a soft cloth wound over a broom. To wash painted surfaces, wipe one small section at a time with thick soap or detergent suds on a sponge or cloth. Work from the baseboards upward, overlapping sections and avoid unnecessary rubbing which may soften paint. Rinse with a minimum of clean water, then dry with a soft cloth. Change to clean suds and rinses as soon as the water is soiled.

Extension Center News

Many farmers have been asking questions recently about a new corn disease called corn stunt.

I said the disease is new and I probably should have said it is new to us. Actually corn stunt was first found in this country 22 years ago but it did not get serious enough to be of economic importance in our area until 1963. The disease was found here again last year. In general these 42 counties are along the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers.

The symptoms of corn stunt will make the disease easy to find in most years when the disease is present. The joints of the corn stalk are extremely short giving the plant a bunched effect. Usually there is no ear on the stalk, if there is an ear present it will contain only a few grains.

Corn Stunt seems to be of no economic importance on any crop except corn although it will affect sudan, sorghum and the sorghum-sudan hybrids. The disease is spread by an insect-the corn leaf aphid. One of the things that seems to be of particular importance to us is the method of over wintering. Johnson Grass is the only known means of over wintering in this area at the present time. Since this is true it will cause us to put even more emphasis on controlling Johnson Grass.

Unfortunately there is no definite answer on control of corn stunt at the present time. However there are two things we will want to watch carefully. (1) If a build up of corn aphids starts, spraying may be necessary. (2) Put added emphasis on Johnson Grass control.

Most hybrid seed corn companies, as well as the University, are working on resistant varieties. They predict we will have resistant varieties available before the disease is a serious threat to corn growing.

One of our neighbors hires a shapely blonde to supervise her four small children when they're playing outdoors. But our five-year-old Bobby has to get along with supervision by us. My husband, who is somewhat nearsighted, has found a pair of binoculars quite efficient for locating him at long range. The other day, however, he was intently scanning the yard next door even though Bobby was sitting near him in the living room. So I ventured to ask what he was looking at. "A bird" be replied innocently.

"What kind of bird?" I persisted, and he promptly replied, "A yellow-headed baby sitter."

Of Interest To Homemakers

Next week, February 14-20, will be Home Economics Week. There are opportunities galore in the home economics profession.

WHAT IS A HOME ECONOMIST? The title "home economist" defines a college graduate professionally educated in home economics. She is a college graduate who is dedicated to improving homes and family life. She may do this through teaching, all ages from nursery school to adult education, or research, by testing the durability of fabrics or the nutritional value of food products. She may design the latest fashions or decorate a home. She may demonstrate the uses of household equipment or various ways to use specific food products. She may develop new products for you to use or pass this information along to you through television, radio, newspapers, or magazines.

WHAT ARE SOME JOB TITLES? Demonstrator, Fashion coordinator, designer, stylist, pattern maker, consultant, buyer, information specialist, editor, display artist, decorator, crafts director, kitchen planner, illustrator, personal shopper, and many more. There are over 1,000 job titles that make up the home economics profession and help to improve home and family life.

SUGGESTED EDUCATION: A bachelors degree from an accredited college or university offering a major in home economics, with specialization in one of the home economics subject-matter areas.

At the University of Missouri a student may choose child development and family life, food and nutrition, home management and family economics, interior design, or textiles and clothing.

In addition to these five major areas, a student may want to combine these into home economics education, extension, or journalism.

HOME ECONOMICS IS IMPORTANT. Almost every item in the home has or will have the knowledge of a home economist in its development, making it easier and faster to use, more attractive, easier to care for and longer wearing.

The easiest way to convince your children that they don't really need something is to get it for them.

SOIL FERTILITY WORKSHOP TO BE HELD IN COUNTY

A three-session Soil Fertility Workshop will be held in the county on February 16 and 22 and March 1 for the benefit of farmers, fertilizer and lime dealers, and other interested persons, Tom Brown, County Extension Director and Agricultural Agent announced this week.

FIRST SESSION -- FEBRUARY 16

1. Economics of Soil Treatment — John Yount, Balanced Farming Agent.
2. Functions of Plant Food Elements Including Lime, Nitrogen, Phosphate, Potash, and Trace Elements — John Garrett, Area Extension Soils Agent, University of Missouri Delta Center, Portageville, Mo.

SECOND SESSION — FEBRUARY 22

1. Taking Soil Tests — Tom Brown, County Extension Director and Agricultural Agent
2. Soil Test Interpretation, Fertilizer Placement, and New Type Fertilizers — John Garrett

THIRD SESSION — MARCH 1

1. Fertilization of Various Crops and Research Findings Pertaining to Soils — John Garrett

The first session will be a dinner meeting at the Hickory House Restaurant in Dexter on February 16 beginning at 6:30 p.m. The meal will consist of a fried chicken dinner at a cost of $1.50 per person. Persons who plan to participate should place their reservations at the University Extension Center by Monday, February 15 so that meal arrangements can be made, according to the County Agent.

All farmers, fertilizer and lime dealers, and other interested persons are invited to participate in this event.

75 FARMERS ATTEND SOILS AND CROPS CONFERENCE

In spite of icy roads and cold weather 75 farmers and other interested persons attended the County Soils and Crops Conference held in Bloomfield last Tuesday. Local farmers, Extension Agents, and a University Crops Specialist discussed soil improvement and crop production practices at this event, sponsored by the County Extension Service, Earl Weeks, County Soils and Crops Conference Chairman, was in charge of the day's program.

Sam McAnally, first speaker on the program told the group how the application of four tons of lime in 1963 increased his soybean yields 11 bushels per acre last year. Joe Hulshof told how the use of fertilizer and lime coupled with other good soils and crops practices had increased his crop yields. During the past three years yields have been increased from 80 to 100 bushels of corn, three-fourths to 1-3/4 bales of cotton, 35 to 45 bushels of wheat and 25 to 31 bushels of soybeans per acre.

Three speakers discussed the soybean cyst nematode problem. Lester Walker told the group that cyst nematode had cut his bean yields in half on an infested field. Herb Morgan, representative of the Plant Pest Control Office in Sikeston showed slides of infested fields and discussed quarrantine regulations as they effect farmers in the county. Joe Scott, Extension Field Crops Specialist from the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville discussed control measures including planting soybeans at normal planting dates, crop rotation, and the use of resistant varieties now being developed and which are expected to be released in 1968.

A highlight of the program was a panel discussion on Irrigation. Panel members included Alva Stutts, Jerry Bagby and Melvin Triplett with John Yount, Balanced Farming Agent as moderator. All panel members discussed irrigation costs and results obtained with the various types of irrigation used. Mr. Stutts practices surface irrigation by the use of flume ditches and siphon tubes. Mr. Bagby practices surface irrigation by the use of gated pipe. Mr. Triplett has had considerable experience with sprinkler irrigation.

Flernoy Jones, Area Extension Entomology Agent discussed the Soybean Insect Situation and the Crop Residue Problem. He urged the proper use of insecticides in accordance with University recommendations as a means of protecting themselves against serious residue problems and as a matter of personal safety.

John Garrett, Area Extension Soils Agent, outlined the results of a soil test survey conducted by the Extension as it applied to Stoddard County and the Delta Counties showing fertility levels of various soils. He also discussed recommended soil fertility practices for this area.

Joe Scott, Extension Crops Specialist discussed the new Corn Stunt Disease Problem, recommended crop varieties and chemical weed control with emphasis on new research findings and recommendations.

Tom Brown, County Extension Director and Agricultural Agent summarized the day's program, urged farmers to keep informed on new technology, and outlined steps being taken by the Extension Service to keep farmers and other people better informed.

Timely Tips

GLOVES

Practically everyone wears gloves from childhood on. Gloves are designed for all needs, all weather and all occasion.

The wise consumer meeds to consider function and design, cost and care when selecting.

Care plays a big role in appearance of gloves after they have been selected. General washing instructions are usually given on a card inserted inside each pair of gloves. Remember--your gloves will stay lovely if they are cared for properly.

Most general washing will instruct that gloves be washed on hand in luke warm water and mild soap completely dissolved.

Some additional suggestions would be;

1. After gloves have been washed and rinsed on the hands, they should be removed and water allowed to run through the fingers until water is clean.
2. Leather gloves should not be squeezed, simply blotted in a clean towel.
3. If air is blown into fingers before drying gloves, the fingers will retain their shape.
4. Gloves should be placed to dry on a towel away from heat.
5. Leather gloves should be finger pressed and kneaded on the hands before they are thoroughly dry. Otherwise, they will become hard and discolored. Kneading brings back original shape and texture. They should then continue to dry on towel away from heat.
6. Wool gloves should be washed in cold water rather than luke-warm with cold-water soap.

Storage of gloves is also important to the long life.

*Long term storage in plastic bags dries out leather. Natural oils in leathers may rub off on other gloves, if stored together. Both leather and fabric gloves should be kept individually wrapped in white tissue paper. *For long gloves, tissue paper stuffed in the portion above the wrist eliminates creasing.

TREE DELIVERY MARCH 2

The tree seedling farmers and others have ordered will be delivered to Scott County on March 2.

Delivery will be made to the Scott County Extension Center by the Missouri Conservation Commission Forestry Division.

You should call at the Extension Center for your order.

There is still time for orders to be made. Each year after trees and multiflora rose seedlings arrive, we have people wanting to place orders.

If you desire any seedling order, please contact your Extension Center for an order.

PLANTING SHADE TREES

Home owners want to know the best time to set out shade trees around the home.

Deciduous or broadleafed trees can be transplanted at any time the soil conditions will permit, between the time the leaves drop in the fall and the new growth starts in the spring.

Evergreen trees and shrubs can be planted in the early fall . . . but these species usually survive and grow best if they are planted in the spring as soon as the danger of deep soil freezing is past, and before new growth starts.

CORN IN DAIRY RATION

There isn't a set limit of the amount of corn that can be used in a dairy ration. The amount that should be used depends upon several things.

If the roughage being fed is mostly high - quality legume roughage, then energy is the principle need and corn could very well supply all of the energy needed for most cows. Real high producing cows may require such a large amount of energy that it would be easier to keep them on feed if more than one kind of grain is included in the concentrate portion of the rations.

If protein is lacking in the roughage, then enough protein supplement will have to be added to the grain mix to be sure that the protein needs of the animal are adequately supplied.

At one time it was thought that the amount of corn in the ration should be limited to 60 percent or less. . . but with high energy rations in vogue now . . . larger and larger amounts of corn are being included in the dairy mix.

EGG OUTLOOK

Missouri farmers investigating different farming enterprises are asking if the long time egg outlook is favorable enough to consider entering the egg business.

The long time outlook for eggs appears to be one of declining prices. There will be further advancement in automation and new technology . . which will permit the producer to handle more birds and operate at a lower net return per bird. The average labor return will likely stay near 50 cents per bird.

The farmer will need to decide for himself if he wishes to enter the business on that sort of outlook.

DEMONSTRATIONS IN 4-H

An old Chinese proverb says, "Better to see once, than to hear a hundred times." This is one of the reasons Demonstrations are used in 4-H Club work.

Demonstrating is a method of teaching. It is an especially effective method of teaching how to do something.

4-H members learn how to demonstrate in their 4-H project work. As in other 4-H work they "learn by doing," simply by showing how to do something they can do, and telling how and why at the same time. While the demonstration will be of value to those watching, the real value of the demonstration is to the one who has prepared and presented it. Members who have given a few demonstrations find that:

1. They can speak with ease before groups of people.
2. They can put across ideas more easily, because they have learned to organize what they want to say.
3. They can tell other people of what they have learned in 4-H.
4. They have learned a great deal more about the chosen subject.

Teaching by the Demonstration method can be used by garden clubs, Home Extension Clubs, Sewing Clubs or any other educational groups. 4-H circular 100, entitled "Let's Demonstrate," provides information on how to plan, prepare and present a demonstration. This circular is available to you at the University Extension Center in Benton or Charleston.

TESTING STATION SALE IS GOOD SOURCE OF PERFORMANCE TESTED BOARS

Saturday, February 13 is the date for the 21st Missouri Swine Testing Station Boar Sale to be held in the University of Missouri Livestock Judging Pavilion in Columbia beginning at 1:00 p.m. Local hog producers would do well to consider buying their herd boars through this sale or other such sources of performance tested boars.

Why is it important that you use a performance tested boar? It is important for the simple reason that many of the characteristics of good, meat type hogs are heritable and are passed from the sow and boar to their offsprings. Consequently, if we expect to make progress in the quality of our hogs, our breeding stock must have the desirable characteristics before we can expect them to be passed on to their offspring. This is especially important in the case of the herd boar because he affects the quality of so many offsprings. At the Hog Production Session of our Livestock Shortcourse held in Dexter recently, David Kelly, Area Extension Livestock Agent discussed the extent to which individual genetic traits are heritable. Important traits and the extent to which each is heritable are as follows: length of body, 61 percent; percent fat, 60 percent; percent ham, 58 percent; backfat thickness, 46 percent; economy of gain, 40 percent; growth, 35 percent; number of pigs weaned, 19 percent; and number of pigs farrowed, 15 percent.

Now, what is the significance of performance testing in this connection? At the Missouri Swine Testing Station, for example, hogs are fed the same ration and are grown under the same environmental conditions, and they are tested for traits such as those mentioned above. Before boars are sold in the Tested Boar Sale, they must meet some pretty strict requirements. They must gain at least 1.7 pounds per head per day, make 100 pounds of gain on 325 pounds of feed or less, have a backfat thickness of 1.3 inches or less, have an index score of 100 or more, and be approved by a screening committee of qualified judges. Incidentally, the index score is an evaluation that places approximately equal emphasis on feed efficiency, backfat thickness, rate of gain and loin area.

A total of 58 boars that have met sale requirements will be sold in the sale next Saturday. Of this number, 26 are Hampshires, 20 are Durocs, 5 are Yorkshires, 4 are Polands, and 3 are Berkshires. All boars have been vaccinated for cholera and erysipelas and all have been tested and found to be negative as far as Brucellosis and Leptospirosis are concerned. The average daily gain produced by these boars ranged from 1.71 to 2.65 pounds per head per day. The time required to reach the 200 pound weight ranged from 3.5 to five months. They produced 100 pounds of pork on from 262 to 292 pounds of feed. Backfat thickness ranged from .87 to 1.24 inches. The index score on the boars ranged from 112 to 178. Carcass length on litter mates of these boars ranged from 28.2 to 30.5 inches. So, as you can see this is an outstanding group of boars. In fact, I have been told that this is perhaps the most outstanding group to be sold in the history of the testing station.

So if you are thinking about buying a boar, this would be a place to find it. Our economists tell us that we can expect better hog prices through most of this year as compared to last year. Consequently, this would probably be a good time to invest in a good performance tested boar if you need one and make other needed adjustments to make your hog enterprise more profitable.

Incidentally, another Testing Station Boar Sale will be held in Columbia on March 6.

Mix-All means uniform feedmaking!

. . . and now, GEHL adds 13 new features

Ask any one of the more than 15,000 Mix-All owners why he chose a Gehl. Chances are, one of the big reasons is uniform grinding and mixing.

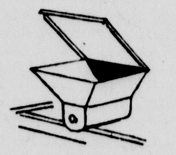

Uniform, because ingredients are cut (not pounded) by 66 thin, reversible, steel hammers. The big 507 sq. in. grinding surface produces faster grinding, too . . . and low power requirements. Because all milled ingredients are of uniform size, they mix more thoroughly with concentrates in the 2-ton hopper.

Country Honors Abraham Lincoln

FEBRUARY 12, 1809, is a date recorded in the annals of history. Today, February 12, 1965, we pause to commemorate this date, the birth of the great American, Abraham Lincoln.

Story of the birth of Abraham Lincoln may seem trite and melodramatic to those individuals with shallow feelings of patriotism; but to those of us who treasure the freedom given to us in some measure by Mr. Lincoln, this date is as immortal as the man it represents.

Born in an humble log cabin in the wilderness of Kentucky, Abraham Lincoln made his way to the highest office in the land.

Lincoln and his words, in the time of this nation's greatest crisis, fly above and demand the respect and honor of every man.

Adamant in his stand for equality for all men of all races, Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves 103 years ago. Today, even after a century, there are those who will not abide by the spirit of the Emancipation Proclamation.

Greatness of a man never exceed the wisdom and kindness of this great American when, at the end of the War between the States, he called for "malice toward none" and "charity for all."

Abraham Lincoln, who would soon be asasinated by a madman, asked the people to "bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan--to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace."

As long as free men live in these United States of America, the name of Abraham Lincoln and the date of February 12 shall live.

Valentine Days Vary In Countries Abroad

VALENTINE DAY is very familiar throughout the world as a festival of romance and affection, candy and cards.

Celebration in the United States is widely known, but few people understand the celebrations in other countries on the holiday.

People in some areas of Italy hold a feast on February 14. In Sicily, some young ladies get up before sunrise on this special day, and they stand by their windows watching for a young man to pass. Each girl believes that the first man she sees will become her bridegroom within the year.

Pressed snowdrop flowers are sent to special friends on this holiday in Denmark. A joking letter is sometimes sent by the Danes. The sender writes a rhyme, but does not sign his name. He uses a code of dots representing the letters in his name.

Valentine Day comes on the feast day of two Christian martyrs, named Valentine. Customs of the holiday probably come from an ancient Roman festival, called Lupercalia.

This festival honored Juno, the Roman goddess of women and marriage, and Pan, the god of nature.

SUPT. LYNN TWITTY, Principal Harold F. Kiehne, and administrator Harold Vogel speak to the Parent-Teachers meeting on the need of occupational training classes in the Sikeston school system.

3 Administrators Discuss Occupational Training Topic

Occupational training and the new buildings to be constructed in relation to the program was the topic presented at the Parent-Teachers meeting Monday evening.

Principal Harold F. Kiehne, Supt., Lynn Twitty, and administrative assistant Harold Vogel discussed occupational and technical education in the Sikeston high school for the Parent-Teacher meeting Monday evening.

Mr. Twitty stated that there is a definite need for such education facilities in our secondary school system because of the fact that 60 per cent of the high school graduates do not continue their education.

These students have the willingness to work but lack the training that is essential. Mr. Twitty said it is the duty of the school system to offer such training to these students and prepare them for work.

Mr. Kiehne then discussed the type of program the Sikeston school system is adding.

Additions are being made to the three areas of occupational training already in existence.

Next year these training courses will be offered. Auto body and fender, auto mechanics, farm machinery, electronics, welding, refrigeration, design drafting, graphic arts.

Secretarial practice, office training, salesmanship, business management, bookkeeping, homemaking services, distributive education, and cooperative education, as well as adult classes.

Mr. Vogel then showed the plan for three new extentions to be built this summer.

One is to be added to "B" building and used for electronics. The other two will be separate buildings used for refrigeration and business education classes.

Mr. Vogel said this is "only a start for this community" and that soon many businesses will be looking to Sikeston for well-trained employees as well as a place for additional training for their own employees.

February 17 being the 68th anniversary of the founding of the PTA, Mrs. Ronald Lee presented a special Founder's Day program.

Alice McLellan Birney and Phoebe Apperson Hearst started the Parent- Teacher Association in 1897.

President Howard presented a slate of officers to be voted on for next year. New officers are Gene Nunnelee, president, Mrs. Harold Hill, vice - president; Mrs. DeWitt Zaricor, secretary; and Bill Huff, treasurer. These new officers will be installed at the April meeting.

Refreshments consisting of cookies and coffee were served by members of the Future Teachers of America after the meeting.

Hale Is Teaching 3 Speech Classes

Jim Hale

Jim Hale, senior from Southeast Missouri State College, is a student teacher this semester in Sikeston high school. He is teaching three speech classes, directed by Robert Walker.

Mr. Hale is a graduate of Sikeston high school, and he participated in football and National Forensic League when he was a student here.

He is presently employed at Cape Girardeau as a television announcer for station KFVS-TV. He teaches in Sikeston the first three hours of the day, and then in the afternoon he works at the TV station.

Mr. Hale is married and has a small daughter, Christy. The family resides in Cape Girardeau, and he said that he has looked forward to teaching and is enjoying the new experiences provided through his student teaching.

Sikestonians Attend Meet In Dexter

Seniors attending were Charles Ancell, Ann Bess, Katie Blanton, Jim Crenshaw, Thomas Dye, Sheila Garner, Carol Miller, Diane Nunnelee, Janice Shipman, Judy Sidwell, Dale Stauffer.

Brenda Shanks, Katie Stallings, Margaret Suver, Paula Waldman, and Tony Zaricor.

Dexter's congress consisted of a senate, senior and junior houses, and committee meetings where bills were discussed and given thoughtful consideration.

National Forensic League students Carol Miller, Heyde Yount, Clayton Vandivort, Jim Crenshaw, Diane Nunnelee, Emily Twitty, Patricia Wood, Brenda Wilson, Mike Guess, and Becky Turner will present a panel discussion about world problems for the Business and Professional Eomen of Sikeston on Wednesday evening, Feb. 24.

Juniors Meet To Select Successors To '65 Rings

Representatives from the nine junior home rooms will make their final selections for the forthcoming senior rings next Wednesday afternoon.

Representatives were chosen in the home room periods last week and they will meet to choose the ring that will represent their class.

Charles L. Brandon and D. W. Blakeley, representatives from the Herff-Jones Company, will bring various ring samples to show the students.

Junior representatives will submit a vote for round or square rings, according to the way each home room voted, and will select the style of ring from the group that will be displayed to them.

Following the selection, the exact style of ring will be announced the the student body. Rings will then go on sale at the local jewelry stores and students may order them.

BULLDOG BARKER

Volume 28, Number 19 — SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL, SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Gosnell, Masterson Royalty

Liz Barnett, president of the organization, crowned the royalty and presented tokens to them. Dianne received a gold charm bracelet with "GAA Queen 1964-65" engraved and Tom was presented a gold key chain engraved "GAA King 1964-65."

Crowns were made by seniors Carole Kimes and Jan Sibley. The crown had a deep wine colored silk exterior, decorated with white pearls.

Senior Mark Henry provided some of the evening's entertainment by singing folk songs to the group. Among the selections he performed were "Wayfaring Stranger," "Green Leaves of Summer," "Polly Vaughn," and "Santiago."

Theme for the dance was "Sweethearts," and the decorations followed this general topic. American Beauty red and pink crepe paper was decoratively draped throughout the cafetorium. Cut-outs of hearts and cupids were placed on the walls to complete the theme.

Refreshments coincided with the decorations. Pink Hawaiian punch and red and pink heart-shaped cookies were available. Cookies were provided by Nancy's Sweet Shop in Sikeston.

Two door prizes were presented to the lucky ticket holders. Both prizes were gift certificates for the Music Mart for the purchase of one free record.

This was the first extra activity sponsored by the club this year. It was a girl ask boy sock hop.

Girls' Athletic Association will sponsor a banquet in the spring. Officers for the following year will be announced and outstanding members will receive honors for their achievements.

An estimated attendance of 60 students was made by GAA president Liz Barnett. Liz stated, "The dance was a great success and everyone really seemed to enjoy it."

Growler End Sheets, Cover Sent To Paragon Press

Dianne Dickerson, senior art student and art editor of the Growler, designed the pattern for the cover and constructed a suitable copy to be sent to the Paragon Press Inc., in Montgomery, Alabama.

Color scheme consists of several colors, and the pattern contains various colors and is concerned with the Sikeston high school.

Photographs for the colored end sheets were snapped in the early part of the year, and these were sent to the company also this past week.

Turner, Wood, Vandivort, Twitty Publish Stories

Six Barker staffers had stories reprinted in Missouri Teen, a state-wide newspaper for teenagers. Two news articles, two editorials, and three features were published.

Editorials by Jim Crenshaw and Pat Wood were reprinted. Jim's editorial dealt with lack of student interest in basketball and Sikeston's need for adequate basketball facilities.

Pat's editorial was a discussion of President Johnson's breaking the inaugural tradition of formal attire.

Features by Becky Turner, Clayton Vandivort, and Emily Twitty were published in the monthly newspaper. Girls' misconceptions of automobile nechanics was Becky's subject.

Neglect of school for outside activities was satirized in Emily's feature. Clayton's was an imaginary letter to Santa Claus, asking for specialized gifts for different academic subjects.

Sikeston Little Theatre's production of J. B. in which three seniors participated was reprinted. Article was written by Carol Miller.

Bulldog's state recognition and football record were the subjects of a news article written by Clayton Vandivort.

Harber Gives PTA Program Tuesday Night

Plans for teaching in elementary and junior high areas were discussed at the regular meeting of the Future Teachers of America last Tuesday evening.

Members who have been active for the past two quarters will be eligible to teach. Exact date for teaching has not yet been set, but it will be some time in April.

Students signed a list at the meeting, giving the area in which they wished to teach as well as the school and subject.

Deidre Harber presented the program, a discussion on papers that her mother's advanced reading class had written on the reason why President Johnson should or should not have attended Winston Churchill's funeral.

These papers had been written by second graders and their thoughts and ideas were quite interesting.

At Random

by Emily Twitty

Rain and moisture have made roads muddy, and several students can verify this statement. Mike Couch, Robert Collins, Louis Farris, Richard Montgomery, and others can attest to the muddiness of the roads in the Sikeston vicinity.

Our valiant basketball Bulldogs made a real effort Friday night to beat the Dexter club, but their efforts were in vain as Dexter edged by with a "measly" two-point lead.

Independent study students have had some really challenging discussions lately. They have discussed everything from politics to the decadence in moral codes.

Folklores have been featured singers at a new coffee house in Cape Girardeau, called No Name. They have alternated with Ted Anderson, a traveling folk singer from the West Coast. Several of the students have been making trips to this place to fill their empty week ends.

Seniors have been scurrying around to trade pictures with all their freinds, enemies, and mere acquaintances, in an effort to preserve for posterity the remembrances of their classmates.

Some even make the supreme effort to write an endering term on the flip side so they will be remembered.

This deluge of rain from above has made us resemble Noah and the Ark, but our only trouble is that we get wet.

Wise words are sometimes spoken in jest, but many more foolish ones are spoken in earnest.

Sikeston Band Is Preparing For Contests.

Sikeston high school band, directed by Keith Collins, is now preparing for the state contest in Cape Girardeau this spring.

On March 8 the two divisions of the Sikeston musicians will compete between themselves to see which band will represent the city at the state contest.

Band directors from the surrounding area will compare the bands at that time and make the selection.

Practicing and sight reading various music, the bands have not definitely decided on their contest pieces. Regardless of the final selection, each band will play an identical piece and an additional one.

Several ensembles and soloists are also striving to be ready for the contest.

Underclassmen Prepare Schedules For '65-'66

Early in January, sophomores and juniors were issued enrollment cards in the various home rooms. Students then selected schedules and returned the cards to the counselors' office.

Since the students are filling out the forms this spring, schedules will not be changed in the fall when school begins.

Bracelets Refresh Memories

by Patricia Wood

One of the newer fads among the girls of Sikeston high school is charm bracelets. Reasons for beginning these collections of silver and gold memory trinkets are various.

Several girls found themselves loaded down with pins commemorating their membership in different organizations.

When Girl Scout, Honor Society, Future Teachers of America, four different National Forensic League, and a Thespian pin are worn simultaneously the young lady looks as though she is "off to war."

But besides these "metals for courageous service" many have small trinkets commemorating different places they have visited. This is a clever idea, but some carry it too far.

A conversation on this point might go something like this--"Mary, I recognize the Eiffel Tower for the summer you spent in Paris, the Unisphere is for the World's Fiar, the Lincoln Monument is for Washington, D. C.; but what is the small circle with the P. K.?

"Oh, that! I picked that up when we drove through some small town in Kentucky."

Other small items include gilted gum wrapper, Coke cups, and theater tickets. Reasons for these items are obvious.

Another type of charm, becoming popular is that one inscribed with a date, including birthdays, anniversaries, national holidays, and school vacations.

In case the New York subway system noticed a sudden disappearance of tokens last year, they are in Sikeston. Reason for this is that about 18 Sikeston girls who visited New York City last summer absconded with at least two each for charm bracelets.

The Seasons

The sound of blowing snow is cold, I know.
Since first I felt its softness on my face,
I stood and watched that drifting lace
As it sparkled with the fallen snow.
The snow melts fast as winter goes,
And brings the warmness of spring rain
Falling hard against my pane,
And once again it's warm, I know.
The spring is welcomed, gone the cold
Joy's in the air, as flowers unfold.
Summer's come and brought the sun
To do the things spring left undone.
The seasons change but once again,
And fall shows all her glory then.

Looking Back Over the Years

February 13, 1915

Last Friday the high school debating teams of Charleston and Sikeston debated the proposition of the enactment of a minimum wage law by the Missouri Legislature. The affirmative of the proposition was supported by Charleston and the negative by Sikeston, our representatives being Roger Bailey and Byron Bowman. The decision was unanimous in favor of Sikeston and it was a deserved victory, because it was a credit to defeat such a well coached team as Charleston.

Morehouse — Ed Griffin and Mrs. A. C. Whitener attended the Music Box Review in St. Louis this week.

Out of 565 homes visited in Sikeston so far in a church-membership survey being made by lay leaders of the Methodist Church, only 117 show themselves to be non-church members.

A. F. Lindsay, Scott County representative to the Missouri Legislature, spent the weekend in Sikeston in the interest of his private business.

A. A. Ebert reports a considerable advance in the work of laying off a new addition in the northwestern part of town. Fifteen acres have been surveyed just north of the place owned by Grover Baker and has been marked off in 50 x 125 foot lots. Mr. Eberts expects to sell these for about $125 a piece on the small installment plan.

PRAYER
for Today from The Upper Room

Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. (Philippians 2:5)

PRAYER: Father we humbly thank Thee that, seeing us as we really are, Thou dost still forgive our transgressions — and empower us to righteousness. Give us wisdom to discern the difference between hating a person's sins and loving the sinner, for whom Christ died. In His name we ask. Amen.

A missionary deep in the jungle came upon a witch doctor who was pounding his drum furiously. "What gives?" asked the missionary with some trepidation. "We have no water," explained the witch doctor. "So you're praying for rain?" ventured the missionary. "Not at all," snapped the witch doctor. "I'm sending for the plumber."

Mr. C. L. Blanton Jr., Editor
Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Mr. Blanton:

"An illuminating and astounding fact is that 25 per cent of all power generated in the United States comes from Uncle Sam."

According to the Federal Power Commission report 1962 (latest year available): The capacity of all Federal Power installations amounts to 12.7 per cent of electrical generating capacity in the United States. This is about half of the 25 per cent you reported. Private power companies 75.7 per cent.

Of the kilowatt-hours generated, private companies produced 76.4 per cent. Federal installations generated 13.6 per cent. This, too, is far from the 25 per cent.

All of the power generated by the Federal Government is sold wholesale or consumed by Federal defense agencies. A large percentage is sold wholesale to private companies who in turn resell at retail for a profit on which they collect and relay an amount for income tax.

The per cent of Federal power has for some years been consistently shrinking because of the curtailment of new installations while private companies have expanded. In 1957, the Federal share of electric power generated was 17.3 per cent (1962 — 12.7 per cent).

The Rural Electrification Administration does not have a single retail or wholesale customer for electricity. Rural electric cooperatives, which borrow their construction funds from REA, serve the thousands of farmers and rural residents you mention. The REC's are no more federally owned than Lone Star Steel Company which borrowed its money from the Federal Government (RFC). They are no more federally owned than is the Louisiana private power company which borrows 2 per cent money from REA. They are no more federally owned than the Capital City Telephone Company, Jefferson City, Missouri, whose subsidiary borrows 2 per cent money from REA — as do several hundred telephone companies and cooperatives.

If rural people are getting a break because of tax-subsidized electric service, then their city cousins would be interested to know that their electric service too is being subsidized at the expense of the tax payer. Private power company subsidies are in the form of accelerated depreciation and investment tax credits. The totals of these subsidies to private power exceeds the entire cumulative loans for rural electrification from start to present. The latter is being and will be repaid to the Federal Treasury with interest.

Mr. Donald Cook, president of American Electric Power Company, says that their interest only amounts to 2½ per cent in an article, May 1964, Fortune.

"Why sell more stock than you need to and pay out both dividends and taxes on them, when, by deducting your interest from taxable income, you can actually get borrowed money at about 2½ per cent?" Besides, the private power companies can and have borrowed 2 per cent money from REA.

This fact by the president of the most enterprising utility in this country substantially narrows the co-op subsidy.

Editorials, both pro and con, are the backbone of public opinion in depth. Private power companies, as well as electric cooperatives, must be able to stand the test of criticism and introspective evaluation by editors.

Are the co-ops any threat to the power companies? Is the comparison even in the same league?

	Co-ops	Power Co.
Generation	0.7%	76.4%
Customers	7.5%	79.0%
Average customers per mile-
Missouri	3.1	35.0
Revenue	4.9%	82.6%
Average revenue per mile
Missouri	$388.	$8,396.

If in your shop you had ten customers to every one your competitor had and each one of your ten paid you twice as much, I hope your advantage would not need the defending the private power companies require.

Sincerely,
John Davenport,
General Manager

The child was born Feb. 10, and died Friday at 9:45 p.m. in the Missouri Delta Community Hospital. Surviving besides the parents are, his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John McVey, Sikeston; the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Tetley, Sikeston.

If You Earned $600 A Year; File your Tax

A Federal income tax return must be filed by every citizen or resident of the United States, including minor children, who had gross income of $600 or more in 1964, Mr. E. O. Bookwalter, Director of Internal Revenue for the St. Louis District, State of Missouri, reminded taxpayers today.

If a calendar year taxpayer's 65th birthday is on or before January 1, 1965, he is not required to file unless his gross income in 1964 was at least $1,200, Mr. Bookwalter said.

He added that even though a taxpayer does not have gross income of $600, he must file a return, if any income tax was withheld from his pay, in order to get a refund.

Self-employed persons such as businessmen, farmers, and most professional men must file a return if net earnings from self-employment were $400 or more.

Document 5107 which furnishes more detailed information on this subject is available in limited quantity upon request from the Internal Revenue Service.

Inflation Clouds Hover Over Sunny U.S. Economy

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) Despite all the brave talk from the Johnson administration on the success of the fight against inflation, it's a thing of walking on eggs.

As the President and his economic advisers are pointing out, consumer prices have been held to an average annual increase of 1.2 per cent over the past four years.

No economists, partisan or otherwise, have been heard to dispute that this is just about as close to total stability as could be hoped for in an expansionary period like 1961-65.

Yet an annual rise of only a few additional tenths of a point could start an epidemic of jitters among government price specialists.

THOUGH THERE ISN'T ANY HANDY DEFINITION of how big a rise constitutes "inflation," all the alarm bells probably would ring if the increase shot past 2 per cent.

Last time that happened was in 1958, when the hike was 2.7 per cent. The year before, the rise was a clearly inflationary 3.3 per cent.

Even these boosts do not compare, however, with the great spiralings that occurred right after World War II and again at the outset of the Korean war.

In the first two postwar years, 1946-47, the consumer price level leaped upward 15.1 per cent. With very little breather in between, inflation took a 7 per cent toll in 1951, amidst the Korean war.

U.S. ECONOMIC ACTIVITY in 1964 increased so strongly that at least one government price expert was surprised to see the anti-inflation line held so firmly.

But the factors which helped produce this successful price "containment" last year could very well work to the same end in 1965.

As the economic reports of the President and his advisers emphasize, demand is not really pushing hard against supply. The choice given the American consumer by today's immense variety of goods takes away some of the upthrust.

The Council of Economic Advisers says the country's gross national product in 1964 fell about $27 billion short of estimated potential. This gap, narrowed from $51 billion in 1961, is unmistakably an anti-inflation valve.

THE GOVERNMENT'S so-called guideposts—formulas intended to put limits on wage-price increases—are believed also to have been of some real benefit as informal restraints in union-management bargaining over new contracts.

If it were not for these and the other factors noted, the administration's price guardians might be far more than ordinarily concerned at the 1965 outlook. At least 134 wage agreements involving bargaining units of 5,000 workers or more each, affecting a total of some 1.5 million employes, are due to expire this year.

The big ones are in steel, aluminum, rubber, shipbuilding and aircraft manufacture. No one needs to be reminded the steel negotiations are most crucial of all.

As busy as the new bargaining year is, others have been busier and more fraught with inflationary peril. Nevertheless, optimism should not run beyond saying that President Johnson's eggs may not crack for another year.

FIREFLIES

Little fireflies in the night,
Like a myriad of stars aflight
Without purpose or goal
With a glow neither warm nor cold.
Twinkling in the field at night
Little fireflies giving light
What possessed that mystic mind
To create a fly with a light behind?

Another Explosion In Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- A military warehouse used for storing oxygen tanks blew up this evening, casting a pall of smoke over Saigon.

Most of Saigon's fire brigade was called out to stem the flames because of fears the fire might engulf several other oxygen sheds.

Authorities declined to say whether they thought sabotage was involved.

There were no reports of serious casualties. Only one American adviser worked in the compound and he was not hurt.

Tens of thousands of spectators on foot and on bicycles jammed streets leading to the compound, blocking movement of emergency vehicles.

All of Saigon is jumpy with expectation of new Viet Cong terror bombings, particularly in view of this week's air raids on Communist North Viet Nam.

Earlier today, planes dumped tons of leaflets over the city, giving details of the air raids and explaining to the people why they were carried out.

Along with the jitters over possible return strikes from North Viet Nam, a twin-engine airplane that failed to file a flight plan put the newly installed U. S. Hawk antiaircraft missile battery to a test at Da Nang air base north of here Friday. The plane proved to be friendly, but not before causing a combat alert.

The Hawk battery's radar tracked the plane and jet interceptors scrambled and escorted it toward the base.

The incident underscored that the missiles, coupled with a radar system, were ready for a possible air strike from Communist North Viet Nam.

President Johnson ordered them to Da Nang from Okinawa this week after the Communist attack at Pleiku that killed eight Americans.

Supersonic U. S. Air Force F102 jet fighters are also on guard at the base, from which the United States launched two of its three retaliatory air strikes this week against military installations in North Viet Nam.

More than 1,800 U.S. servicemen are stationed at Da Nang, which is considered a prime target for Viet Cong Mortar crews.

Vietnamese planes blasted Friday a band of Red guerrillas dug in at the base's perimeter. Five Communists were killed and ten others captured.

North Viet Nam claimed today that the Viet Cong killed or wounded more than 300 Americans and 1,700 South Vietnamese government forces in four days ending Wednesday.

The meeting is especially designed for the forming of the district Cattlemens Association, and an invitation is extended to all cattlemen in the district.

Situation Is Still Serious

WASHINGTON (AP) — Longshoremen headed back to work today at most major East and Gulf Coast ports while efforts to settle local disputes at South Atlantic and Western Gulf ports were in recess for the weekend.

Most locals accepted an order by Thomas W. (Teddy) Gleason, president of the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association, to end the 33-day strike in ports where local accords have been reached.

These agreements cover more than 80 per cent of the 75,000-80,000 dock workers at East and Gulf ports, including such major trade centers as New York, New Orleans, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Two Baltimore locals split on whether to return to work but they seemed to be the only holdouts against Gleason's order.

Gleason issued the directive as ILA leaders at Southern Atlantic and Western Gulf ports rejected recommendations of a three-man presidential panel for ending the dispute in their areas. Shippers approved the proposals.

The principal union objection was against a proposal that the men return to work while the conflict was being resolved.

President Johnson, after meeting with both sides and three federal mediators, tossed the problem back to Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz Friday. After further meetings, Wirtz announced the talks will be resumed in Galveston, Tex., Monday and in Miami Tuesday.

"It's perfectly obvious there's nothing more that can be done here," Wirtz said. He added that although Gleason's order had greatly relieved the emergency caused by the strike, the situation in the South Atlantic and West Gulf areas was "extremely serious."

Wirtz, Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor and Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., comprised the panel named by Johnson Wednesday to seek a solution to the dock impasse by noon Friday.

Although the mediators failed to end the strike at all ports, sources said the ILA's agreement to return to work at the major ports accomplished Johnson's major objective.

Johnson called the board's recommendations "wise, sound and prudent." He said they had his full backing and added that "to the extent that this procedure has resulted in reopening ports, it is a job well and superbly done."

Discuss Plans and Cost of A New Charleston High School

CHARLESTON — At the public meeting at the Charleston High School Thursday, February 11, the cost of the new high school was discussed by W. R. Pierce Jr. the assistant superintendent. He also explained how Dr. John Gilliland, director of the School Planning Laboratory, University of Tennessee would save the taxpayers money by planning a school for our needs. Eight men on Dr. Gillilands' staff will come to Charleston February 18 and 19 to talk with the teachers and the administrators to work up plans for the new building. All of these men hold a Doctors degree and are well qualified in their specific areas.

Mr. Pierce next gave the figures for next years budget which are as follows. There will be an income of $1,116,950.00 in 1965-55, 50 per cent of this will come from the state. Expenditures will be $1,206,665.00, this means we will need $89,715.00 more dollars which will eat into the $90,000.00 surplus we now have from re-organization.

The anticipated balance for July 1, 1965 is $347,956.00 and the balance for July 1, 1966 is $258,241.00. This will give a surplus of $28,241.00.

If Bertrand, Texas Bend, and Thompson Bend join the R-2 district then we will have in 1966-67, $92,241.00; this includes the $28,241.00 surplus we will have. This is why we can go two years with a $3.19 tax rate.

Mr. Pierce also told the group that in 1965 if reorganization takes place the tax rate will be $3.19 per $100.00; if reorganization doesn't take place the tax rate will remain $3.19 and if the reorganization and boundary changes are made the tax rate will still be $3.19. But in the next two years the tax rate will change. In 1966-67 if reorganization takes place the tax rate will be $3.19; if reorganization doesn't take place the tax rate will be $3.50 and if reorganization and boundary changes are made the tax rate will be $3.70. In 1967-68 it will be $3.50 if we reorganize, $3.70 if we don't reorganize and $3.90 if we reorganize and boundary changes are made.

Mr. Pierce said that this is the worst possible picture and the tax rate will be lower rather than higher than the tax figures he gave.

The $1,400,000.00 bond issue will be sold on the open market at an anticipated interest rate of 3.25 cents. Mr. Pierce stated that if we could hold off selling the bonds until October or November then the payments wouldn't be due until the following October or November. This would mean we could take the tax money in January and invest $90,000.00 for six months. Over a 20 year period we would draw $75,000.00 interest. This would get our interest rate down to 2.70 cents.

Harold Reuber

Sikeston Boy On Dean's List At Carbondale

CARBONDALE, Ill.,-- A total of 1,245 students at Southern Illinois University's Carbondale campus have been named to Deans' Lists for high academic achievement during the fall quarter.

Included is William M. Lingle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lingle, 836 Matthews street, Sikeston.

Deans' Lists include students who compiled grade averages of 4.25 or better while taking at least 12 hours of class work during the quarter. A 5.0 average is the equivalent of straight "A".

The lists represent nine per cent of the total Carbondale campus enrollment during the term, and include 231 students with straight "A" grades for the quarter.

JOPLIN, Mo. AP -- Residents of the Jasper County Junior College district will vote May 7 on a $2.5 million bond proposal for the beginning of a new campus.

The bonds would make possible the construction of four buildings as a start on a long-range plan to expand the school into a four-year college.

Chemical Co. Is Erecting A Warehouse

A new distribution center and warehouse is now under construction by the California Chemical Company's Ortho Division, for the M and M Grain Company, located in Miner. The building is to be completed in the near future.

The new sales - storage outlet will have a working capacity of about 600 tons of fertilizers, and has a drive-in facility for trucks, spreader or wagon. The railroad tracks are nearby, so products can be moved by rail

A pole type building is being constructed that can withstand weight and stress loads, built mostly of wood and painted white. The fertilizer sold at this firm is made at Ft. Madison, Ia., one of three of the company's major plants.

A CORRECTION

In Friday's Standard an article stated Dannie Joe Parker, Route 3, Sikeston, had been given a citation for careless and imprudent driving. That was in error it was Nellie Reynolds of Parma, involved in the accident, who received the citation.

COLUMBUS, Ohio AP -- A 14-year-old girl, who told police she was depressed by Beatle Ringo Starr's marriage, has been hospitalized here after taking 16 aspirin tablets.

Police said Janice Wise of Columbus told them she took the pills over a two-day period because "Ringo has gotten married." She was hospitalized after she became sick at school Friday.

Cargo Plane Falls; Two Are Killed

Flames quickly consumed the cabin and fuselage of the plane. Both occupants apparently were killed.

They were identified by the plane's owner as Geronimo Diaz Granados, the pilot, and Jose Ravel, the co-pilot.

Two minutes after takeoff from Miami International Airport on a flight to Latin America, the two-engine C46 plunged from 300 feet, clipped the edge of an auto body shop and plowed into the yard. Several cars were destroyed.

Sheriff's deputy Robert James said trouble obviously developed immediately after takeoff and the plane had swung completely around in an effort to return to the airport when it dived into the ground.

KANSAS CITY, Kan. AP -- This city has officially annexed 3,000 acres and about 4,700 persons to make the city boundaries conform to those of the Kansas City, Kan., school district.

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes Friday received a life membership in the Missouri Peace Officers Association.

Corn Crop Is Threatened by New Disease

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—The nation's corn crop this year appears fated to suffer some inroads from a newly-recognized plant disease, maize dwarf mosaic.

The affliction, at first thought to be familiar disease called corn stunt, turned up two years ago in bottomland fields of Arkansas and Ohio. It has since been recognized in five other states, including Missouri. Corn stunt disease, found in Kansas and other states, is being examined.

It has farmers worried and scientists puzzled, because its nature has not yet been fully proved, and defenses against it have yet to be developed.

Prof. H. H. Thornberry, plant pathologist at the University of Illinois, said today that the disease has been proved infectious. But much work remains to be done in establishing its full nature and in developing hybrids which can resist it.

The destructive potential of maize dwarf mosaic, Thornberry said, was demonstrated last year dramatically in Ohio where yield loss was estimated at five million bushels.

Thornberry and M. C. Shurtleff, a fellow plant pathologist at the University of Illinois, reported in the winter issue of the technical bulletin, Illinois Research, that some 2,000 acres were infected in southern Illinois last year.

"Although economic loss in Illinois was relatively light last year," they said, "we need only to look to Ohio to recognize the potential threat of the disease."

Besides Arkansas, Ohio and Illinois, the new strain has been found in Indiana, Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky. An infestation in Iowa is under investigation.

States where a corn stunt disease is being re-examined are Mississippi, Louisiana, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Kansas and Alabama.

The two diseases have similar symptoms, discolored streaks of yellow in plant leaves, and a stunted development, especially when the plants are infected early in the season.

Serum from infected plants does infect healthy plants, the Illinois scientists demonstrated. They also found that the apparent transmitted agents are aphids which winter in Johnson Grass.

Vote Count of Steel Workers At Standstill

PITTSBURGH AP -- The vote count in the United Steelworkers election drifted almost to a standstill today with both candidates for president still predicting victory.

The steel industry, meanwhile, said the inconclusive election has had no effect on orders.

I. W. Abel, the union's secretary - treasurer, shut his Chicago campaign headquarters Friday night, confident he had unseated incumbent David J. McDonald.

McDonald, steelworkers president for 12 years, said at a news conference in Pittsburgh that he would be returned to office but declined to predict his victory on the basis of figures he had tabulated.

Three Health Care Programs Being Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal program to provide health care for the elderly is picking its way through the congressional labyrinth again this year. Most observers expect it will win approval.

But the situation is somewhat tangled because three versions are actually under discussion: one that has President Johnson's backing; another espoused by many House Republicans, and a third that was prepared by the American Medical Association.

Here, in question and answer form, is a run-down and a comparison:

Q. Will Congress pass a health care for the aged bill this year?

A. All signs point to approval of something along the line of President Johnson's proposal for hospital benefits for those 65 or older.

Q. How far would it go?

A. It would be limited to some hospitalization, convalescent care in nursing home or at home and some diagnostic and similar outpatient services. Ordinary doctor bills and medicines would not be covered.

Q. Isn't there other legislation pending in Congress that would provide broader health benefits?

A. Yes. Two bills that have been much discussed lately call for covering many more kinds of health costs. These are a bill introduced by Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., in behalf of a group of Republicans and another measure drafted on suggestion of the American Medical Association.

Q. Why isn't everybody for these, if they would do more for the old folks?

A. Several factors are involved, mainly coverage and cost. The Administration bill would provide its limited benefits to all those 65 and over as a matter of right, without questioning them on income or property, and without cost to the beneficiary after he has retired.

Byrnes' bill would offer broader benefits to all the aged, but those who could pay would be charged a premium, which he estimates would average $6 a person a month.

The AMA bill contemplates covering the aged by private health insurance, with help to lower-income persons in paying the premiums. The states would set the financial standards at which retired persons would qualify for help.

Q. So the question is whether the aged as a group would prefer to have limited help for all at no cost to them, or to have the possibility of bigger benefits, but with an income factor in one way or another?

A. That's one question. Another is the impact of the various plans on public funds.

The Administration plan is designed to be self-financing, with an additional pay roll tax on those still working and on their employers providing nearly all the cost. There would be a limited contribution from the general treasury for a while, to pay the way for persons already 65 and not covered by Social Security.

Byrnes' plan would look to the general federal treasury for about two-thirds of the cost, with the remainder coming from premiums. The AMA plan would use both state and general federal funds.

Q. How much would the various plans cost?

A. Plenty, and beyond that you get into arguments. Backers of each tend to say that the costs of the others have been underestimed. Social Security actuaries estimate the Administration plan would have a first-year cost of about $1.7 billion, all of which would be raised from the new pay roll tax on employers and employes, plus about $50 million net from the general treasury. The $50 million would be the difference between the amount the federal government would put up for the benefits to the aged not covered by Social Security, and the savings that would come from reduced welfare expenditures for some of these same people.

Byrnes has estimated the cost of his plan, above what would be contributed in premiums, at $2 billion to $2.4 billion, all out of the federal treasury, assuming all those eligible signed up, which he says is unlikely.

There is no way to figure accurately in advance the cost of the AMA plan, because so much would depend on the standards established by the states. Its backers say it would cost less than the Administration plan.

Q. So it's all settled that the Administration bill is the one that is going to pass?

A. By no means. Backers of the others are fighting hard to have theirs substituted in whole or in part. Moreover, the bill that comes out of the Ways and Means Committee will not be exactly the Administration bill as introduced, although the main outlines likely will be the same.

That is why no very meaningful comparisons of benefits and costs with the rival measures can now be made. But, given the heavy Democratic majorities in the committees and in the two chambers of Congress, it now seems probable that a bill close enough to the original to please Johnson will be enacted.

Another Explosion In Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- A military warehouse used for storing oxygen tanks blew up this evening, casting a pall of smoke over Saigon.

Most of Saigon's fire brigade was called out to stem the flames because of fears the fire might engulf several other oxygen sheds.

Authorities declined to say whether they thought sabotage was involved.

There were no reports of serious casualties. Only one American adviser worked in the compound and he was not hurt.

Tens of thousands of spectators on foot and on bicycles jammed streets leading to the compound, blocking movement of emergency vehicles.

All of Saigon is jumpy with expectation of new Viet Cong terror bombings, particularly in view of this week's air raids on Communist North Viet Nam.

Earlier today, planes dumped tons of leaflets over the city, giving details of the air raids and explaining to the people why they were carried out.

Along with the jitters over possible return strikes from North Viet Nam, a twin-engine airplane that failed to file a flight plan put the newly installed U. S. Hawk antiaircraft missile battery to a test at Da-Nang air base north of here Friday. The plane proved to be friendly, but not before causing a combat alert.

The Hawk battery's radar tracked the plane and jet interceptors scrambled and escorted it toward the base.

The incident underscored that the missiles, coupled with a radar system, were ready for a possible air strike from Communist North Viet Nam.

President Johnson ordered them to Da Nang from Okinawa this week after the Communist attack at Pleiku that killed eight Americans.

Supersonic U. S. Air Force F102 jet fighters are also on guard at the base, from which the United States launched two of its three ratalitory air strikes this week against military installations in North Viet Nam.

Vietnamese planes blasted Friday a band of Red guerrillas dug in at the base's perimeter. Five Communists were killed and ten others captured.

North Viet Nam claimed today that the Viet Cong killed or wounded more than 300 Americans and 1,700 South Vietnamese government forces in four days ending Wednesday.

Dr. David Morris

To Speak at Cattlemen's Association

David Morris, veterinarian of the Delta Veterinary Clinic, will be one of the guest speakers at the Southeast Missouri Cattlemen's Association, to be held Thursday at 7 p.m. at the M and M Grain Company, Highway 60, east of Sikeston.

Mr. Morris will present a program on the problems of disease in beef production, as well as feedlot operations.

Another speaker on the program will be Dave Kelly, Missouri University livestock specialist for Southeast Missouri, who will explain proper economics, management and nutrition practices for profitable beef production.

The meeting is especially designed for the forming of the district Cattlemens Association, and an invitation is extended to all cattlemen in the district.

Situation Is Still Serious

WASHINGTON (AP) — Longshoremen headed back to work today at most major East and Gulf Coast ports while efforts to settle local disputes at South Atlantic and Western Gulf ports were in recess for the weekend.

Most locals accepted an order by Thomas W. (Teddy) Gleason, president of the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association, to end the 33-day strike in ports where local accords have been reached.

These agreements cover more than 80 per cent of the 75,000-80,000 dock workers at East and Gulf ports, including such major trade centers as New York, New Orleans, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Two Baltimore locals split on whether to return to work but they seemed to be the only holdouts against Gleason's order.

Gleason issued the directive as ILA leaders at Southern Atlantic and Western Gulf ports rejected recommendations of a three-man presidential panel for ending the dispute in their areas. Shippers approved the proposals.

The principal union objection was against a proposal that the men return to work while the conflict was being resolved.

President Johnson, after meeting with both sides and three federal mediators, tossed the problem back to Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz Friday. After further meetings, Wirtz announced the talks will be resumed in Galveston, Tex., Monday and in Miami Tuesday. "It's perfectly obvious there's nothing more that can be done here," Wirtz said. He added that although Gleason's order had greatly relieved the emergency caused by the strike, the situation in the South Atlantic and West Gulf areas was "extremely serious."

Wirtz, Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor and Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., comprised the panel named by Johnson Wednesday to seek a solution to the dock impasse by noon Friday.

Although the mediators failed to end the strike at all ports, sources said the ILA's agreement to return to work at the major ports accomplished Johnson's major objective.

Johnson called the board's recommendations "wise, sound and prudent." He said they had his full backing and added that "to the extent that this procedure has resulted in reopening ports, it is a job well and superbly done."

Discuss Plans and Cost of A New Charleston High School

CHARLESTON — At the public meeting at the Charleston High School Thursday, February 11, the cost of the new high school was discussed by W. R. Pierce Jr. the assistant superintendent. He also explained how Dr. John Gilliland, director of the School Planning Laboratory, University of Tennessee would save the taxpayers money by planning a school for our needs. Eight men on Dr. Gillilands' staff will come to Charleston February 18 and 19 to talk with the teachers and the administrators to work up plans for the new building. All of these men hold a Doctors degree and are well qualified in their specific areas.

Mr. Pierce next gave the figures for next years budget which are as follows. There will be an income of $1,116,950.00 in 1965-55, 50 per cent of this will come from the state. Expenditures will be $1,206,665.00, this means we will need $89,715.00 more dollars which will eat into the $90,000.00 surplus we now have from re-organization.

The anticipated balance for July 1, 1965 is $347,956.00 and the balance for July 1, 1966 is $258,241.00. This will give a surplus of $28,241.00.

If Bertrand, Texas Bend, and Thompson Bend join the R-2 district then we will have in 1966-67, $92,241.00; this includes the $28,241.00 surplus we will have. This is why we can go two years with a $3.19 tax rate.

Mr. Pierce also told the group that in 1965 if reorganization takes place the tax rate will be $3.19 per $100.00; if reorganization doesn't take place the tax rate will remain $3.19 and if the reorganization and boundary changes are made the tax rate will still be $3.19. But in the next two years the tax rate will change. In 1966-67 if reorganization takes place the tax rate will be $3.19; if reorganization doesn't take place the tax rate will be $3.50 and if reorganization and boundary changes are made the tax rate will be $3.70. In 1967-68 it will be $3.50 if we reorganize, $3.70 if we don't reorganize and $3.90 if we reorganize and boundary changes are made.

Mr. Pierce said that this is the worst possible picture and the tax rate will be lower rather than higher than the tax figures he gave.

The $1,400,000.00 bond issue will be sold on the open market at an anticipated interest rate of 3.25 cents. Mr. Pierce stated that if we could hold off selling the bonds until October or November then the payments wouldn't be due until the following October or November. This would mean we could take the tax money in January and invest $90,000.00 for six months. Over a 20 year period we would draw $75,000.00 interest. This would get our interest rate down to 2.70 cents.

SANTA MARIA, Calif. AP -- Robert B. Alexander, 23, wanted an airplane so much that he saved for it by selling his car and riding a bike.

Alexander died in the crash.

Is Teaching As He Studies At College

Drury College, in co-operation with the Springfield school system, began its student-teacher program, Monday, Feb. 1. Under this program, senior education students spend a minimum of three hours a day in a public school classroom observing the regular teacher and then teaching under supervision. This apprenticeship period, which lasts for one semester, is designed to give the student teacher the training necessary for handling his own classes after graduation.

Participating in the program this semester is Harold Reuber, son of Mrs. Harold Reuber, 534 N. Ranney. Mr. Reuber is student-teaching at Jarrett junior high school in the English department.

While at Drury, Mr. Reuber has also been active in the Student Senate, the college choir, and the bowling team. He has been on the school newspaper staff and is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon, social fraternity.

William M. Lingle

Sikeston Boy On Dean's List At Carbondale

CARBONDALE, Ill., -- A total of 1,245 students at Southern Illinois University's Carbondale campus have been named to Deans' Lists for high academic achievement during the fall quarter.

Deans' Lists include students who compiled grade averages of 4.25 or better while taking at least 12 hours of class work during the quarter. A 5.0 average is the equivalent of straight "A".

The lists represent nine per cent of the total Carbondale campus enrollment during the term, and include 231 students with straight "A" grades for the quarter.

JOPLIN, Mo. AP -- Residents of the Jasper County Junior College district will vote May 7 on a $2.5 million bond proposal for the beginning of a new campus.

Chemical Co. Is Erecting A Warehouse

A new distribution center and warehouse is now under construction by the California Chemical Company's Ortho Division, for the M and M Grain Company, located in Miner. The building is to be completed in the near future.

The new sales - storage outlet will have a working capacity of about 600 tons of fertilizers, and has a drive-in facility for trucks, spreader or wagon. The railroad tracks are nearby, so products can be moved by rail

A pole type building is being constructed that can withstand weight and stress loads, built mostly of wood and painted white. The fertilizer sold at this firm is made at Ft. Madison, Ia., one of three of the company's major plants.

Cargo Plane Falls; Two Are Killed

Flames quickly consumed the cabin and fuselage of the plane. Both occupants apparently were killed.

They were identified by the plane's owner as Geronimo Diaz Granados, the pilot, and Jose Ravel, the co-pilot.

Two minutes after takeoff from Miami International Airport on a flight to Latin America, the two-engine C46 plunged from 300 feet, clipped the edge of an auto body shop and plowed into the yard. Several cars were destroyed.

Sheriff's deputy Robert James said trouble obviously developed immediately after takeoff and the plane had swung completely around in an effort to return to the airport when it dived into the ground.

Corn Crop Is Threatened by New Disease

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—The nation's corn crop this year appears fated to suffer some inroads from a newly-recognized plant disease, maize dwarf mosaic.

The affliction, at first thought to be familiar disease called corn stunt, turned up two years ago in bottomland fields of Arkansas and Ohio. It has since been recognized in five other states, including Missouri. Corn stunt disease, found in Kansas and other states, is being examined.

It has farmers worried and scientists puzzled, because its nature has not yet been fully proved, and defenses against it have yet to be developed.

Prof. H. H. Thornberry, plant pathologist at the University of Illinois, said today that the disease has been proved infectious. But much work remains to be done in establishing its full nature and in developing hybrids which can resist it.

The destructive potential of maize dwarf mosaic, Thornberry said, was demonstrated last year dramatically in Ohio where yield loss was estimated at five million bushels.

Thornberry and M. C. Shurtleff, a fellow plant pathologist at the University of Illinois, reported in the winter issue of the technical bulletin, Illinois Research, that some 2,000 acres were infected in southern Illinois last year.

"Although economic loss in Illinois was relatively light last year," they said, "we need only to look to Ohio to recognize the potential threat of the disease."

Besides Arkansas, Ohio and Illinois, the new strain has been found in Indiana, Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky. An infestation in Iowa is under investigation.

States where a corn stunt disease is being re-examined are Mississippi, Louisiana, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Kansas and Alabama.

The two diseases have similar symptoms, discolored streaks of yellow in plant leaves, and a stunted development, especially when the plants are infected early in the season.

Serum from infected plants does infect healthy plants, the Illinois scientists demonstrated. They also found that the apparent transmitted agents are aphids which winter in Johnson Grass.

Vote Count of Steel Workers At Standstill

PITTSBURGH AP -- The vote count in the United Steelworkers election drifted almost to a standstill today with both candidates for president still predicting victory.

The steel industry, meanwhile, said the inconclusive election has had no effect on orders.

I. W. Abel, the union's secretary - treasurer, shut his Chicago campaign headquarters Friday night, confident he had unseated incumbent David J. McDonald.

McDonald, steelworkers president for 12 years, said at a news conference in Pittsburgh that he would be returned to office but declined to predict his victory on the basis of figures he had tabulated.

Three Health Care Programs Being Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal program to provide health care for the elderly is picking its way through the congressional labyrinth again this year. Most observers expect it will win approval.

But the situation is somewhat tangled because three versions are actually under discussion: one that has President Johnson's backing; another espoused by many House Republicans, and a third that was prepared by the American Medical Association.

Here, in question and answer form, is a run-down and a comparison:

Q. Will Congress pass a health care for the aged bill this year?

A. All signs point to approval of something along the line of President Johnson's proposal for hospital benefits for those 65 or older.

Q. How far would it go?

A. It would be limited to some hospitalization, convalescent care in nursing home or at home and some diagnostic and similar outpatient services. Ordinary doctor bills and medicines would not be covered.

Q. Isn't there other legislation pending in Congress that would provide broader health benefits?

A. Yes. Two bills that have been much discussed lately call for covering many more kinds of health costs. These are a bill introduced by Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., in behalf of a group of Republicans and another measure drafted on suggestion of the American Medical Association.

Q. Why isn't everybody for these, if they would do more for the old folks?

A. Several factors are involved, mainly coverage and cost. The Administration bill would provide its limited benefits to all those 65 and over as a matter of right, without questioning them on income or property, and without cost to the beneficiary after he has retired.

Byrnes' bill would offer broader benefits to all the aged, but those who could pay would be charged a premium, which he estimates would average $6 a person a month.

The AMA bill contemplates covering the aged by private health insurance, with help to lower-income persons in paying the premiums. The states would set the financial standards at which retired persons would qualify for help.

Q. So the question is whether the aged as a group would prefer to have limited help for all at no cost to them, or to have the possibility of bigger benefits, but with an income factor in one way or another?

A. That's one question. Another is the impact of the various plans on public funds.

The Administration plan is designed to be self-financing, with an additional pay roll tax on those still working and on their employers providing nearly all the cost. There would be a limited contribution from the general treasury for a while, to pay the way for persons already 65 and not covered by Social Security.

Byrnes' plan would look to the general federal treasury for about two-thirds of the cost, with the remainder coming from premiums. The AMA plan would use both state and general federal funds.

Q. How much would the various plans cost?

A. Plenty, and beyond that you get into arguments. Backers of each tend to say that the costs of the others have been underestimed. Social Security actuaries estimate the Administration plan would have a first-year cost of about $1.7 billion, all of which would be raised from the new pay roll tax on employers and employes, plus about $50 million net from the general treasury. The $50 million would be the difference between the amount the federal government would put up for the benefits to the aged not covered by Social Security, and the savings that would come from reduced welfare expenditures for some of these same people.

Byrnes has estimated the cost of his plan, above what would be contributed in premiums, at $2 billion to $2.4 billion, all out of the federal treasury, assuming all those eligible signed up, which he says is unlikely.

There is no way to figure accurately in advance the cost of the AMA plan, because so much would depend on the standards established by the states. Its backers say it would cost less than the Administration plan.

Q. So it's all settled that the Administration bill is the one that is going to pass?

A. By no means. Backers of the others are fighting hard to have theirs substituted in whole or in part. Moreover, the bill that comes out of the Ways and Means Committee will not be exactly the Administration bill as introduced, although the main outlines likely will be the same.

That is why no very meaningful comparisons of benefits and costs with the rival measures can now be made. But, given the heavy Democratic majorities in the committees and in the two chambers of Congress, it now seems probable that a bill close enough to the original to please Johnson will be enacted.

And in "The Philanderer," he cracked:

"The fickleness of the women I love is only equalled by the infernal constancy of the women who love me."

And:

"Though women are angels, yet wedlock's the devil."

Jerome K. Jerome opined that "love is like the measles; we all have to go through with it."

A DAY FOR 'AFFAIRS OF THE HEART'

Sunday is St. Valentine's Day. There will be new, young faces among the ranks of this year's celebrants, but the spirit of the day will conform to tradition-- a throwback to the Elizabethan era when gentleman pursued their ladies with romantic couplets each February 14, the Feast of Juno, goddess of marriage. Today the couplets go by mail, some would gray the hair of true romantics and, often, the pursuer of old is now the pursued. But these changes are minor. There will still be gay dances, and gifts will be exchanged as tokens of affection, for even in our automated society, St. Vanentine's Day commemorates "Affairs of the heart."

In recent years, in fact, this significance has deepened. St. Valentine's Day has become the mid-point of the annual Heart Fund drive, also dedicated to "affairs of the heart." This added meaning, we think, is most appropriate, for what could be more apt on this day for hearts than some special recognition of the organization working for the hearts of all of us? On a day symbolized by giving gifts from the heart, what could be more meaningful than an extra gift to the Heart Fund to help protect the hearts of all we love?

COMMON MARKET AND FARM PRICES

Under a time table laid down by France last December, Monday (Feb. 15) would be the deadline for a European Common Market agreement on unified prices for meat and dairy products.

BEHIND THE FACADE of the European Common Market, the inflexible Charles de Gaulle is quietly allowing himself to flex. That would appear to be the real meaning of an agreement between the Common Market and the United States to put off trade bargaining on most farm products until Sept. 15. Originally this bargaining was to have been part of the tariff talks beginning in Geneva on April 1.

France on Dec. 17 -- only 24 hours after the Common Market had met a French ultimatum on grain prices by giving De Gaulle sweeping concessions -- announced a new schedule for agreement on other farm products. For meat and dairy products the agreement deadline was mid - February; for fruit and vegetables, the end of February; for sugar, June 1.

It now appears that these deadlines will not all be met, and that De Gaulle will curb his impatience, if any. This would be in contrast to his threat to pull out of the Common Market if his grain ultimatum had not been met.

WEST GERMAN CHANCELLOR Ludwig Erhard had fought De Gaulle for 12 months on grains, trying to protect the high prices received by his less productive farmers. Subsequently, at his Feb. 4 press conference, De Gaulle proved that he was a generous victor. That was the logic behind the new French appeal for German reunification -- a gift to Erhard in the election year of 1965.

De Gaulle after so signal a victory is not likely to repeat his threat to pull out of the Market. Indeed, the reference at the press conference was to his old idea of building a Europe that exists "from the Atlantic to the Urals." The American correspondent Claire Sterling probably did not overstate the case when she wrote from Brussels, where the grain agreement was reached: "By goading the Six into breaking the long deadlock on farm prices, he (De Gaulle) has in fact pushed them so irreversibly toward complete economic integration that none of them -- France least of all -- could conceivably back out of the Common Market any more."

Even earlier, in a report at the October meeting of the European Parliament, Andre Ross of France had observed: "The withdrawal o one country would not solve the agricultura price - fixing problem. On the contrary, the hope of finding additional farm markets would vanish. Industry would be hard hit by the probable tariff reprisals."

THE GRAIN AGREEMENT means that negotiating on that commodity will begin in Geneva shortly. Eventually a slowing down of U. S. wheat exports may be expected, but other farm products will probably go to the six-nation trade group in larger volume. Greater shipments of soybeans and soybean products, feed grains, corn, grain sorghum, barley, and oats are expected.

Europe's growing and increasingly prosperous population is eating more meat as living standards rise. The Community is a net importer of cattle for slaughter. Even if common prices encourage intra - community production of meat, a better market for American feed grains and soybeans would be in order. But the net effect on American agriculture of the Kennedy round of tariff talks remains to be seen -- and has just been further postponed.

FRIENDSHIP DAY

The world will be watching how the Soviet Union and Communist China observe the 15th anniversary of the signing of their economic and military treaty on Saturday (Feb. 13).

ANGRY FRIENDSHIP, Edmund Burke declared almost two hundred years ago, is sometimes as bad as calm enmity. At this late date the Chinese and Russian Communists are proving the great conservation a prophet as well as a statesman. If they follow the pattern of recent years, the 15th anniversary of their friendship treaty will be marked mostly by recriminations.

Last year, for example, the Soviet Union observed the anniversary -- Feb. 13 -- by blaming Peking for the "undesirable turn" in relations between the Communist neighbors. Izvestia listed Soviet economic aid since the treaty was signed and went on: "It was not the Soviet people's fault that during recent times the economic cooperation of China with our country was reduced."

A year earlier, Chang Chih-hsiang, secretary of the Chinese-Soviet Friendship Association, had declared that the "great friendship and unity between the Chinese and Soviet people are indestructible." At the same time he attacked the revisionism of President Tito of Yugoslavia. When the Communist Chinese bother to be subtle, they attack the Russian Communists through their friendship with the Yugoslavs.

THE CHINESE COMMUNISTS contend: 1) that the struggle between socialism (communism) and capitalism has not been changed by the advent of nuclear weapons, 2) that genuine peace cannot be assured while imperialism survives, and 3) that socialism's victory cannot be attained without war.

The 20th Soviet Party in 1956 laid out the policy of "peaceful coexistence" -- or in the words of Nikita Khrushchev, "the repudiation of war as a means of solving controversial issues."

The Soviet Union since 1959 has steadily reduced economic and military aid to Red China. Thousands of Russian technical advisors and specialists were abruptly recalled in the summer of 1960. Earlier the Russians had cut off nuclear assistance.

THE NEW BREED in the Kremlin indicated at the recent meeting of the Supreme Soviet no change from the old Khrushchev positions. High priority was given to consumer goods and living standards, increased freedom was promised in industrial management, and extension or probing feelers toward the West was resumed.

More recently a quiet flirtation with President De Gaulle has become apparent -- though it must be admitted that France seems to be doing the wooing. China also has been making eyes at De Gaulle. And Pravda on Jan. 31 said the Soviet Union looks with favor on President Johnson's invitation for Russian leaders to visit the United States. The announcement was in a sense a double slur on the Chinese Reds, for it came only hours after a Kremlin announcement that Premier Alexei N. Kosygin would lead a Soviet delegation to North Viet Nam. Hanoi is generally considered Red China's own fief.

To revise the Broadwayese, with friends like the Russians, the Chinese Reds don't need any enemies. And vice versa.

This is St. Valentine's Day, which should be a proper occasion for the flagellation of that ugly and evil old man, George Bernard Shaw, who ran a dead heat with Oscar Wilde in saying unnice things about love, romance and the sweetpatootie routine.

Even if his own life gave the lie to many of his utterances, GBS righly earned the reputation of being an old curmudgeon concerning the sweetest story ever told. Valentine should be the day to nail his hide to the barn door.

Some Cynic, perhaps Shaw, remarked that "courtship is the process of a woman pursuing a man until she catches him."

He also growled:

"It is a woman's business to get married as soon as possible, and a man's to keep unmarried as long as he can."

Did you ever? That old man must have been weaned on a pickle.

NEW YORK CITY'S GOALS FOR PUBLIC WELFARE

The philosophy of New York' huge Department of Welfare has become that of the federal government, thanks to the city's commissioner of welfare, James R. Dumpson.

Dumpson states in the Catholic Digest that "the goals of public welfare should be: 1. prevention of destitution; and 2. rehabilitation of those who are dependent. In other words, don't place total emphasis on eligibility--any one in need is eligible. Instead, render the services that keep people from becoming destitute."

Overseeing the spending of one-third of 1 billion each year, Dumpson has a ready answer for his critics. "Isn't it a crime not to spend a dollar if you can save a human life? After all, the best case for public welfare comes out of our Judeo-Christian heritage. The motive behind public welfare is that I am my brother's keeper."

WHITE HOUSE FIRST

79 years ago this June, the society pages of newspapers all over the U. S. carried accounts of a marriage ceremony unique in orange blossom history. It was the White House wedding of President Grover Cleveland to his former ward, Miss Frances Folsom, the first and only instance of a U. S. Chief of State taking his marriage vows while in office. The bridegroom president was 49 at the time of his marriage, and his bride, the daughter of Cleveland's former law partner, was almost thirty years his junior. The wedding took place on June 2, 1886.

If it is folly to kill the goose that laid the golden egg, then it is even greater folly to kill the goose before the golden egg is laid.

This is the apparent attitude taken by the nation's independent business proprietors in strongly opposing the repeal of Section 140, the "right to work" clause of the Taft-Hartley Act. On three separate nationwide polls made on this issue in the last few years, the businessmen have opposed it by average majorities of 80%.

This is mentioned in the monthly mailing released today to the economic departments of the nation's high schools, colleges and universities by the National Federation of Independent Business.

In discussing the matter, C. Wilson Harder, president of the Federation, said that the emotional tides evoked by the issue should be disregarded and instead every consideration given to the economic factor.

He said that the position of the independent businessmen is that if the economically underdeveloped states of the nation are forced to comply with labor terms imposed on the big industrial complex cities, there will result a system of economic colonialism in America.

The discussion takes the position that more than 50% of the people live in 25% of the land area of the nation, and that enterprise located in other parts of the country, in order to compete in this market, must compensate for increased transportation expenses. He also stated that what is required to furnish a high level of living for a worker in a state such as Wyoming is much less than that required by his counterpart in one of the crowded industrial complexes of the East. This concentration of industry in those areas, he also asserts, has created the urban problems for which the entire nation is now taxed in an attempt to solve them. Repeal of Section 14b would only intensify concentration and the resulting problems, he states.

MEDICARE BILL BENEFITS EXAGGERATED, SAYS MILLS

If the Medicare plan should be enacted under Social Security it may have the paradoxical effect of proving a disappointment to the very elderly persons it is supposed to help.

That is the opinion of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee who insists that the provisions of the proposed legislation have been exaggerated by its supporters to the point that they wrongfully picture the extent of the benefits.

"Contrary to the widespread assumption on the part of many elderly people," Chairman Mills has said, "the bill does not cover such items as doctors' visits to the home, visits to doctors' offices, surgical devices, drugs which many elderly people require, private nursing services or any nursing home services except when the patient has come out of a hospital and goes into a hospital-affiliated nursing home."

Chairman Mills added that his mail indicates that many elderly people mistakenly believe that Medicare will take care of all their hospital and medical requirements.

"This simply is not true," he said. "Unfortunately, 'Medicare under Social Security' has become an all-embracing slogan which in my opinion has not advanced the cause of those who need it."

I am against federal aid to education--This positively means federal control of education, as the Department of Health, Education and Welfare admitted in a secret document. The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON-- Administration officials have assured Senate leaders confidentially that President Johnson did his best to avoid an incident in North Viet Nam during Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's visit.

The President personally called off all surveillance flights over North Viet Nam. He also stopped a clandestine raid on the North Vietnamese coast by U. S. Navy boats disguised as fishing vessels.

He wanted to take no action that might affront the Kremlin leader at a time of continuing East-West thaw. Significantly, Kosygin also coupled his trip to North Viet Nam with an announcement that he hope to exchange visits with President Johnson.

But the Sunday sneak attack on the American airstrip at Pleiku, killing and wou[illegible]al GIs, shattered the President's patience.

Still he tried to avoid trouble with Russia, Senate leaders were told, by sending Soviet expert Llewellyn Thompson to explain to Russian Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin why the retaliatory raids were necessary. Dobrynin was given assurances that every precaution would be taken to assure Kosygin's safety.

To make sure there was no slip-up, the President ordered attacking pilots not to bomb through the clouds. He wanted to be sure they saw and recognized their targets before striking.

This would eliminate any chance of bombing a target near Kosygin by mistake. The President also wanted to spare innocent civilians who might be killed by blind bombing.

In the past, Johnson has resisted the appeals of his military advisers for attacks upon North Viet Nam.

"You fellows think a bomb is the solution to every problem," he once told them.

He was supported by Vice President Hubert Humphrey, who argued that bombing North Viet Nam would be "obscene." The Vice President favored meeting ambush with ambush, sabotage with sabotage.

It took the attack on Pleiku to persuade them that retaliatory raids were necessary.

As for the future, President Johnson told Congressional leaders: "We are going to respond to Communist provocations, but we are desperately trying to keep from getting involved in another Korea."

--POWELL AND POLICE--

Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem Globetrotter, demanded and got an apology from Federal Aviation Authorities the other day for ticketing his illegally parked car.

He was driven to Washington National Airport by Odell Clark, an aide, who pulled up to the entrance at an angle that blocked two lanes of traffic.

When Clark at last emerged, one airport policeman was parking the car and another was writing out a ticket.

Clark informed the officer that the car belonged to Congressman Powell. This failed to impress the policeman, who kept scribbling away.

"Congressman Powell doesn't get tickets," said Clark.

"Well, he has just got his first ticket of the year," disagreed the officer.

A few more sharp words were spoken, and the policeman volunteered that he "would never vote for Powell."

A few days later, airport authorities received an angry letter from Congressman Powell demanding that the policeman come to his office and apologize.

Instead of sending the policeman, G. Ward Hobbs, director of the two Washington airports, showed up in the Congressman's office with the canceled ticket.

Apparently some lawmakers are above the law.

--GREGORY'S HUMOR--

Dick Gregory, the Negro comedian, has been in more jails than the Rev. Martin Luther King but has never lost his sense of humor. He can calm an angry crowd or put a nightclub crowd in stitches with equal ease.

At the beginning of President Johnson's "National Children's Dental Health Week," Mrs. Helen Blumberg of Philadelphia held a luncheon to promote better dental care for children. Gregory was the principal speaker.

He was presented with an electric GE toothbrush which he accepted with a quip: "Being around Drew Pearson on that Mississippi turkey deal has made me Washington conscious. I'm almost afraid to accept any gifts."

He also agreed to pose with a giant toothbrush as if scrubbing his gleaming molars.

Referring to the nation's youth, he said: "My son told me the other day, 'Dad, I'm going to run away from home. Call me a taxi.'

Inside Labor

By VICTOR RIESEL

President Angered By Danger Of New Strike Crises

Washington, D. C.: -- Behind President Johnson's cold fury over the $2 billion waterfront stoppage has been the fear of a new fever -- strike fever.

Work stoppages are contagious and with war bulletins pouring in, the nation can ill afford an epidemic of strikes. Few realize that the season is just ripe for such a chain reaction amongst hundreds of thousands of workers in the nation's key industries.

On the 31st day of the longshoremen's paralysis, with 800 heavily laden ships frozen in or just outside U. S. ports from Maine to Mexico, White House insiders were briefed on looming new labor crises.

Within six weeks union contracts begin to expire in the strategic rubber and aerospace installations across the land.

These expirations run right on through the end of the year affecting such companies as Goodyear, Firestone, Goodrich, Boeing, Douglas, North American Aviation, Martin-Marietta and Ling - Temco-Vought.

Just how high the demands on these basic space, defense, industrial corporations will run won't be known until after the auto union aerospace council meets in San Diego Feb. 25 and 26.

Certainly since the longshoremen have already gotten hikes of 20 cents an hour and the auto workers won just about as much during long strikes last year, the aerospace workers will demand as much.

Their leader is the auto union's hard - bargaining Leonard Woodcock who also heads the UAW's General Motors division. And certainly the aerospace companies, whose biggest customer is the U. S. government, will resist.

In the midst of all this will come the snarled steel industry negotiations which will affect over a million workers.

Adding a strain to the already sleepless Labor Secretary Wirtz, who has been briefing the President personally and regularly, is a sleeper crisis.

Sometime in May the already distraught ship owners will begin bargaining with some really tough labor leaders -- those who lead the 100,000 men who actually go to sea.

Their contract expires on June 15. Let no one be surprised if there is another dockside tieup, this time hitting the West Coast, Alaska and Hawaii as well as the Maine to Mexico stretch.

With two billion dollars as the estimated cost of a month of longshore stoppage, there's no doubt that massive strikes in the other key fields would far more than triple such losses in the event of long walkouts in the next six months.

The President already has been angered by the fact that his labor friends would do this to him and to the country itself. Reportedly he hit the White House ceiling when he was informed that the dockers walkout had kept $67 million a day from being exported. Since $44 million a day is the import figure, the U. S. lost a balance of $23 million daily in the first month of the pier stoppage.

True, some of this will be made up, but the figure which irritated the President was the immediate loss of $690 million in the first month of the dockside strike. This is disastrously high at a moment when each dollar is vital to the gold reserve.

Furthermore, millions of dollars have been lost in taxes. In all there were some 23,000 fully loaded freight cars immobilized right in the harbors and as many more embargoed across the country. Each car holds an average of 40 tons.

With no place to load and unload and no freight cars heading for the ports, at least 45,000 railroad workers and truck drivers were laid off. In all, about 190,000 men went jobless in those first 31 days.

They lost millions of dollars in wages and companies' profits were equally cut. Thus the tax income level will be off for the year.

And most dangerous in this period is the fact that it will take six to eight weeks to clear up all stalled traffic. Small wonder the president and his advisers are deeply disturbed by the threat of strike fever.

A DAY FOR 'AFFAIRS OF THE HEART'

Sunday is St. Valentine's Day. There will be new, young faces among the ranks of this year's celebrants, but the spirit of the day will conform to tradition-- a throwback to the Elizabethan era when gentleman pursued their ladies with romantic couplets each February 14, the Feast of Juno, goddess of marriage. Today the couplets go by mail, some would gray the hair of true romantics and, often, the pursuer of old is now the pursued. But these changes are minor. There will still be gay dances, and gifts will be exchanged as tokens of affection, for even in our automated society, St. Vanentine's Day commemorates "Affairs of the heart."

In recent years, in fact, this significance has deepened. St. Valentine's Day has become the mid-point of the annual Heart Fund drive, also dedicated to "affairs of the heart." This added meaning, we think, is most appropriate, for what could be more apt on this day for hearts than some special recognition of the organization working for the hearts of all of us? On a day symbolized by giving gifts from the heart, what could be more meaningful than an extra gift to the Heart Fund to help protect the hearts of all we love?

COMMON MARKET AND FARM PRICES

Under a time table laid down by France last December, Monday (Feb. 15) would be the deadline for a European Common Market agreement on unified prices for meat and dairy products.

BEHIND THE FACADE of the European Common Market, the inflexible Charles de Gaulle is quietly allowing himself to flex. That would appear to be the real meaning of an agreement between the Common Market and the United States to put off trade bargaining on most farm products until Sept. 15. Originally this bargaining was to have been part of the tariff talks beginning in Geneva on April 1.

France on Dec. 17 -- only 24 hours after the Common Market had met a French ultimatum on grain prices by giving De Gaulle sweeping concessions -- announced a new schedule for agreement on other farm products. For meat and dairy products the agreement deadline was mid - February; for fruit and vegetables, the end of February; for sugar, June 1.

It now appears that these deadlines will not all be met, and that De Gaulle will curb his impatience, if any. This would be in contrast to his threat to pull out of the Common Market if his grain ultimatum had not been met.

WEST GERMAN CHANCELLOR Ludwig Erhard had fought De Gaulle for 12 months on grains, trying to protect the high prices received by his less productive farmers. Subsequently, at his Feb. 4 press conference, De Gaulle proved that he was a generous victor. That was the logic behind the new French appeal for German reunification -- a gift to Erhard in the election year of 1965.

De Gaulle after so signal a victory is not likely to repeat his threat to pull out of the Market. Indeed, the reference at the press conference was to his old idea of building a Europe that exists "from the Atlantic to the Urals." The American correspondent Claire Sterling probably did not overstate the case when she wrote from Brussels, where the grain agreement was reached: "By goading the Six into breaking the long deadlock on farm prices, he (De Gaulle) has in fact pushed them so irreversibly toward complete economic integration that none of them -- France least of all -- could conceivably back out of the Common Market any more.'

Even earlier, in a report at the October meeting of the European Parliament, Andre Ross of France had observed: "The withdrawal o one country would not solve the agricultura price - fixing problem. On the contrary, the hope of finding additional farm markets would vanish. Industry would be hard hit by the probable tariff reprisals."

THE GRAIN AGREEMENT means that negotiating on that commodity will begin in Geneva shortly. Eventually a slowing down of U. S. wheat exports may be expected, but other farm products will probably go to the six-nation trade group in larger volume. Greater shipments of soybeans and soybean products, feed grains, corn, grain sorghum, barley, and oats are expected.

Europe's growing and increasingly prosperous population is eating more meat as living standards rise. The Community is a net importer of cattle for slaughter. Even if common prices encourage intra - community production of meat, a better market for American feed grains and soybeans would be in order. But the net effect on American agriculture of the Kennedy round of tariff talks remains to be seen -- and has just been further postponed.

In discussing the matter, C. Wilson Harder, president of the Federation, said that the emotional tides evoked by the issue should be disregarded and instead every consideration given to the economic factor.

He said that the position of the independent businessmen is that if the economically underdeveloped states of the nation are forced to comply with labor terms imposed on the big industrial complex cities, there will result a system of economic colonialism in America.

The discussion takes the position that more than 50% of the people live in 25% of the land area of the nation, and that enterprise located in other parts of the country, in order to compete in this market, must compensate for increased transportation expenses. He also stated that what is required to furnish a high level of living for a worker in a state such as Wyoming is much less than that required by his counterpart in one of the crowded industrial complexes of the East. This concentration of industry in those areas, he also asserts, has created the urban problems for which the entire nation is now taxed in an attempt to solve them. Repeal of Section 14b would only intensify concentration and the resulting problems, he states.

MEDICARE BILL BENEFITS EXAGGERATED, SAYS MILLS

If the Medicare plan should be enacted under Social Security it may have the paradoxical effect of proving a disappointment to the very elderly persons it is supposed to help.

That is the opinion of Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee who insists that the provisions of the proposed legislation have been exaggerated by its supporters to the point that they wrongfully picture the extent of the benefits.

"Contrary to the widespread assumption on the part of many elderly people," Chairman Mills has said, "the bill does not cover such items as doctors' visits to the home, visits to doctors' offices, surgical devices, drugs which many elderly people require, private nursing services or any nursing home services except when the patient has come out of a hospital and goes into a hospital-affiliated nursing home."

Chairman Mills added that his mail indicates that many elderly people mistakenly believe that Medicare will take care of all their hospital and medical requirements.

"This simply is not true," he said. "Unfortunately, 'Medicare under Social Security' has become an all-embracing slogan which in my opinion has not advanced the cause of those who need it."

"Ask him yourself," she replied. "He's shaving you."

When Russia saw Unk was trying to save face and get out of Vietnam she gave him orders to get out. Now the question is, does Unk value face above any other part of his anatomy? Like Asians do? If Unk does decide to pull out then that would make it even. Otherwise it looks like Russia will never get over the pull out from Cuba. Russia had no business in Cuba in the first place. Most folks think the same could be said of Unk in Vietnam.

I am against federal aid to education--This positively means federal control of education, as the Department of Health, Education and Welfare admitted in a secret document. So-called federal "aid" is a hoax; the money can only come from the taxpayers, back home. Education is a matter for local communitites, not Washington bureaucrats.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON-- Administration officials have assured Senate leaders confidentially that President Johnson did his best to avoid an incident in North Viet Nam during Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's visit.

The President personally called off all surveillance flights over North Viet Nam. He also stopped a clandestine raid on the North Vietnamese coast by U. S. Navy boats disguised as fishing vessels.

He wanted to take no action that might affront the Kremlin leader at a time of continuing East-West thaw. Significantly, Kosygin also coupled his trip to North Viet Nam with an announcement that he hope to exchange visits with President Johnson.

But the Sunday sneak attack on the American airstrip at Pleiku, killing and wou[illegible]al GIs, shattered the President's patience.

Still he tried to avoid trouble with Russia, Senate leaders were told, by sending Soviet expert Llewellyn Thompson to explain to Russian Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin why the retaliatory raids were necessary. Dobrynin was given assurances that every precaution would be taken to assure Kosygin's safety.

To make sure there was no slip-up, the President ordered attacking pilots not to bomb through the clouds. He wanted to be sure they saw and recognized their targets before striking.

This would eliminate any chance of bombing a target near Kosygin by mistake. The President also wanted to spare innocent civilians who might be killed by blind bombing.

In the past, Johnson has resisted the appeals of his military advisers for attacks upon North Viet Nam.

"You fellows think a bomb is the solution to every problem," he once told them.

He was supported by Vice President Hubert Humphrey, who argued that bombing North Viet Nam would be "obscene." The Vice President favored meeting ambush with ambush, sabotage with sabotage.

It took the attack on Pleiku to persuade them that retaliatory raids were necessary.

As for the future, President Johnson told Congressional leaders: "We are going to respond to Communist provocations, but we are desperately trying to keep from getting involved in another Korea."

--POWELL AND POLICE--

Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, the Harlem Globetrotter, demanded and got an apology from Federal Aviation Authorities the other day for ticketing his illegally parked car.

He was driven to Washington National Airport by Odell Clark, an aide, who pulled up to the entrance at an angle that blocked two lanes of traffic.

When Clark at last emerged, one airport policeman was parking the car and another was writing out a ticket.

Clark informed the officer that the car belonged to Congressman Powell. This failed to impress the policeman, who kept scribbling away.

"Congressman Powell doesn't get tickets," said Clark.

"Well, he has just got his first ticket of the year," disagreed the officer.

A few more sharp words were spoken, and the policeman volunteered that he "would never vote for Powell."

A few days later, airport authorities received an angry letter from Congressman Powell demanding that the policeman come to his office and apologize.

Instead of sending the policeman, G. Ward Hobbs, director of the two Washington airports, showed up in the Congressman's office with the canceled ticket.

Apparently some lawmakers are above the law.

--GREGORY'S HUMOR--

Dick Gregory, the Negro comedian, has been in more jails than the Rev. Martin Luther King but has never lost his sense of humor. He can calm an angry crowd or put a night-club crowd in stitches with equal ease.

At the beginning of President Johnson's "National Children's Dental Health Week," Mrs. Helen Blumberg of Philadelphia held a luncheon to promote better dental care for children. Gregory was the principal speaker.

He was presented with an electric GE toothbrush which he accepted with a quip: "Being around Drew Pearson on that Mississippi turkey deal has made me Washington conscious. I'm almost afraid to accept any gifts."

He also agreed to pose with a giant toothbrush as if scrubbing his gleaming molars.

Referring to the nation's youth, he said: "My son told me the other day, 'Dad, I'm going to run away from home. Call me a taxi.'

Inside Labor

By VICTOR RIESEL

President Angered By Danger Of New Strike Crises

Washington, D. C.: -- Behind President Johnson's cold fury over the $2 billion waterfront stoppage has been the fear of a new fever -- strike fever.

Work stoppages are contagious and with war bulletins pouring in, the nation can ill afford an epidemic of strikes. Few realize that the season is just ripe for such a chain reaction amongst hundreds of thousands of workers in the nation's key industries.

On the 31st day of the longshoremen's paralysis, with 800 heavily laden ships frozen in or just outside U. S. ports from Maine to Mexico, White House insiders were briefed on looming new labor crises.

Within six weeks union contracts begin to expire in the strategic rubber and aerospace installations across the land.

These expirations run right on through the end of the year affecting such companies as Goodyear, Firestone, Goodrich, Boeing, Douglas, North American Aviation, Martin-Marietta and Ling - Temco-Vought.

Just how high the demands on these basic space, defense, industrial corporations will run won't be known until after the auto union aerospace council meets in San Diego Feb. 25 and 26.

Certainly since the longshoremen have already gotten hikes of 20 cents an hour and the auto workers won just about as much during long strikes last year, the aerospace workers will demand as much.

Their leader is the auto union's hard - bargaining Leonard Woodcock who also heads the UAW's General Motors division. And certainly the aerospace companies, whose biggest customer is the U. S. government, will resist.

In the midst of all this will come the snarled steel industry negotiations which will affect over a million workers.

Adding a strain to the already sleepless Labor Secretary Wirtz, who has been briefing the President personally and regularly, is a sleeper crisis.

Sometime in May the already distraught ship owners will begin bargaining with some really tough labor leaders -- those who lead the 100,000 men who actually go to sea.

Their contract expires on June 15. Let no one be surprised if there is another dockside tieup, this time hitting the West Coast, Alaska and Hawaii as well as the Maine to Mexico stretch.

With two billion dollars as the estimated cost of a month of longshore stoppage, there's no doubt that massive strikes in the other key fields would far more than triple such losses in the event of long walkouts in the next six months.

The President already has been angered by the fact that his labor friends would do this to him and to the country itself. Reportedly he hit the White House ceiling when he was informed that the dockers walkout had kept $67 million a day from being exported. Since $44 million a day is the import figure, the U. S. lost a balance of $23 million daily in the first month of the pier stoppage.

True, some of this will be made up, but the figure which irritated the President was the immediate loss of $690 million in the first month of the dockside strike. This is disastrously high at a moment when each dollar is vital to the gold reserve.

Furthermore, millions of dollars have been lost in taxes. In all there were some 23,000 fully loaded freight cars immobilized right in the harbors and as many more embargoed across the country. Each car holds an average of 40 tons.

With no place to load and unload and no freight cars heading for the ports, at least 45,000 railroad workers and truck drivers were laid off. In all, about 190,000 men went jobless in those first 31 days.

They lost millions of dollars in wages and companies' profits were equally cut. Thus the tax income level will be off for the year.

And most dangerous in this period is the fact that it will take six to eight weeks to clear up all stalled traffic. Small wonder the president and his advisers are deeply disturbed by the threat of strike fever.

My passport picture is a nifty.
It makes me look both grim and shifty.

As though I had escaped from jail.
The most distressing aspect of it
Is that my closest friends just love it.
It seems they're pleased as they can be
Because it looks so much like me.

This is a three-semester-hour course and will meet each Tuesday from 7--10 p.m. for 17 weeks.

Those interested in this course, but who have not enrolled should contact Dolan Rogers at GR 1-5440 before the next meeting.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: My fiance, Bob, and I are both 20. We have been going together for two years. Bob wants to be married next May. My problem is that I don't know if I should marry him.

Friday night we planned to go to the movies. The last complete show started at 10:05. We arrived at the box-office at 10:15 and found it closed.

Bob was so furious he pulled out of the parking lot like a maniac and careened down the street at a dangerously high rate of speed. He kept saying "I have to get this out of my system."

Finally he swerved off to a side-street and drove into an alley. He brought the car to a screeching halt and put his head in his hands and cried. I sat silent for about 10 minutes while he sobbed. Suddenly he changed the subject and was extremely pleasant as we rode back to my house.

I'm afraid Bob may take his erratic temper out on me after we are married. What do you think? —DESPERATE

Dear Desperate: A 20-year-old man who deals with frustration at an infantile level is the worst possible husband material. This boy needs psychiatric help, not a wife. And you need to go with others for two years at least, to see if the young man is ever going to grow up.

The letter below is from a woman who married such a man. Please read on:

Dear Ann Landers: Can you help me? My husband has a TNT temper. I try awfully hard not to rile him — even to the point where I have memorized a list of things I must not do, or subjects I must not bring up.

It is useless. One wrong word and the table or chair gets a kick or I am in for a terrible tongue lashing.

On the highway he is forever cursing the other drivers, trying to pass them if he feels they have passed him "for spite." He takes everything as a personal affront — a chance shove in a crowded area is always "on purpose." If it rains on a day he had planned to do some gardening he just sits and sulks for hours — won't even read.

Worst of all is his violent temper. He explodes over nothing and now I am the target. What can I do so his outbursts do not hurt so much? Thank you for any help you might give. —FLORADORA GIRL

Dear Girl: Your husband's inability to deal with frustration demonstrates that, emotionally, he is still in knee pants. He needs professional help. If he refuses to get it, I hope you will handle this childish behavior as you would a child's tantrum. Let him blow himself out and ignore him.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old girl who has just started to date. I need some answers to a few questions which have been bothering me.

One certain 17-year-old boy comes over almost every Friday evening to watch TV. He always gets tired and wants to lie down on the sofa or the floor. Then he pulls me down next to him. Before I know it he is getting very comfortable with his head in my lap.

I don't know if this is wrong or not. When I suggested that maybe he should not lie down he told me he needs to relax after a hard week in school and if I won't let him relax at my house he will find a girl who is not so formal.

Please tell me if I am being prudish. — UNCERTAIN

Dear Uncertain: Any 17-year-old kid who is so tired he can't sit up when he goes to visit his girl should be sent home. I have stated my rules for necking. "Both parties sitting up—four feet on the floor, and all hands on deck."

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

A young woman, trying on a new bikini in her apartment, noticed that there was a window washer outside her picture window. As she stood there in her living room, he continued to wash the window. She moved up closer and paraded back and forth. Still unnoticing, he continued to wash the window. Finally she opened one of the side windows -- whereupon the man said to her, "What's the matter, lady -- haven't you ever seen a window washer before?"

A DILLY DALI

My passport picture is a nifty.
It makes me look both grim and shifty.
Unprepossessing, wan and pale.
As though I had escaped from jail.
The most distressing aspect of it
Is that my closest friends just love it.
It seems they're pleased as they can be

LET THAT BE A LESSON, SISTER

The story is told 'bout a lady of old,
Curiosity her blinding fault
Who dared to look back, alas an' alack,
She turned into a pillar of salt!
Well, a gal of today was made the same way,
Curiosity rankled her soul,
But when she looked back (from the wheel of a car)
She turned into a telephone pole!

This is a three-semester-hour course and will meet each Tuesday from 7--10 p.m. for 17 weeks.

Those interested in this course, but who have not enrolled should contact Dolan Rogers at GR 1-5440 before the next meeting.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: My fiance, Bob, and I are both 20. We have been going together for two years. Bob wants to be married next May. My problem is that I don't know if I should marry him.

Friday night we planned to go to the movies. The last complete show started at 10:05. We arrived at the box-office at 10:15 and found it closed.

Bob was so furious he pulled out of the parking lot like a maniac and careened down the street at a dangerously high rate of speed. He kept saying "I have to get this out of my system."

Finally he swerved off to a side-street and drove into an alley. He brought the car to a screeching halt and put his head in his hands and cried. I sat silent for about 10 minutes while he sobbed. Suddenly he changed the subject and was extremely pleasant as we rode back to my house.

I'm afraid Bob may take his erratic temper out on me after we are married. What do you think? —DESPERATE

Dear Desperate: A 20-year-old man who deals with frustration at an infantile level is the worst possible husband material. This boy needs psychiatric help, not a wife. And you need to go with others for two years at least, to see if the young man is ever going to grow up.

The letter below is from a woman who married such a man. Please read on:

Dear Ann Landers: Can you help me? My husband has a TNT temper. I try awfully hard not to rile him — even to the point where I have memorized a list of things I must not do, or subjects I must not bring up.

It is useless. One wrong word and the table or chair gets a kick or I am in for a terrible tongue lashing.

On the highway he is forever cursing the other drivers, trying to pass them if he feels they have passed him "for spite." He takes everything as a personal affront — a chance shove in a crowded area is always "on purpose." If it rains on a day he had planned to do some gardening he just sits and sulks for hours — won't even read.

Worst of all is his violent temper. He explodes over nothing and now I am the target. What can I do so his outbursts do not hurt so much? Thank you for any help you might give. —FLORADORA GIRL

Dear Girl: Your husband's inability to deal with frustration demonstrates that, emotionally, he is still in knee pants. He needs professional help. If he refuses to get it, I hope you will handle this childish behavior as you would a child's tantrum. Let him blow himself out and ignore him.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 16-year-old girl who has just started to date. I need some answers to a few questions which have been bothering me.

One certain 17-year-old boy comes over almost every Friday evening to watch TV. He always gets tired and wants to lie down on the sofa or the floor. Then he pulls me down next to him. Before I know it he is getting very comfortable with his head in my lap.

Bulldogs Suffer 59-38 Set Back At Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF --Ron Dunning with 14 points in the first half and then the rest of the Mules the last half proved one thing last night. Their impressive 17-2 record is no fluke. They defeated Sikeston Bulldogs 59-38 with Dunning leading the Bluff attack with 17 big points.

The "B" Bulldogs pulled off a first of the season. Before going into this 42-41 loss to the Bulldogs, Poplar Bluff had waded through to come up with a 5-0 record. If the Bulldogs can win their last two conference games they will be assured of at least a tie for the league title.

The Sikeston varsity started action off the first frame with Gary Stallings putting in two quick free tosses. Poplar Bluff then went to the boards hard and edged out to their first lead of the game on a shot by Tinsley and the Mules continued to march to put the Bulldogs down 12-8 as the first period play subsided. Poplar Bluff's defense was extremely tough allowing Sikeston only two field goals for the frame and ten for the game.

The Mules held their lead until 4:19 was left before the half when George Tucker drilled a seven foot jumper to draw up the score to 17-16. Then again the Mules hung tough around the boards and managed to pull back out front to a three point advantage 23-20 before first half play ended. It looked as if Bluff was going to get in serious foul trouble with them committing ten fouls the first half and two of their starters had three each.

As is the case in lots of games it was decided who was going to be the winner in the third quarter. The Mules got their defense dug in tighter than ever and managed to hold Sikeston down to six points for the quarter while dumping 20 for themselves. This put the Bulldogs down by 43-26 at the end of the period.

In the "B" game Bluff led the Bulldogs through the first three periods before going down to defeat with John L. Mitchell hitting a free throw with :03 seconds left to play. Mitchell also paved the way in scoring with 17 big points. Raymond Carlock with ten was the only other Bulldog to reach double figures.

Players Take To Air Not To Miss Any Class Time

LAS VEGAS, N. M. AP -- "The boys won't miss any class time," Mexico Highlands basketball coach John Givens told the administration when he explained why the team should fly to its game against Southern Utah at Cedar City, Utah, last week.

The trip was planned to take four hours going and four hours returning.

Saturday -- The team left in two chartered six-passenger planes. One made it to Farmington, N. M., landed for one hour and was told to return because of bad weather. The other plane couldn't land at Farmington, flew to Albuquerque, returned later in the day to Las Vegas.

The game, scheduled for that night, was postponed until Monday.

Sunday -- the planes left again, flew to Farmington where they stopped to refuel. The Federal Aviation Agency warned the pilots not to continue so the team stayed the night, working out in the local high school gym.

Tuesday -- The planes were snowed in and couldn't leave the Cedar City airport.

Wednesday - The team left but couldn't fly east toward Las Vegas so the planes flew south, landing at Winslow, Ariz., where the players spent the night.

Thursday - Each plane left. One finally gave up and landed at Albuquerque, with the pilot and five players renting a car and driving the 130 miles to Las Vegas. The other plane, with Givens, four players and the pilot, got to an air strip 20 miles south of Las Vegas from where rancher W. O. Culbertson drove the team home.

Oh yes, Highlands beat Southern Utah 108 - 93 and the players, with only pocket change and without a change of clothes, had to wire home for lunch money.

RIVER NIGHT

A width of undulating silver
Walks across a moonlit river,
Liquid star sheen melted
On the hearth of thunder
By a lightning silver,
Or some wayward rainbow,
In disguise, hoping to be able
To escape its golden fable.

GEOMETRICAL PROBLEM

From minuette to twist,
There is a long list
Of dances that taper
From waltzes to caper.
Yet, no dancing school,
Can turn out a cool,
With zoom, wham and flare,
If he is a square!

Lilbourn Stops Arch-Rival 67-47

LILBOURN--It's look as if the Lilbourn Panthers are back to their normal defensive selves. They defeated the New Madrid Indians 67-47. It was New Madrid that took Lilbourn out of the New Madrid County Tournament just last week by a slim one point.

At the start of the season Lilbourn was exceptionally tough on defense but they hit a slump and before they pulled out of it their record had jumped to 14-6. In their last two ballgames it is apparent that they are back and from all reports they are back to stay. Now they are 16-6.

Thompson again paced the Panthers, this time with 21 points. Horn and Bodine followed with 14 and 10 respectively.

Glenn continues to be the offensive ace for New Madrid. He dumped in 15 last night. Shibley followed with 12.

Paced by Taylor with 18 points the Panthers swept the night's action by winning the "B" game 43-14. This win puts the young Panther's record to 17-1 for the season. Their lone defeat was dealt to them way back in the second game of the season when the Richland Rebels defeated them 43-40.

Kelly Edges Past Chaffee

CHAFFEE -- The Kelly Hawks downed the Chaffee Red Devils by a slim 60-53. The winning move by Kelly was made in the second period when they outscored Chaffee 15-7.

Displaying even more the balanced attack that the Hawks have, four men hit in the double figures. Merrick led with 18, followed by Morrow with 12, Dodson with 11, and Thomas with 10.

Kelly swept the nights action by winning the "B" game 65-47 behind the shooting of Urhahn with 14 and Adams with 14. White was high for Chaffee with 14.

Oran Rolls To Another Win

ORAN -- The Eagles soared to number 22 last night as they clipped the Charleston Blue Jays with a 74-60 loss. Robert Johnson again led Oran in basket making with 23 points followed three other teammates in double figures. Donnie Metz drilled 16, Tom Anderson hit 15, and Ken Steimle popped loose for 11.

Vernon Brooks was the chief of the pow-wow for Charleston with 21. McClendon and Glenn followed with 15 and 13 respectively.

This gives Oran an overall mark of 22-3 for the season and a 17 game winning streak dating back to December 18 when the Kelly Hawks dumped them 69-66.

Charleston wasn't denied the "B" game with them pouring it on to come to win 53-42. Brashears was the Ace with 20 points. Graham hit 10 for Oran.

Scott Central Continues Winning Ways

BELL CITY -- Like famous comedian Jackie Gleason says, "And away we go." The Scott Central Braves rolled to another victory last night by dumping Bell City 71-55 with a blistering third period scoring assault. The score was tied 33-33 at the end of the first half but the Braves caught fire and outscored Bell City 25-7 in the third period to ice down the victory.

Central also proved unbeatable in the "B" game winning in 65-45 paced by Miles with 14 points. Ellis and Watson with 8 points each were the high scorers for Bell City.

LOS ANGELES AP -- World record holder Peter Snell of New Zealand and Bill Crothers of Canada meet in the 1,000-yard run tonight in the feature event of the sixth annual Los Angeles Times Indoor meet.

A sell-out crowd of 13,735 was set to see an impressive collection of international track and field stars compete on the boards at the Sports Arena.

Domestic champions, plus such invited foreigners as Valery Brumel and Igor Ter-Ovanesyan of the USSR, Mary Rand of England, Iolanda Balas of Rumania, Witold Baran of Poland and John Davies of New Zealand are on the program.

LAWRENCE, Kan. AP -- Kansas defeated Oklahoma 66-56 Friday night in a dual track meet in which Oklahoma broke two fieldhouse records and tied another.

Oklahoma's mile relay team set a mark of 3:23.6, and Bill Calhoun posted a record of 49.4 seconds in the 440.

The Swiss artist Alberto Giacometti told an interviewer who asked him why he traveled so little: "To look at one and the same face every day of the year and never fail to find something new in it -- that is the greatest of adventures, and greater by far than any journey round the world."

Bloomfield Star Injured At Fisk

FISK You may beat them, but you won't beat them bad. Fisk is going down to defeat regularly this year, but no one is humiliating them, not even the Bloomfield Wildcats who only dumped them 59-45 last night. This is Bloomfield's twenty - fourth victory of the season opposed by one defeat.

One of Bloomfield's star starters, Dennis Gillespie, got injured in the second period as a result of getting knocked to the floor while going up for a rebound. He was taken to the Poplar Bluff Hospital and was reported to have been released. It's not definite just when he will be able to return to action, but there was an unofficial report that he may be out for some time.

Another Wildcat was out of the game due to an injury. Ron White, little playmaking guard for the Wildcats, suffered a knee injury in practice last week, but is expected to resume playing next week.

In spite of his advanced age, Konrad Adenauer, while he was Germany's chancellor, received numerous marriage proposals. According to his aides, the chancellor seemed uninterested and told his secretary, "Just put them in the nonaggression-pact file."

Dorothy Thompson could, at will, contact any president, king or prime minister on earth to ask a question and receive an answer. She did not abuse these privileges, but she had them. Pope Pius XII came somewhere near to consecrating Dorothy's greatness in her profession when he said to her, at the end of the war, "My daughter, I know you are a Protestant."

She said, "Why, Your Holiness? Because of my rudeness? " (She had been pounding on his desk and weeping because of the German orphans she had seen.)

"No," said the Pope, "because you so greatly overestimate the powers of the Roman Catholic Church. And for your tears I bless you, my child."

Marcy and Cantrell Move In Semi-Finals

ST. LOUIS -- It's Ken Cantrell and James Marcy moving into the semi-finals of the St. Louis District Wrestling meet. In last nights action Cantrell defeated Scott with a strong 8-0 verdict and Marcy edged out over tough Gordan 5-4.

Bill Vaught lost 2-6 to Scott, a brother to the Scott that wrestled Cantrell, and Sitzes dropped his match to Koetter 3-7.

Sikeston's semi-final matches got underway today at 2:00 with Marcy, who is 9-0 for the season, meeting Micka from St. Louis. Cantrell will wrestle Budda from Mehlville. The championship bouts will be held tonight.

Bulldogs Suffer 59-38 Set Back At Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF --Ron Dunning with 14 points in the first half and then the rest of the Mules the last half proved one thing last night. Their impressive 17-2 record is no fluke. They defeated Sikeston Bulldogs 59-38 with Dunning leading the Bluff attack with 17 big points.

The "B" Bulldogs pulled off a first of the season. Before going into this 42-41 loss to the Bulldogs, Poplar Bluff had waded through to come up with a 5-0 record. If the Bulldogs can win their last two conference games they will be assured of at least a tie for the league title.

The Sikeston varsity started action off the first frame with Gary Stallings putting in two quick free tosses. Poplar Bluff then went to the boards hard and edged out to their first lead of the game on a shot by Tinsley and the Mules continued to march to put the Bulldogs down 12-8 as the first period play subsided. Poplar Bluff's defense was extremely tough allowing Sikeston only two field goals for the frame and ten for the game.

The Mules held their lead until 4:19 was left before the half when George Tucker drilled a seven foot jumper to draw up the score to 17-16. Then again the Mules hung tough around the boards and managed to pull back out front to a three point advantage 23-20 before first half play ended. It looked as if Bluff was going to get in serious foul trouble with them committing ten fouls the first half and two of their starters had three each.

As is the case in lots of games it was decided who was going to be the winner in the third quarter. The Mules got their defense dug in tighter than ever and managed to hold Sikeston down to six points for the quarter while dumping 20 for themselves. This put the Bulldogs down by 43-26 at the end of the period.

In the "B" game Bluff led the Bulldogs through the first three periods before going down to defeat with John L. Mitchell hitting a free throw with :03 seconds left to play. Mitchell also paved the way in scoring with 17 big points. Raymond Carlock with ten was the only other Bulldog to reach double figures.

Players Take To Air Not To Miss Any Class Time

LAS VEGAS, N. M. AP -- "The boys won't miss any class time," Mexico Highlands basketball coach John Givens told the administration when he explained why the team should fly to its game against Southern Utah at Cedar City, Utah, last week.

The trip was planned to take four hours going and four hours returning.

Saturday -- The team left in two chartered six-passenger planes. One made it to Farmington, N. M., landed for one hour and was told to return because of bad weather. The other plane couldn't land at Farmington, flew to Albuquerque, returned later in the day to Las Vegas.

The game, scheduled for that night, was postponed until Monday.

Sunday -- the planes left again, flew to Farmington where they stopped to refuel. The Federal Aviation Agency warned the pilots not to continue so the team stayed the night, working out in the local high school gym.

Tuesday -- The planes were snowed in and couldn't leave the Cedar City airport.

Wednesday - The team left but couldn't fly east toward Las Vegas so the planes flew south, landing at Winslow, Ariz., where the players spent the night.

Thursday - Each plane left. One finally gave up and landed at Albuquerque, with the pilot and five players renting a car and driving the 130 miles to Las Vegas. The other plane, with Givens, four players and the pilot, got to an air strip 20 miles south of Las Vegas from where rancher W. O. Culbertson drove the team home.

Oh yes, Highlands beat Southern Utah 108 - 93 and the players, with only pocket change and without a change of clothes, had to wire home for lunch money.

By a lightning silver,
Or some wayward rainbow,
In disguise, hoping to be able
To escape its golden fable.

GEOMETRICAL PROBLEM

From minuette to twist,
There is a long list
Of dances that taper
From waltzes to caper.
Yet, no dancing school,
Can turn out a cool,
With zoom, wham and flare,

Lilbourn Stops Arch-Rival 67-47

LILBOURN--It's look as if the Lilbourn Panthers are back to their normal defensive selves. They defeated the New Madrid Indians 67-47. It was New Madrid that took Lilbourn out of the New Madrid County Tournament just last week by a slim one point.

At the start of the season Lilbourn was exceptionally tough on defense but they hit a slump and before they pulled out of it their record had jumped to 14-6. In their last two ballgames it is apparent that they are back and from all reports they are back to stay. Now they are 16-6.

Thompson again paced the Panthers, this time with 21 points. Horn and Bodine followed with 14 and 10 respectively.

Glenn continues to be the offensive ace for New Madrid. He dumped in 15 last night. Shibley followed with 12.

Paced by Taylor with 18 points the Panthers swept the night's action by winning the "B" game 43-14. This win puts the young Panther's record to 17-1 for the season. Their lone defeat was dealt to them way back in the second game of the season when the Richland Rebels defeated them 43-40.

Kelly Edges Past Chaffee

CHAFFEE -- The Kelly Hawks downed the Chaffee Red Devils by a slim 60-53. The winning move by Kelly was made in the second period when they outscored Chaffee 15-7.

Displaying even more the balanced attack that the Hawks have, four men hit in the double figures. Merrick led with 18, followed by Morrow with 12, Dodson with 11, and Thomas with 10.

Kelly swept the nights action by winning the "B" game 65-47 behind the shooting of Urhahn with 14 and Adams with 14. White was high for Chaffee with 14.

Oran Rolls To Another Win

ORAN -- The Eagles soared to number 22 last night as they clipped the Charleston Blue Jays with a 74-60 loss. Robert Johnson again led Oran in basket making with 23 points followed three other teammates in double figures. Donnie Metz drilled 16, Tom Anderson hit 15, and Ken Steimle popped loose for 11.

Vernon Brooks was the chief of the pow-wow for Charleston with 21. McClendon and Glenn followed with 15 and 13 respectively.

This gives Oran an overall mark of 22-3 for the season and a 17 game winning streak dating back to December 18 when the Kelly Hawks dumped them 69-66.

Charleston wasn't denied the "B" game with them pouring it on to come to win 53-42. Brashears was the Ace with 20 points. Graham hit 10 for Oran.

Scott Central Continues Winning Ways

BELL CITY -- Like famous comedian Jackie Gleason says, "And away we go." The Scott Central Braves rolled to another victory last night by dumping Bell City 71-55 with a blistering third period scoring assault. The score was tied 33-33 at the end of the first half but the Braves caught fire and outscored Bell City 25-7 in the third period to ice down the victory.

Central also proved unbeatable in the "B" game winning in 65-45 paced by Miles with 14 points. Ellis and Watson with 8 points each were the high scorers for Bell City.

LOS ANGELES AP -- World record holder Peter Snell of New Zealand and Bill Crothers of Canada meet in the 1,000-yard run tonight in the feature event of the sixth annual Los Angeles Times Indoor meet.

A sell-out crowd of 13,735 was set to see an impressive collection of international track and field stars compete on the boards at the Sports Arena.

Domestic champions, plus such invited foreigners as Valery Brumel and Igor Ter-Ovanesyan of the USSR, Mary Rand of England, Iolanda Balas of Rumania, Witold Baran of Poland and John Davies of New Zealand are on the program.

LAWRENCE, Kan. AP -- Kansas defeated Oklahoma 66-56 Friday night in a dual track meet in which Oklahoma broke two fieldhouse records and tied another.

Oklahoma's mile relay team set a mark of 3:23.6, and Bill Calhoun posted a record of 49.4 seconds in the 440.

The Swiss artist Alberto Giacometti told an interviewer who asked him why he traveled so little: "To look at one and the same face every day of the year and never fail to find something new in it -- that is the greatest of adventures, and greater by far than any journey round the world."

Bloomfield Star Injured At Fisk

FISK You may beat them, but you won't beat them bad. Fisk is going down to defeat regularly this year, but no one is humiliating them, not even the Bloomfield Wildcats who only dumped them 59-45 last night. This is Bloomfield's twenty - fourth victory of the season opposed by one defeat.

One of Bloomfield's star starters, Dennis Gillespie, got injured in the second period as a result of getting knocked to the floor while going up for a rebound. He was taken to the Poplar Bluff Hospital and was reported to have been released. It's not definite just when he will be able to return to action, but there was an unofficial report that he may be out for some time.

Another Wildcat was out of the game due to an injury. Ron White, little playmaking guard for the Wildcats, suffered a knee injury in practice last week, but is expected to resume playing next week.

In spite of his advanced age, Konrad Adenauer, while he was Germany's chancellor, received numerous marriage proposals. According to his aides, the chancellor seemed uninterested and told his secretary, "Just put them in the nonaggression-pact file."

Dorothy Thompson could, at will, contact any president, king or prime minister on earth to ask a question and receive an answer. She did not abuse these privileges, but she had them. Pope Pius XII came somewhere near to consecrating Dorothy's greatness in her profession when he said to her, at the end of the war, "My daughter, I know you are a Protestant."

She said, "Why, Your Holiness? Because of my rudeness? " (She had been pounding on his desk and weeping because of the German orphans she had seen.)

"No," said the Pope, "because you so greatly overestimate the powers of the Roman Catholic Church. And for your tears I bless you, my child."

Marcy and Cantrell Move In Semi-Finals

ST. LOUIS -- It's Ken Cantrell and James Marcy moving into the semi-finals of the St. Louis District Wrestling meet. In last nights action Cantrell defeated Scott with a strong 8-0 verdict and Marcy edged out over tough Gordan 5-4.

Bill Vaught lost 2-6 to Scott, a brother to the Scott that wrestled Cantrell, and Sitzes dropped his match to Koetter 3-7.

Sikeston's semi-final matches got underway today at 2:00 with Marcy, who is 9-0 for the season, meeting Micka from St. Louis. Cantrell will wrestle Budda from Mehlville. The championship bouts will be held tonight.

Mr. Lincoln Goes to Disneyland--- to Stay

Individual star of the New York World's Fair's 1964 season was Abraham Lincoln. In "Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln," major feature of the Illinois Pavilion, Walt Disney's life-like electronic-mechanical figure was seen and heard by 2,000,000 people, and as many more are expected to view it when the 1965 season opens on April 21. Many enthusiastic viewers urged that a permanent home be found for the inspiring presentation. Disney did just that. In addition to its World's Fair showing, Lincoln will have a twin presentation and a permanent home in Disneyland. What is now the Opera House on Town Square is being remodeled as a 499-seat theater, to be ready in June. The Disneyland Lincoln will be even more sophisticated than the New York version.

Bootheel Beat . . .

—By MAX STURM—

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI NEWS SIDELIGHTS, FEATURES AND OBSERVATIONS.

SCHOOL REORGANIZATION PLANS and discussions are attracting a lot of attention in the lower Bootheel these days. One by one smaller districts, faced with declining enrollment due to shifts in population and smaller families, are finding it necessary to join larger districts so that their students will have adequate education, especially in high school.

Coming up next week will be an election in the Clarkton district in Dunklin County on a proposal to annex to the Gideon district. Gideon is a Triple A school, offering a fairly broad course of study, and is in position ot serve the additional students from Clarkton. The Malden Board of Education, however, has offered the Clarkton district patrons all of the services "offered by any other school district" if Clarkton would join their district. Thus the people of the Clarkton district are faced with deciding on a choice.

In Pemiscot County an election has been scheduled in the Wardell district for Feb. 23 on a proposal to annex to the Ross district. Also consideration is being given to a plan to combine Deering, Braggadocio and McCarty districts. Deering and Braggadocio both have high schools but the McCarty district, known as R-3, is an elementary school district formed a number of years ago by the consolidation of some nine small elementary districts, mostly one-room units.

Serious consideration is being given to the possibilities of combining the Hayti and Caruthersville districts. This will be the last year Bragg City will have a high school. This district has annexed to Kennett with Bragg City's high school students to attend the Kennett High School, starting next term.

Some years ago when the State Department of Education introduced its school reorganization program, small elementary districts in the county began joining adjacent high school districts, but when it was all over the county wound up with one more high school than it had at the start--the Charles G Ross High School located between Hayti and Portageville. Now the trend is in the other direction--to combine the high schools. It will be a number of years yet before it is all settled.

THE MCCARTY ELEMENTARY SCHOOL (R-3), between Caruthersville and Cootonwood Point, is due a salute from everyone on the success of their recent carnival which brought in $3057.56 and which has been divided three ways for the polio, cancer and heart funds.

Supt. Floyd Hamlett said that the event was the eighth of its kind held annually by the school for charitable funds.

Included in the evening's entertainment were an auction, country store, grab bag, eat and drink stands, attendance prizes and a cake walk. Since the cake walk has been one of the most popular features of the carnival, Hamlett, some years ago, painted a pattern for the contest on a large piece of canvass. This saves having to draw the design on a floor each year and all he has to do is unroll the canvass and his cake walk concession is in business. He thinks his is the only such ready-to-use cake walk pattern in Missouri. Other schools and organizations have borrowed it. Can anyone out there say he doesn't have an exclusive on this?

I AM USUALLY WARY of taking part in national prize contests because of the odds stacked against me. A couple of months ago, however, I bought some records which I needed and in the process I was to qualify for one of about a million dollars worth of prizes, including sports cars, station wagons, color TVs, etc. "An electronic computer has already selected the winning number and yours may be included..." the broadside read I received the records okay and they were as good as advertised, but so far I haven't been notified of winning a sports car or anything else in the prize award division of the promotion.

It appears that the number assigned to me was overlooked by the computer, or maybe it wasn't even in its memory bank. Anyway, I didn't win anything.

So it was refreshing the other day to read about this new prize award scheme advertised on one side of a milk carton distributed in the Bootheel by a national dairy firm.

This one is entitled "No-Losers Contest." It says, "We've fixed it so you practically can't lose. . .everyone (practically) wins first prize."

I especially like the rules of the contest which are not very binding. They read like this:

"Here's How to Win. On this carton we've printed a message about our superb dairy products. And just to be crazy, we've printed it backwards. Read our backward message--a mirror will help-- and you'll find two magic words. Write (do not print) these words--forwards--on a piece of paper or postcard along with your (or somebody's) name and address. Main your entry to ___. No purchase required. One first prize per entry."

Maybe that's the kind of contest I ought to enter. I'm (practically) sure of winning a first prize....

IT APPEARS THAT THE PROPOSAL for a new municipal swimming pool in Caruthersville has died with recent action by the city council to rescind an ordinance which would have presented the plan in the form of an $80,000 revenue bond issue before the voters in the April 6 city election.

After the ordinance was enacted it was discovered that it might be almost impossible to sell the revenue bonds. The council also voted 5-2 against presenting the plan to the voters in the form of a general obligation bond issue on the basis that the city still owes $15,000 on its airport improvement bonds and also faces a sizeable financial outlay on a sewerage disposal system in the near future.

Thus, it still boils down to the same old thing. All we need is the money.

The live stock inventory report released Friday by USDA showed 107,152,000 cattle and calves on U.S. farms and ranches on Jan. 1, a record high, but only slightly greater than the 106,743,000 on hand a year earlier. The number of all hogs and pigs was 53,052,000, a decline of 9 pct. and sheep and lamb numbers totaled 26,668,000, down 5 pct. and the smallest inventory of record.

Cotton Market News

Purchases of cotton loan equities increased from a week earlier. Farmers received from $1.00 to $4.00 per bale above support levels. Demand was best for Strict Low Middling and higher grades with 1-1/32 inches and longer staple length. Buying on central markets eased slightly from the preceding week. Shipper demand lessened for most qualities. Most purchases were for prompt and nearby delivery. Inquiries from foreign spinners were less numerous and prices bid were mostly unattractive.

Rains and wet field conditions slowed outside farm work. Many farmers in early southern sections started pricing and booking, planting seed, fertilizers and chemicals.

Some friends had the same girl as baby-sitter for several years and she was always available when they wanted to go out. Even after she got married, she was glad to help out. But one evening she couldn't come, and the wife explained to her husband. "We can't go tonight. Barbara can't baby-sit."

"Can't baby-sit! Why she's been sitting for us for years," fumed the husband.

"I know. But you know she's married now."

"How do you like that!" said the outraged husband. "We teach her everything she knows, and now she goes into business for herself."

"FILE IT AND FIND IT"

There are few occupations that require knowledge about as many different subjects as farming. In the course of a day a farmer may have to make decisions that require him to be an entomologist, a livestock specialist, a marketing expert, etc.

These decisions must be made in view of the knowledge he has in his mind or the information at his finger tips. However, in many cases farmers don't use the information they have because they can't find it. This very thing can mean several dollars less profit at the end of the year.

What is the answer to this problem?

The answer is a good filing system.

Your University Extension Center has information on how to set up such a filing system. The "File It and Find It" system is based on University of Missouri and Michigan State University work.

Instructions are given on the material and equipment that are needed and a step by step procedure for setting up the system.

As my wife and I were having coffee at a friend's house, a neighbor's clothesline pulley squeaked. Our friend jumped up and ran to her window, but quickly came back and sat down again, looking relieved.

"Eleanor has her house up for sale," she explained to us. "When she gets a call that somebody's coming to look at it, she hangs out her red tablecloth and we all go over and help her straighten up the place. But she's just hanging out her regular wash now." --R. T. Casey

Mr. Lincoln Goes to Disneyland--- to Stay

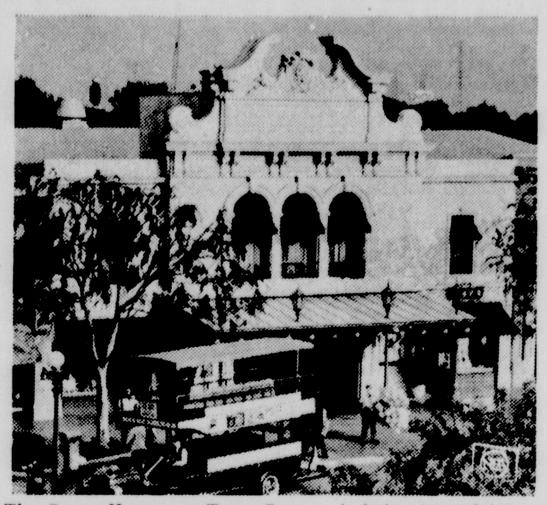

Individual star of the New York World's Fair's 1964 season was Abraham Lincoln. In "Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln," major feature of the Illinois Pavilion, Walt Disney's life-like electronic-mechanical figure was seen and heard by 2,000,000 people, and as many more are expected to view it when the 1965 season opens on April 21. Many enthusiastic viewers urged that a permanent home be found for the inspiring presentation. Disney did just that. In addition to its World's Fair showing, Lincoln will have a twin presentation and a permanent home in Disneyland. What is now the Opera House on Town Square is being remodeled as a 499-seat theater, to be ready in June. The Disneyland Lincoln will be even more sophisticated than the New York version.

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI NEWS SIDELIGHTS, FEATURES AND OBSERVATIONS.

SCHOOL REORGANIZATION PLANS and discussions are attracting a lot of attention in the lower Bootheel these days. One by one smaller districts, faced with declining enrollment due to shifts in population and smaller families, are finding it necessary to join larger districts so that their students will have adequate education, especially in high school.

Coming up next week will be an election in the Clarkton district in Dunklin County on a proposal to annex to the Gideon district. Gideon is a Triple A school, offering a fairly broad course of study, and is in position ot serve the additional students from Clarkton. The Malden Board of Education, however, has offered the Clarkton district patrons all of the services "offered by any other school district" if Clarkton would join their district. Thus the people of the Clarkton district are faced with deciding on a choice.

In Pemiscot County an election has been scheduled in the Wardell district for Feb. 23 on a proposal to annex to the Ross district. Also consideration is being given to a plan to combine Deering, Braggadocio and McCarty districts. Deering and Braggadocio both have high schools but the McCarty district, known as R-3, is an elementary school district formed a number of years ago by the consolidation of some nine small elementary districts, mostly one-room units.

Serious consideration is being given to the possibilities of combining the Hayti and Caruthersville districts. This will be the last year Bragg City will have a high school. This district has annexed to Kennett with Bragg City's high school students to attend the Kennett High School, starting next term.

Some years ago when the State Department of Education introduced its school reorganization program, small elementary districts in the county began joining adjacent high school districts, but when it was all over the county wound up with one more high school than it had at the start--the Charles G. Ross High School located between Hayti and Portageville. Now the trend is in the other direction--to combine the high schools. It will be a number of years yet before it is all settled.

THE MCCARTY ELEMENTARY SCHOOL (R-3), between Caruthersville and Cootonwood Point, is due a salute from everyone on the success of their recent carnival which brought in $3057.56 and which has been divided three ways for the polio, cancer and heart funds.

Supt. Floyd Hamlett said that the event was the eighth of its kind held annually by the school for charitable funds.

Included in the evening's entertainment were an auction, country store, grab bag, eat and drink stands, attendance prizes and a cake walk. Since the cake walk has been one of the most popular features of the carnival, Hamlett, some years ago, painted a pattern for the contest on a large piece of canvass. This saves having to draw the design on a floor each year and all he has to do is unroll the canvass and his cake walk concession is in business. He thinks his is the only such ready-to-use cake walk pattern in Missouri. Other schools and organizations have borrowed it. Can anyone out there say he doesn't have an exclusive on this?

I AM USUALLY WARY of taking part in national prize contests because of the odds stacked against me. A couple of months ago, however, I bought some records which I needed and in the process I was to qualify for one of about a million dollars worth of prizes, including sports cars, station wagons, color TVs, etc. "An electronic computer has already selected the winning number and yours may be included..." the broadside read. I received the records okay and they were as good as advertised, but so far I haven't been notified of winning a sports car or anything else in the prize award division of the promotion.

It appears that the number assigned to me was overlooked by the computer, or maybe it wasn't even in its memory bank. Anyway, I didn't win anything.

So it was refreshing the other day to read about this new prize award scheme advertised on one side of a milk carton distributed in the Bootheel by a national dairy firm.

This one is entitled "No-Losers Contest." It says, "We've fixed it so you practically can't lose. . .everyone (practically) wins first prize."

I especially like the rules of the contest which are not very binding. They read like this:

"Here's How to Win. On this carton we've printed a message about our superb dairy products. And just to be crazy, we've printed it backwards. Read our backward message--a mirror will help-- and you'll find two magic words. Write (do not print) these words--forwards--on a piece of paper or postcard along with your (or somebody's) name and address. Main your entry to ____. No purchase required. One first prize per entry."

Maybe that's the kind of contest I ought to enter. I'm (practically) sure of winning a first prize....

IT APPEARS THAT THE PROPOSAL for a new municipal swimming pool in Caruthersville has died with recent action by the city council to rescind an ordinance which would have presented the plan in the form of an $80,000 revenue bond issue before the voters in the April 6 city election.

After the ordinance was enacted it was discovered that it might be almost impossible to sell the revenue bonds. The council also voted 5-2 against presenting the plan to the voters in the form of a general obligation bond issue on the basis that the city still owes $15,000 on its airport improvement bonds and also faces a sizeable financial outlay on a sewerage disposal system in the near future.

Thus, it still boils down to the same old thing. All we need is the money.

As my wife and I were having coffee at a friend's house, a neighbor's clothesline pulley squeaked. Our friend jumped up and ran to her window, but quickly came back and sat down again, looking relieved.

"Eleanor has her house up for sale," she explained to us. "When she gets a call that somebody's coming to look at it, she hangs out her red tablecloth and we all go over and help her straighten up the place. But she's just hanging out her regular wash now." --R. T. Casey

WAYS TO WASH WALLS

Several ladies of our community are beginning to clean the inside walls of their home. Here are a few hints from the Cleanliness Bureau which might be of some help to you.

MOST PAPERS, FABRICS, AND PAINTS ARE SUDSABLE

Most wall coverings — paper, paint, or vinyl — are made to be washed. Other papers and some fabrics can be made washable by applying commercial coatings — either to wall covering after it is hung, or through a custom service at the time of purchase.

In addition to being safely washable with soap or detergent suds, water-resistant or plastic-treated wallpapers present other attractive features: they are color fast to light; they are often heavier, easier to hang, and more durable; and many come coordinated with fabrics for draperies, slipcovers, and other decorative purposes.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS

Wallpapers should be dusted weekly with a clean dry mop, a soft cloth wound over a broom, or a vacuum cleaner brush. It is best to start at the top, except that cobwebs should be removed with upward strokes to prevent greasy streaks.

If doubtful about the washability of a wall covering, first test its color and finish by suds-sponging an inconspicuous spot. If it looks the same — except cleaner — start washing from the bottom and work upwards. This prevents hard-to-remove streaks which develop when water trickles down over the unwashed area, causing concentrated damp soil. A cloth "bracelet" wrapped around the wrist, then fastened with a rubber band, will keep water from running along the arm when washing up high.

The approved washing method is to wipe one section at a time with thick soap or detergent suds, using a sponge or soft cloth. Then wipe each section with a clean damp cloth, overlapping sections as the work progresses. Change to clean suds and rinses as soon as the water begins to look dirty. For stubborn stains, wash once, let dry, and wash again; this is preferable to rubbing when wet.

To avoid excess water during washing, prepare "dry" suds in one of these three ways: 1) add soap or detergent to a pail of warm water and swish this with your hand until thick suds rise to the surface; 2) mix soap or detergent with a little water and whip this until the suds stand in thick peaks; or 3) spread some soap or detergent on a wet sponge, and squish it to quickly produce a small amount of dense suds.

WALLPAPERS — WATER-RESISTANT paper can be washed by wetting a cloth or sponge in suds and swabbing the entire surface with long, free strokes. It is safe to actually scrub some of these papers, so follow the manufacturer's instructions. Then rinse-wipe with a damp cloth.

PLASTIC-COATED or PLASTIC - IMPREGNATED papers, which are impervious to stains and grease, can be suds-scrubbed as often as needed.

WATER-SENSITIVE papers cannot be washed. Instead, rub a dough-like cleaner over the surface, from the top down. Then brush off the loose crumbs. Semi-stale, crustless bread can be used the same way if this type of paper is only slightly soiled.

FABRIC AND OTHER WALL COVERINGS — COATED FABRICS can be washed with suds, and are usually scrubbable with a soft brush. To remove normal smudges and stains, use a pail of warm soap or detergent suds, a pail of clean warm water, and two sponges or clothes — one set for sudsing, the other for rinsing. Always work with a minimum of water in order to avoid drips which may leave streaks.

VINYL — Most self-adhesive products are made of vinyl plastic which is stain-resistant and easy to wash without scrubbing. Just wipe the surface with warm suds and warm rinse water. Never use abrasives.

WASHABLE PAINT AND ENAMEL

If properly applied, all modern paints are washable but their resistance to scrubbing and abrasion varies. Gloss enamels withstand scrubbing best, followed by the semi-gloss type. Alkyd resign - based enamels are tougher than oil-based enamels. Water-thinned latex paints are washable but must first be completely "set," so allow them to dry at least 30 days before washing. Alkyd flat paints can be washed successfully once they have "cured," but will not take hard scrubbing. Varnished surfaces can be washed repeatedly.

Dust painted surfaces often with a wall mop or a soft cloth wound over a broom. To wash painted surfaces, wipe one small section at a time with thick soap or detergent suds on a sponge or cloth. Work from the baseboards upward, overlapping sections and avoid unnecessary rubbing which may soften paint. Rinse with a minimum of clean water, then dry with a soft cloth. Change to clean suds and rinses as soon as the water is soiled.

Extension Center News

Many farmers have been asking questions recently about a new corn disease called corn stunt.

I said the disease is new and I probably should have said it is new to us. Actually corn stunt was first found in this country 22 years ago but it did not get serious enough to be of economic importance in our area until 1963. The disease was found here again last year. In general these 42 counties are along the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers.

The symptoms of corn stunt will make the disease easy to find in most years when the disease is present. The joints of the corn stalk are extremely short giving the plant a bunched effect. Usually there is no ear on the stalk, if there is an ear present it will contain only a few grains.

Corn Stunt seems to be of no economic importance on any crop except corn although it will affect sudan, sorghum and the sorghum-sudan hybrids. The disease is spread by an insect-the corn leaf aphid. One of the things that seems to be of particular importance to us is the method of over wintering. Johnson Grass is the only known means of over wintering in this area at the present time. Since this is true it will cause us to put even more emphasis on controlling Johnson Grass.

Unfortunately there is no definite answer on control of corn stunt at the present time. However there are two things we will want to watch carefully. (1) If a build up of corn aphids starts, spraying may be necessary. (2) Put added emphasis on Johnson Grass control.

Most hybrid seed corn companies, as well as the University, are working on resistant varieties. They predict we will have resistant varieties available before the disease is a serious threat to corn growing.

One of our neighbors hires a shapely blonde to supervise her four small children when they're playing outdoors. But our five-year-old Bobby has to get along with supervision by us. My husband, who is somewhat nearsighted, has found a pair of binoculars quite efficient for locating him at long range. The other day, however, he was intently scanning the yard next door even though Bobby was sitting near him in the living room. So I ventured to ask what he was looking at. "A bird" be replied innocently.

"What kind of bird?" I persisted, and he promptly replied, "A yellow-headed baby sitter."

Of Interest To Homemakers

Next week, February 14-20, will be Home Economics Week. There are opportunities galore in the home economics profession.

WHAT IS A HOME ECONOMIST? The title "home economist" defines a college graduate professionally educated in home economics. She is a college graduate who is dedicated to improving homes and family life. She may do this through teaching, all ages from nursery school to adult education, or research, by testing the durability of fabrics or the nutritional value of food products. She may design the latest fashions or decorate a home. She may demonstrate the uses of household equipment or various ways to use specific food products. She may develop new products for you to use or pass this information along to you through television, radio, newspapers, or magazines.

WHAT ARE SOME JOB TITLES? Demonstrator, Fashion coordinator, designer, stylist, pattern maker, consultant, buyer, information specialist, editor, display artist, decorator, crafts director, kitchen planner, illustrator, personal shopper, and many more. There are over 1,000 job titles that make up the home economics profession and help to improve home and family life.

SUGGESTED EDUCATION: A bachelors degree from an accredited college or university offering a major in home economics, with specialization in one of the home economics subject-matter areas.

At the University of Missouri a student may choose child development and family life, food and nutrition, home management and family economics, interior design, or textiles and clothing.

In addition to these five major areas, a student may want to combine these into home economics education, extension, or journalism.

HOME ECONOMICS IS IMPORTANT. Almost every item in the home has or will have the knowledge of a home economist in its development, making it easier and faster to use, more attractive, easier to care for and longer wearing.

SOIL FERTILITY WORKSHOP TO BE HELD IN COUNTY

A three-session Soil Fertility Workshop will be held in the county on February 16 and 22 and March 1 for the benefit of farmers, fertilizer and lime dealers, and other interested persons, Tom Brown, County Extension Director and Agricultural Agent announced this week.

FIRST SESSION -- FEBRUARY 16

1. Economics of Soil Treatment — John Yount, Balanced Farming Agent.
2. Functions of Plant Food Elements Including Lime, Nitrogen, Phosphate, Potash, and Trace Elements — John Garrett, Area Extension Soils Agent, University of Missouri Delta Center, Portageville, Mo.

SECOND SESSION — FEBRUARY 22

1. Taking Soil Tests — Tom Brown, County Extension Director and Agricultural Agent
2. Soil Test Interpretation, Fertilizer Placement, and New Type Fertilizers — John Garrett

1. Fertilization of Various Crops and Research Findings Pertaining to Soils — John Garrett

The first session will be a dinner meeting at the Hickory House Restaurant in Dexter on February 16 beginning at 6:30 p.m. The meal will consist of a fried chicken dinner at a cost of $1.50 per person. Persons who plan to participate should place their reservations at the University Extension Center by Monday, February 15 so that meal arrangements can be made, according to the County Agent.

All farmers, fertilizer and lime dealers, and other interested persons are invited to participate in this event.

75 FARMERS ATTEND SOILS AND CROPS CONFERENCE

In spite of icy roads and cold weather 75 farmers and other interested persons attended the County Soils and Crops Conference held in Bloomfield last Tuesday. Local farmers, Extension Agents, and a University Crops Specialist discussed soil improvement and crop production practices at this event, sponsored by the County Extension Service, Earl Weeks, County Soils and Crops Conference Chairman, was in charge of the day's program.

Sam McAnally, first speaker on the program told the group how the application of four tons of lime in 1963 increased his soybean yields 11 bushels per acre last year. Joe Hulshof told how the use of fertilizer and lime coupled with other good soils and crops practices had increased his crop yields. During the past three years yields have been increased from 80 to 100 bushels of corn, three-fourths to 1-3/4 bales of cotton, 35 to 45 bushels of wheat and 25 to 31 bushels of soybeans per acre.

Three speakers discussed the soybean cyst nematode problem. Lester Walker told the group that cyst nematode had cut his bean yields in half on an infested field. Herb Morgan, representative of the Plant Pest Control Office in Sikeston showed slides of infested fields and discussed quarrantine regulations as they effect farmers in the county. Joe Scott, Extension Field Crops Specialist from the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville discussed control measures including planting soybeans at normal planting dates, crop rotation, and the use of resistant varieties now being developed and which are expected to be released in 1968.

A highlight of the program was a panel discussion on Irrigation. Panel members included Alva Stutts, Jerry Bagby and Melvin Triplett with John Yount, Balanced Farming Agent as moderator. All panel members discussed irrigation costs and results obtained with the various types of irrigation used. Mr. Stutts practices surface irrigation by the use of flume ditches and siphon tubes. Mr. Bagby practices surface irrigation by the use of gated pipe. Mr. Triplett has had considerable experience with sprinkler irrigation.

Flernoy Jones, Area Extension Entomology Agent discussed the Soybean Insect Situation and the Crop Residue Problem. He urged the proper use of insecticides in accordance with University recommendations as a means of protecting themselves against serious residue problems and as a matter of personal safety.

John Garrett, Area Extension Soils Agent, outlined the results of a soil test survey conducted by the Extension as it applied to Stoddard County and the Delta Counties showing fertility levels of various soils. He also discussed recommended soil fertility practices for this area.

Joe Scott, Extension Crops Specialist discussed the new Corn Stunt Disease Problem, recommended crop varieties and chemical weed control with emphasis on new research findings and recommendations.

Tom Brown, County Extension Director and Agricultural Agent summarized the day's program, urged farmers to keep informed on new technology, and outlined steps being taken by the Extension Service to keep farmers and other people better informed.

Timely Tips

GLOVES

Practically everyone wears gloves from childhood on. Gloves are designed for all needs, all weather and all occasion.

The wise consumer needs to consider function and design, cost and care when selecting.

Care plays a big role in appearance of gloves after they have been selected. General washing instructions are usually given on a card inserted inside each pair of gloves. Remember--your gloves will stay lovely if they are cared for properly.

Most general washing will instruct that gloves be washed on hand in luke warm water and mild soap completely dissolved.

Some additional suggestions would be:

1. After gloves have been washed and rinsed on the hands, they should be removed and water allowed to run through the fingers until water is clean.
2. Leather gloves should not be squeezed, simply blotted in a clean towel.
3. If air is blown into fingers before drying gloves, the fingers will retain their shape.
4. Gloves should be placed to dry on a towel away from heat.
5. Leather gloves should be finger pressed and kneaded on the hands before they are thoroughly dry. Otherwise, they will become hard and discolored. Kneading brings back original shape and texture. They should then continue to dry on towel away from heat.
6. Wool gloves should be washed in cold water rather than lukewarm with cold-water soap.

Storage of gloves is also important to the long life.

*Long term storage in plastic bags dries out leather. Natural oils in leathers may rub off on other gloves, if stored together. Both leather and fabric gloves should be kept individually wrapped in white tissue paper.

TREE DELIVERY MARCH 2

The tree seedling farmers and others have ordered will be delivered to Scott County on March 2.

Delivery will be made to the Scott County Extension Center by the Missouri Conservation Commission Forestry Division.

There is still time for orders to be made. Each year after trees and multiflora rose seedlings arrive, we have people wanting to place orders.

PLANTING SHADE TREES

Home owners want to know the best time to set out shade trees around the home.

Deciduous or broadleafed trees can be transplanted at any time the soil conditions will permit, between the time the leaves drop in the fall and the new growth starts in the spring.

Evergreen trees and shrubs can be planted in the early fall . . . but these species usually survive and grow best if they are planted in the spring as soon as the danger of deep soil freezing is past, and before new growth starts.

CORN IN DAIRY RATION

There isn't a set limit of the amount of corn that can be used in a dairy ration. The amount that should be used depends upon several things.

If the roughage being fed is mostly high - quality legume roughage, then energy is the principle need and corn could very well supply all of the energy needed for most cows. Real high producing cows may require such a large amount of energy that it would be easier to keep them on feed if more than one kind of grain is included in the concentrate portion of the rations.

If protein is lacking in the roughage, then enough protein supplement will have to be added to the grain mix to be sure that the protein needs of the animal are adequately supplied.

At one time it was thought that the amount of corn in the ration should be limited to 60 percent or less. . . but with high energy rations in vogue now . . . larger and larger amounts of corn are being included in the dairy mix.

EGG OUTLOOK

Missouri farmers investigating different farming enterprises are asking if the long time egg outlook is favorable enough to consider entering the egg business.

The long time outlook for eggs appears to be one of declining prices. There will be further advancement in automation and new technology . . which will permit the producer to handle more birds and operate at a lower net return per bird. The average labor return will likely stay near 50 cents per bird.

The farmer will need to decide for himself if he wishes to enter the business on that sort of outlook.

By BILL BOGART
Extension Area Youth Agent

DEMONSTRATIONS IN 4-H

Demonstrating is a method of teaching. It is an especially effective method of teaching how to do something.

4-H members learn how to demonstrate in their 4-H project work. As in other 4-H work they "learn by doing," simply by showing how to do something they can do, and telling how and why at the same time. While the demonstration will be of value to those watching, the real value of the demonstration is to the one who has prepared and presented it. Members who have given a few demonstrations find that:

1. They can speak with ease before groups of people.
2. They can put across ideas more easily, because they have learned to organize what they want to say.
3. They can tell other people of what they have learned in 4-H.
4. They have learned a great deal more about the chosen subject.

Teaching by the Demonstration method can be used by garden clubs, Home Extension Clubs, Sewing Clubs or any other educational groups. 4-H circular 100, entitled "Let's Demonstrate," provides information on how to plan, prepare and present a demonstration. This circular is available to you at the University Extension Center in Benton or Charleston.

TESTING STATION SALE IS GOOD SOURCE OF PERFORMANCE TESTED BOARS

Saturday, February 13 is the date for the 21st Missouri Swine Testing Station Boar Sale to be held in the University of Missouri Livestock Judging Pavilion in Columbia beginning at 1:00 p.m. Local hog producers would do well to consider buying their herd boars through this sale or other such sources of performance tested boars.

Why is it important that you use a performance tested boar? It is important for the simple reason that many of the characteristics of good, meat type hogs are heritable and are passed from the sow and boar to their offsprings. Consequently, if we expect to make progress in the quality of our hogs, our breeding stock must have the desirable characteristics before we can expect them to be passed on to their offspring. This is especially important in the case of the herd boar because he affects the quality of so many offsprings. At the Hog Production Session of our Livestock Shortcourse held in Dexter recently, David Kelly, Area Extension Livestock Agent discussed the extent to which individual genetic traits are heritable. Important traits and the extent to which each is heritable are as follows: length of body, 61 percent; percent fat, 60 percent; percent ham, 58 percent; backfat thickness, 46 percent; economy of gain, 40 percent; growth, 35 percent; number of pigs weaned, 19 percent; and number of pigs farrowed, 15 percent.

Now, what is the significance of performance testing in this connection? At the Missouri Swine Testing Station, for example, hogs are fed the same ration and are grown under the same environmental conditions, and they are tested for traits such as those mentioned above. Before boars are sold in the Tested Boar Sale, they must meet some pretty strict requirements. They must gain at least 1.7 pounds per head per day, make 100 pounds of gain on 325 pounds of feed or less, have a backfat thickness of 1.3 inches or less, have an index score of 100 or more, and be approved by a screening committee of qualified judges. Incidentally, the index score is an evaluation that places approximately equal emphasis on feed efficiency, backfat thickness, rate of gain and loin area.

A total of 58 boars that have met sale requirements will be sold in the sale next Saturday. Of this number, 26 are Hampshires, 20 are Durocs, 5 are Yorkshires, 4 are Polands, and 3 are Berkshires. All boars have been vaccinated for cholera and erysipelas and all have been tested and found to be negative as far as Brucellosis and Leptospirosis are concerned. The average daily gain produced by these boars ranged from 1.71 to 2.65 pounds per head per day. The time required to reach the 200 pound weight ranged from 3.5 to five months. They produced 100 pounds of pork on from 262 to 292 pounds of feed. Backfat thickness ranged from .87 to 1.24 inches. The index score on the boars ranged from 112 to 178. Carcass length on litter mates of these boars ranged from 28.2 to 30.5 inches. So, as you can see this is an outstanding group of boars. In fact, I have been told that this is perhaps the most outstanding group to be sold in the history of the testing station.

So if you are thinking about buying a boar, this would be a place to find it. Our economists tell us that we can expect better hog prices through most of this year as compared to last year. Consequently, this would probably be a good time to invest in a good performance tested boar if you need one and make other needed adjustments to make your hog enterprise more profitable.

Incidentally, another Testing Station Boar Sale will be held in Columbia on March 6.

Mix-All means uniform feedmaking!

. . . and now, GEHL adds 13 new features

Ask any one of the more than 15,000 Mix-All owners why he chose a Gehl. Chances are, one of the big reasons is uniform grinding and mixing.

Uniform, because ingredients are cut (not pounded) by 66 thin, reversible, steel hammers. The big 507 sq. in. grinding surface produces faster grinding, too . . . and low power requirements. Because all milled ingredients are of uniform size, they mix more thoroughly with concentrates in the 2-ton hopper.

WAYS TO WASH WALLS

Several ladies of our community are beginning to clean the inside walls of their home. Here are a few hints from the Cleanliness Bureau which might be of some help to you.

MOST PAPERS, FABRICS, AND PAINTS ARE SUDSABLE

Most wall coverings — paper, paint, or vinyl — are made to be washed. Other papers and some fabrics can be made washable by applying commercial coatings — either to wall covering after it is hung, or through a custom service at the time of purchase.

In addition to being safely washable with soap or detergent suds, water-resistant or plastic-treated wallpapers present other attractive features: they are color fast to light; they are often heavier, easier to hang, and more durable; and many come coordinated with fabrics for draperies, slipcovers, and other decorative purposes.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS

Wallpapers should be dusted weekly with a clean dry mop, a soft cloth wound over a broom, or a vacuum cleaner brush. It is best to start at the top, except that cobwebs should be removed with upward strokes to prevent greasy streaks.

If doubtful about the washability of a wall covering, first test its color and finish by suds-sponging an inconspicuous spot. If it looks the same — except cleaner — start washing from the bottom and work upwards. This prevents hard-to-remove streaks which develop when water trickles down over the unwashed area, causing concentrated damp soil. A cloth "bracelet" wrapped around the wrist, then fastened with a rubber band, will keep water from running along the arm when washing up high.

The approved washing method is to wipe one section at a time with thick soap or detergent suds, using a sponge or soft cloth. Then wipe each section with a clean damp cloth, overlapping sections as the work progresses. Change to clean suds and rinses as soon as the water begins to look dirty. For stubborn stains, wash once, let dry, and wash again; this is preferable to rubbing when wet.

To avoid excess water during washing, prepare "dry" suds in one of these three ways: 1) add soap or detergent to a pail of warm water and swish this with your hand until thick suds rise to the surface; 2) mix soap or detergent with a little water and whip this until the suds stand in thick peaks; or 3) spread some soap or detergent on a wet sponge, and squish it to quickly produce a small amount of dense suds.

WALLPAPERS — WATER-RESISTANT paper can be washed by wetting a cloth or sponge in suds and swabbing the entire surface with long, free strokes. It is safe to actually scrub some of these papers, so follow the manufacturer's instructions. Then rinse-wipe with a damp cloth.

PLASTIC-COATED or PLASTIC - IMPREGNATED papers, which are impervious to stains and grease, can be suds-scrubbed as often as needed.

WATER-SENSITIVE papers cannot be washed. Instead, rub a dough-like cleaner over the surface, from the top down. Then brush off the loose crumbs. Semi-stale, crustless bread can be used the same way if this type of paper is only slightly soiled.

FABRIC AND OTHER WALL COVERINGS — COATED FABRICS can be washed with suds, and are usually scrubbable with a soft brush. To remove normal smudges and stains, use a pail of warm soap or detergent suds, a pail of clean warm water, and two sponges or clothes — one set for sudsing, the other for rinsing. Always work with a minimum of water in order to avoid drips which may leave streaks.

VINYL — Most self-adhesive products are made of vinyl plastic which is stain-resistant and easy to wash without scrubbing. Just wipe the surface with warm suds and warm rinse water. Never use abrasives.

WASHABLE PAINT AND ENAMEL

If properly applied, all modern paints are washable but their resistance to scrubbing and abrasion varies. Gloss enamels withstand scrubbing best, followed by the semi-gloss type. Alkyd resign - based enamels are tougher than oil-based enamels. Water-thinned latex paints are washable but must first be completely "set," so allow them to dry at least 30 days before washing. Alkyd flat paints can be washed successfully once they have "cured," but will not take hard scrubbing. Varnished surfaces can be washed repeatedly.

Dust painted surfaces often with a wall mop or a soft cloth wound over a broom. To wash painted surfaces, wipe one small section at a time with thick soap or detergent suds on a sponge or cloth. Work from the baseboards upward, overlapping sections and avoid unnecessary rubbing which may soften paint. Rinse with a minimum of clean water, then dry with a soft cloth. Change to clean suds and rinses as soon as the water is soiled.

Extension Center News

Many farmers have been asking questions recently about a new corn disease called corn stunt.

I said the disease is new and I probably should have said it is new to us. Actually corn stunt was first found in this country 22 years ago but it did not get serious enough to be of economic importance in our area until 1963. The disease was found here again last year. In general these 42 counties are along the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers.

The symptoms of corn stunt will make the disease easy to find in most years when the disease is present. The joints of the corn stalk are extremely short giving the plant a bunched effect. Usually there is no ear on the stalk, if there is an ear present it will contain only a few grains.

Corn Stunt seems to be of no economic importance on any crop except corn although it will affect sudan, sorghum and the sorghum-sudan hybrids. The disease is spread by an insect-the corn leaf aphid. One of the things that seems to be of particular importance to us is the method of over wintering. Johnson Grass is the only known means of over wintering in this area at the present time. Since this is true it will cause us to put even more emphasis on controlling Johnson Grass.

Unfortunately there is no definite answer on control of corn stunt at the present time. However there are two things we will want to watch carefully. (1) If a build up of corn aphids starts, spraying may be necessary. (2) Put added emphasis on Johnson Grass control.

Most hybrid seed corn companies, as well as the University, are working on resistant varieties. They predict we will have resistant varieties available before the disease is a serious threat to corn growing.

One of our neighbors hires a shapely blonde to supervise her four small children when they're playing outdoors. But our five-year-old Bobby has to get along with supervision by us. My husband, who is somewhat nearsighted, has found a pair of binoculars quite efficient for locating him at long range. The other day, however, he was intently scanning the yard next door even though Bobby was sitting near him in the living room. So I ventured to ask what he was looking at.

"A bird" be replied innocently.

"What kind of bird?" I persisted, and he promptly replied, "A yellow-headed baby sitter."

Of Interest To Homemakers

Next week, February 14-20, will be Home Economics Week. There are opportunities galore in the home economics profession.

WHAT IS A HOME ECONOMIST? The title "home economist" defines a college graduate professionally educated in home economics. She is a college graduate who is dedicated to improving homes and family life. She may do this through teaching, all ages from nursery school to adult education, or research, by testing the durability of fabrics or the nutritional value of food products. She may design the latest fashions or decorate a home. She may demonstrate the uses of household equipment or various ways to use specific food products. She may develop new products for you to use or pass this information along to you through television, radio, newspapers, or magazines.

WHAT ARE SOME JOB TITLES? Demonstrator, Fashion coordinator, designer, stylist, pattern maker, consultant, buyer, information specialist, editor, display artist, decorator, crafts director, kitchen planner, illustrator, personal shopper, and many more. There are over 1,000 job titles that make up the home economics profession and help to improve home and family life.

SUGGESTED EDUCATION: A bachelors degree from an accredited college or university offering a major in home economics, with specialization in one of the home economics subject-matter areas.

At the University of Missouri a student may choose child development and family life, food and nutrition, home management and family economics, interior design, or textiles and clothing.

In addition to these five major areas, a student may want to combine these into home economics education, extension, or journalism.

HOME ECONOMICS IS IMPORTANT. Almost every item in the home has or will have the knowledge of a home economist in its development, making it easier and faster to use, more attractive, easier to care for and longer wearing.

SOIL FERTILITY WORKSHOP TO BE HELD IN COUNTY

A three-session Soil Fertility Workshop will be held in the county on February 16 and 22 and March 1 for the benefit of farmers, fertilizer and lime dealers, and other interested persons, Tom Brown, County Extension Director and Agricultural Agent announced this week.

FIRST SESSION -- FEBRUARY 16

1. Economics of Soil Treatment — John Yount, Balanced Farming Agent.
2. Functions of Plant Food Elements Including Lime, Nitrogen, Phosphate, Potash, and Trace Elements — John Garrett, Area Extension Soils Agent, University of Missouri Delta Center, Portageville, Mo.

SECOND SESSION — FEBRUARY 22

1. Taking Soil Tests — Tom Brown, County Extension Director and Agricultural Agent
2. Soil Test Interpretation, Fertilizer Placement, and New Type Fertilizers — John Garrett

1. Fertilization of Various Crops and Research Findings Pertaining to Soils — John Garrett

The first session will be a dinner meeting at the Hickory House Restaurant in Dexter on February 16 beginning at 6:30 p.m. The meal will consist of a fried chicken dinner at a cost of $1.50 per person. Persons who plan to participate should place their reservations at the University Extension Center by Monday, February 15 so that meal arrangements can be made, according to the County Agent.

All farmers, fertilizer and lime dealers, and other interested persons are invited to participate in this event.

75 FARMERS ATTEND SOILS AND CROPS CONFERENCE

In spite of icy roads and cold weather 75 farmers and other interested persons attended the County Soils and Crops Conference held in Bloomfield last Tuesday. Local farmers, Extension Agents, and a University Crops Specialist discussed soil improvement and crop production practices at this event, sponsored by the County Extension Service, Earl Weeks, County Soils and Crops Conference Chairman, was in charge of the day's program.

Sam McAnally, first speaker on the program told the group how the application of four tons of lime in 1963 increased his soybean yields 11 bushels per acre last year. Joe Hulshof told how the use of fertilizer and lime coupled with other good soils and crops practices had increased his crop yields. During the past three years yields have been increased from 80 to 100 bushels of corn, three-fourths to 1-3/4 bales of cotton, 35 to 45 bushels of wheat and 25 to 31 bushels of soybeans per acre.

Three speakers discussed the soybean cyst nematode problem. Lester Walker told the group that cyst nematode had cut his bean yields in half on an infested field. Herb Morgan, representative of the Plant Pest Control Office in Sikeston showed slides of infested fields and discussed quarrantine regulations as they effect farmers in the county. Joe Scott, Extension Field Crops Specialist from the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville discussed control measures including planting soybeans at normal planting dates, crop rotation, and the use of resistant varieties now being developed and which are expected to be released in 1968.

A highlight of the program was a panel discussion on Irrigation. Panel members included Alva Stutts, Jerry Bagby and Melvin Triplett with John Yount, Balanced Farming Agent as moderator. All panel members discussed irrigation costs and results obtained with the various types of irrigation used. Mr. Stutts practices surface irrigation by the use of flume ditches and siphon tubes. Mr. Bagby practices surface irrigation by the use of gated pipe. Mr. Triplett has had considerable experience with sprinkler irrigation.

Flernoy Jones, Area Extension Entomology Agent discussed the Soybean Insect Situation and the Crop Residue Problem. He urged the proper use of insecticides in accordance with University recommendations as a means of protecting themselves against serious residue problems and as a matter of personal safety.

John Garrett, Area Extension Soils Agent, outlined the results of a soil test survey conducted by the Extension as it applied to Stoddard County and the Delta Counties showing fertility levels of various soils. He also discussed recommended soil fertility practices for this area.

Joe Scott, Extension Crops Specialist discussed the new Corn Stunt Disease Problem, recommended crop varieties and chemical weed control with emphasis on new research findings and recommendations.

Tom Brown, County Extension Director and Agricultural Agent summarized the day's program, urged farmers to keep informed on new technology, and outlined steps being taken by the Extension Service to keep farmers and other people better informed.

Timely Tips

GLOVES

Practically everyone wears gloves from childhood on. Gloves are designed for all needs, all weather and all occasion.

The wise consumer needs to consider function and design, cost and care when selecting.

Care plays a big role in appearance of gloves after they have been selected. General washing instructions are usually given on a card inserted inside each pair of gloves. Remember--your gloves will stay lovely if they are cared for properly.

Most general washing will instruct that gloves be washed on hand in luke warm water and mild soap completely dissolved.

Some additional suggestions would be:

1. After gloves have been washed and rinsed on the hands, they should be removed and water allowed to run through the fingers until water is clean.
2. Leather gloves should not be squeezed, simply blotted in a clean towel.
3. If air is blown into fingers before drying gloves, the fingers will retain their shape.
4. Gloves should be placed to dry on a towel away from heat.
5. Leather gloves should be finger pressed and kneaded on the hands before they are thoroughly dry. Otherwise, they will become hard and discolored. Kneading brings back original shape and texture. They should then continue to dry on towel away from heat.
6. Wool gloves should be washed in cold water rather than lukewarm with cold-water soap.

Storage of gloves is also important to the long life.

*Long term storage in plastic bags dries out leather. Natural oils in leathers may rub off on other gloves, if stored together. Both leather and fabric gloves should be kept individually wrapped in white tissue paper.

TREE DELIVERY MARCH 2

The tree seedling farmers and others have ordered will be delivered to Scott County on March 2.

Delivery will be made to the Scott County Extension Center by the Missouri Conservation Commission Forestry Division.

There is still time for orders to be made. Each year after trees and multiflora rose seedlings arrive, we have people wanting to place orders.

If you desire any seedling order, please contact your Extension Center for an order.

PLANTING SHADE TREES

Home owners want to know the best time to set out shade trees around the home.

Deciduous or broadleafed trees can be transplanted at any time the soil conditions will permit, between the time the leaves drop in the fall and the new growth starts in the spring.

Evergreen trees and shrubs can be planted in the early fall . . . but these species usually survive and grow best if they are planted in the spring as soon as the danger of deep soil freezing is past, and before new growth starts.

CORN IN DAIRY RATION

There isn't a set limit of the amount of corn that can be used in a dairy ration. The amount that should be used depends upon several things.

If the roughage being fed is mostly high - quality legume roughage, then energy is the principle need and corn could very well supply all of the energy needed for most cows. Real high producing cows may require such a large amount of energy that it would be easier to keep them on feed if more than one kind of grain is included in the concentrate portion of the rations.

If protein is lacking in the roughage, then enough protein supplement will have to be added to the grain mix to be sure that the protein needs of the animal are adequately supplied.

At one time it was thought that the amount of corn in the ration should be limited to 60 percent or less. . . but with high energy rations in vogue now . . . larger and larger amounts of corn are being included in the dairy mix.

EGG OUTLOOK

Missouri farmers investigating different farming enterprises are asking if the long time egg outlook is favorable enough to consider entering the egg business.

The long time outlook for eggs appears to be one of declining prices. There will be further advancement in automation and new technology . . which will permit the producer to handle more birds and operate at a lower net return per bird. The average labor return will likely stay near 50 cents per bird.

The farmer will need to decide for himself if he wishes to enter the business on that sort of outlook.

DEMONSTRATIONS IN 4-H

Demonstrating is a method of teaching. It is an especially effective method of teaching how to do something.

4-H members learn how to demonstrate in their 4-H project work. As in other 4-H work they "learn by doing," simply by showing how to do something they can do, and telling how and why at the same time. While the demonstration will be of value to those watching, the real value of the demonstration is to the one who has prepared and presented it. Members who have given a few demonstrations find that:

1. They can speak with ease before groups of people.
2. They can put across ideas more easily, because they have learned to organize what they want to say.
3. They can tell other people of what they have learned in 4-H.
4. They have learned a great deal more about the chosen subject.

Teaching by the Demonstration method can be used by garden clubs, Home Extension Clubs, Sewing Clubs or any other educational groups. 4-H circular 100, entitled "Let's Demonstrate," provides information on how to plan, prepare and present a demonstration. This circular is available to you at the University Extension Center in Benton or Charleston.

Country Honors Abraham Lincoln

FEBRUARY 12, 1809, is a date recorded in the annals of history. Today, February 12, 1965, we pause to commemorate this date, the birth of the great American, Abraham Lincoln.

Story of the birth of Abraham Lincoln may seem trite and melodramatic to those individuals with shallow feelings of patriotism; but to those of us who treasure the freedom given to us in some measure by Mr. Lincoln, this date is as immortal as the man it represents.

Born in an humble log cabin in the wilderness of Kentucky, Abraham Lincoln made his way to the highest office in the land.

Lincoln and his words, in the time of this nation's greatest crisis, fly above and demand the respect and honor of every man.

Adamant in his stand for equality for all men of all races, Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves 103 years ago. Today, even after a century, there are those who will not abide by the spirit of the Emancipation Proclamation.

Greatness of a man never exceed the wisdom and kindness of this great American when, at the end of the War between the States, he called for "malice toward none" and "charity for all."

Abraham Lincoln, who would soon be asasinated by a madman, asked the people to "bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan--to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace."

As long as free men live in these United States of America, the name of Abraham Lincoln and the date of February 12 shall live.

Valentine Days Vary In Countries Abroad

VALENTINE DAY is very familiar throughout the world as a festival of romance and affection, candy and cards.

Celebration in the United States is widely known, but few people understand the celebrations in other countries on the holiday.

People in some areas of Italy hold a feast on February 14. In Sicily, some young ladies get up before sunrise on this special day, and they stand by their windows watching for a young man to pass. Each girl believes that the first man she sees will become her bridegroom within the year.

Pressed snowdrop flowers are sent to special friends on this holiday in Denmark. A joking letter is sometimes sent by the Danes. The sender writes a rhyme, but does not sign his name. He uses a code of dots representing the letters in his name.

Valentine Day comes on the feast day of two Christian martyrs, named Valentine. Customs of the holiday probably come from an ancient Roman festival, called Lupercalia.

This festival honored Juno, the Roman goddess of women and marriage, and Pan, the god of nature.

SUPT. LYNN TWITTY, Principal Harold F. Kiehne, and administrator Harold Vogel speak to the Parent-Teachers meeting on the need of occupational training classes in the Sikeston school system.

3 Administrators Discuss Occupational Training Topic

Occupational training and the new buildings to be constructed in relation to the program was the topic presented at the Parent-Teachers meeting Monday evening.

Principal Harold F. Kiehne, Supt., Lynn Twitty, and administrative assistant Harold Vogel discussed occupational and technical education in the Sikeston high school for the Parent-Teacher meeting Monday evening.

Mr. Twitty stated that there is a definite need for such education facilities in our secondary school system because of the fact that 60 per cent of the high school graduates do not continue their education.

These students have the willingness to work but lack the training that is essential. Mr. Twitty said it is the duty of the school system to offer such training to these students and prepare them for work.

Mr. Kiehne then discussed the type of program the Sikeston school system is adding.

Additions are being made to the three areas of occupational training already in existence.

Next year these training courses will be offered. Auto body and fender, auto mechanics, farm machinery, electronics, welding, refrigeration, design drafting, graphic arts.

Secretarial practice, office training, salesmanship, business management, bookkeeping, homemaking services, distributive education, and cooperative education, as well as adult classes.

Mr. Vogel then showed the plan for three new extentions to be built this summer.

One is to be added to "B" building and used for electronics. The other two will be separate buildings used for refrigeration and business education classes.

Mr. Vogel said this is "only a start for this community" and that soon many businesses will be looking to Sikeston for well-trained employees as well as a place for additional training for their own employees.

February 17 being the 68th anniversary of the founding of the PTA, Mrs. Ronald Lee presented a special Founder's Day program.

Alice McLellan Birney and Phoebe Apperson Hearst started the Parent- Teacher Association in 1897.

President Howard presented a slate of officers to be voted on for next year. New officers are Gene Nunnelee, president, Mrs. Harold Hill, vice - president; Mrs. DeWitt Zaricor, secretary; and Bill Huff, treasurer. These new officers will be installed at the April meeting.

Refreshments consisting of cookies and coffee were served by members of the Future Teachers of America after the meeting.

Crowns were made by seniors Carole Kimes and Jan Sibley. The crown had a deep wine colored silk exterior, decorated with white pearls.

Senior Mark Henry provided some of the evening's entertainment by singing folk songs to the group. Among the selections he performed were "Wayfaring Stranger," "Green Leaves of Summer," "Polly Vaughn," and "Santiago."

Theme for the dance was "Sweethearts," and the decorations followed this general topic. American Beauty red and pink crepe paper was decoratively draped throughout the cafetorium. Cut-outs of hearts and cupids were placed on the walls to complete the theme.

Refreshments coincided with the decorations. Pink Hawaiian punch and red and pink heart-shaped cookies were available. Cookies were provided by Nancy's Sweet Shop in Sikeston.

Six Barker staffers had stories reprinted in Missouri Teen, a state-wide newspaper for teenagers. Two news articles, two editorials, and three features were published.

Editorials by Jim Crenshaw and Pat Wood were reprinted. Jim's editorial dealt with lack of student interest in basketball and Sikeston's need for adequate basketball facilities.

Pat's editorial was a discussion of President Johnson's breaking the inaugural tradition of formal attire.

Features by Becky Turner, Clayton Vandivort, and Emily Twitty were published in the monthly newspaper. Girls' misconceptions of automobile nechanics was Becky's subject.

Neglect of school for outside activities was satirized in Emily's feature. Clayton's was an imaginary letter to Santa Claus, asking for specialized gifts for different academic subjects.

Sikeston Little Theatre's production of J. B. in which three seniors participated was reprinted. Article was written by Carol Miller.

Bulldog's state recognition and football record were the subjects of a news article written by Clayton Vandivort.

Rain and moisture have made roads muddy, and several students can verify this statement. Mike Couch, Robert Collins, Louis Farris, Richard Montgomery, and others can attest to the muddiness of the roads in the Sikeston vicinity.

Our valiant basketball Bulldogs made a real effort Friday night to beat the Dexter club, but their efforts were in vain as Dexter edged by with a "measly" two-point lead.

Independent study students have had some really challenging discussions lately. They have discussed everything from politics to the decadence in moral codes.

Folklores have been featured singers at a new coffee house in Cape Girardeau, called No Name. They have alternated with Ted Anderson, a traveling folk singer from the West Coast. Several of the students have been making trips to this place to fill their empty week ends.

Seniors have been scurrying around to trade pictures with all their freinds, enemies, and mere acquaintances, in an effort to preserve for posterity the remembrances of their classmates.

Some even make the supreme effort to write an endering term on the flip side so they will be remembered.

Harber Gives PTA Program Tuesday Night

Plans for teaching in elementary and junior high areas were discussed at the regular meeting of the Future Teachers of America last Tuesday evening.

Members who have been active for the past two quarters will be eligible to teach. Exact date for teaching has not yet been set, but it will be some time in April.

Students signed a list at the meeting, giving the area in which they wished to teach as well as the school and subject.

Deidre Harber presented the program, a discussion on papers that her mother's advanced reading class had written on the reason why President Johnson should or should not have attended Winston Churchill's funeral.

These papers had been written by second graders and their thoughts and ideas were quite interesting.

Sikeston Band Is Preparing For Contests.

Sikeston high school band, directed by Keith Collins, is now preparing for the state contest in Cape Girardeau this spring.

On March 8 the two divisions of the Sikeston musicians will compete between themselves to see which band will represent the city at the state contest.

Band directors from the surrounding area will compare the bands at that time and make the selection.

Practicing and sight reading various music, the bands have not definitely decided on their contest pieces. Regardless of the final selection, each band will play an identical piece and an additional one.

Several ensembles and soloists are also striving to be ready for the contest.

Underclassmen Prepare Schedules For '65-'66

Early in January, sophomores and juniors were issued enrollment cards in the various home rooms. Students then selected schedules and returned the cards to the counselors' office.

Since the students are filling out the forms this spring, schedules will not be changed in the fall when school begins.

Bracelets Refresh Memories

by Patricia Wood

One of the newer fads among the girls of Sikeston high school is charm bracelets. Reasons for beginning these collections of silver and gold memory trinkets are various.

When Girl Scout, Honor Society, Future Teachers of America, four different National Forensic League, and a Thespian pin are worn simultaneously the young lady looks as though she is "off to war."

But besides these "metals for courageous service" many have small trinkets commemorating different places they have visited. This is a clever idea, but some carry it too far.

A conversation on this point might go something like this--"Mary, I recognize the Eiffel Tower for the summer you spent in Paris, the Unisphere is for the World's Fiar, the Lincoln Monument is for Washington, D. C.; but what is the small circle with the P. K.?

"Oh, that! I picked that up when we drove through some small town in Kentucky."

Other small items include gilted gum wrapper, Coke cups, and theater tickets. Reasons for these items are obvious.

Another type of charm, becoming popular is that one inscribed with a date, including birthdays, anniversaries, national holidays, and school vacations.

In case the New York subway system noticed a sudden disappearance of tokens last year, they are in Sikeston. Reason for this is that about 18 Sikeston girls who visited New York City last summer absconded with at least two each for charm bracelets.

The Seasons

The sound of blowing snow is cold, I know.
Since first I felt its softness on my face,
I stood and watched that drifting lace
As it sparkled with the fallen snow.
The snow melts fast as winter goes,
And brings the warmness of spring rain
Falling hard against my pane,
And once again it's warm, I know.
The spring is welcomed, gone the cold
Joy's in the air, as flowers unfold.
Summer's come and brought the sun
To do the things spring left undone.
The seasons change but once again,
And fall shows all her glory then.

Country Honors Abraham Lincoln

FEBRUARY 12, 1809, is a date recorded in the annals of history. Today, February 12, 1965, we pause to commemorate this date, the birth of the great American, Abraham Lincoln.

Story of the birth of Abraham Lincoln may seem trite and melodramatic to those individuals with shallow feelings of patriotism; but to those of us who treasure the freedom given to us in some measure by Mr. Lincoln, this date is as immortal as the man it represents.

Born in an humble log cabin in the wilderness of Kentucky, Abraham Lincoln made his way to the highest office in the land.

Lincoln and his words, in the time of this nation's greatest crisis, fly above and demand the respect and honor of every man.

Adamant in his stand for equality for all men of all races, Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves 103 years ago. Today, even after a century, there are those who will not abide by the spirit of the Emancipation Proclamation.

Greatness of a man never exceed the wisdom and kindness of this great American when, at the end of the War between the States, he called for "malice toward none" and "charity for all."

Abraham Lincoln, who would soon be asasinated by a madman, asked the people to "bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan--to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace."

As long as free men live in these United States of America, the name of Abraham Lincoln and the date of February 12 shall live.

"Oh, that! I picked that up when we drove through some small town in Kentucky."

Other small items include gilted gum wrapper, Coke cups, and theater tickets. Reasons for these items are obvious.

Another type of charm, becoming popular is that one inscribed with a date, including birthdays, anniversaries, national holidays, and school vacations.

In case the New York subway system noticed a sudden disappearance of tokens last year, they are in Sikeston. Reason for this is that about 18 Sikeston girls who visited New York City last summer absconded with at least two each for charm bracelets.

The Seasons

The sound of blowing snow is cold, I know.
Since first I felt its softness on my face,
I stood and watched that drifting lace
As it sparkled with the fallen snow.
The snow melts fast as winter goes,
And brings the warmness of spring rain
Falling hard against my pane,
And once again it's warm, I know.
The spring is welcomed, gone the cold
Joy's in the air, as flowers unfold.
Summer's come and brought the sun
To do the things spring left undone.
The seasons change but once again,
And fall shows all her glory then.

Looking Back Over the Years

50 years ago
February 13, 1915

Last Friday the high school debating teams of Charleston and Sikeston debated the proposition of the enactment of a minimum wage law by the Missouri Legislature. The affirmative of the proposition was supported by Charleston and the negative by Sikeston, our representatives being Roger Bailey and Byron Bowman. The decision was unanimous in favor of Sikeston and it was a deserved victory, because it was a credit to defeat such a well coached team as Charleston.

Morehouse — Ed Griffin and Mrs. A. C. Whitener attended the Music Box Review in St. Louis this week.

Out of 565 homes visited in Sikeston so far in a church membership survey being made by lay leaders of the Methodist Church, only 117 show themselves to be non-church members.

A. F. Lindsay, Scott County representative to the Missouri Legislature, spent the weekend in Sikeston in the interest of his private business.

A. A. Ebert reports a considerable advance in the work of laying off a new addition in the northwestern part of town. Fifteen acres have been surveyed just north of the place owned by Grover Baker and has been marked off in 50 x 125 foot lots. Mr. Eberts expects to sell these for about $125 a piece on the small installment plan.

PRAYER
for Today From The Upper Room

Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. (Philippians 2:5)

PRAYER: Father we humbly thank Thee that, seeing us as we really are, Thou dost still forgive our transgressions — and empower us to righteousness. Give us wisdom to discern the difference between hating a person's sins and loving the sinner, for whom Christ died. In His name we ask. Amen.

A missionary deep in the jungle came upon a witch doctor who was pounding his drum furiously. "What gives?" asked the missionary with some trepidation. "We have no water," explained the witch doctor. "So you're praying for rain?" ventured the missionary. "Not at all," snapped the witch doctor. "I'm sending for the plumber."

Looking Back Over the Years

February 13, 1915

Last Friday the high school debating teams of Charleston and Sikeston debated the proposition of the enactment of a minimum wage law by the Missouri Legislature. The affirmative of the proposition was supported by Charleston and the negative by Sikeston, our representatives being Roger Bailey and Byron Bowman. The decision was unanimous in favor of Sikeston and it was a deserved victory, because it was a credit to defeat such a well coached team as Charleston.

Morehouse — Ed Griffin and Mrs. A. C. Whitener attended the Music Box Review in St. Louis this week.

Out of 565 homes visited in Sikeston so far in a church-membership survey being made by lay leaders of the Methodist Church, only 117 show themselves to be non-church members.

A. F. Lindsay, Scott County representative to the Missouri Legislature, spent the weekend in Sikeston in the interest of his private business.

A. A. Ebert reports a considerable advance in the work of laying off a new addition in the northwestern part of town. Fifteen acres have been surveyed just north of the place owned by Grover Baker and has been marked off in 50 x 125 foot lots. Mr. Eberts expects to sell these for about $125 a piece on the small installment plan.

PRAYER
for Today from The Upper Room

Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. (Philippians 2:5)

PRAYER: Father we humbly thank Thee that, seeing us as we really are, Thou dost still forgive our transgressions — and empower us to righteousness. Give us wisdom to discern the difference between hating a person's sins and loving the sinner, for whom Christ died. In His name we ask. Amen.

A missionary deep in the jungle came upon a witch doctor who was pounding his drum furiously. "What gives?" asked the missionary with some trepidation. "We have no water," explained the witch doctor. "So you're praying for rain?" ventured the missionary. "Not at all," snapped the witch doctor. "I'm sending for the plumber."

Mr. C. L. Blanton Jr., Editor
Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Mr. Blanton:

"An illuminating and astounding fact is that 25 per cent of all power generated in the United States comes from Uncle Sam."

According to the Federal Power Commission report 1962 (latest year available): The capacity of all Federal Power installations amounts to 12.7 per cent of electrical generating capacity in the United States. This is about half of the 25 per cent you reported. Private power companies 75.7 per cent.

Of the kilowatt-hours generated, private companies produced 76.4 per cent. Federal installations generated 13.6 per cent. This, too, is far from the 25 per cent.

All of the power generated by the Federal Government is sold wholesale or consumed by Federal defense agencies. A large percentage is sold wholesale to private companies who in turn resell at retail for a profit on which they collect and relay an amount for income tax.

The per cent of Federal power has for some years been consistently shrinking because of the curtailment of new installations while private companies have expanded. In 1957, the Federal share of electric power generated was 17.3 per cent (1962 — 12.7 per cent).

The Rural Electrification Administration does not have a single retail or wholesale customer for electricity. Rural electric cooperatives, which borrow their construction funds from REA, serve the thousands of farmers and rural residents you mention. The REC's are no more federally owned than Lone Star Steel Company which borrowed its money from the Federal Government (RFC). They are no more federally owned than is the Louisiana private power company which borrows 2 per cent money from REA. They are no more federally owned than the Capital City Telephone Company, Jefferson City, Missouri, whose subsidiary borrows 2 per cent money from REA — as do several hundred telephone companies and cooperatives.

If rural people are getting a break because of tax-subsidized electric service, then their city cousins would be interested to know that their electric service too is being subsidized at the expense of the tax payer. Private power company subsidies are in the form of accelerated depreciation and investment tax credits. The totals of these subsidies to private power exceeds the entire cumulative loans for rural electrification from start to present. The latter is being and will be repaid to the Federal Treasury with interest.

Mr. Donald Cook, president of American Electric Power Company, says that their interest only amounts to 2½ per cent in an article, May 1964, Fortune.

"Why sell more stock than you need to and pay out both dividends and taxes on them, when, by deducting your interest from taxable income, you can actually get borrowed money at about 2½ per cent?" Besides, the private power companies can and have borrowed 2 per cent money from REA.

Editorials, both pro and con, are the backbone of public opinion in depth. Private power companies, as well as electric cooperatives, must be able to stand the test of criticism and introspective evaluation by editors.

Are the co-ops any threat to the power companies? Is the comparison even in the same league?

	Co-ops	Power Co.
Generation	0.7%	76.4%
Customers	7.5%	79.0%
Average customers per mile-
Missouri	3.1	35.0
Revenue	4.9%	82.6%
Average revenue per mile
Missouri	$388.	$8,396.

If in your shop you had ten customers to every one your competitor had and each one of your ten paid you twice as much, I hope your advantage would not need the defending the private power companies require.

Sincerely,
John Davenport,
General Manager

If You Earned $600 A Year, File your Tax

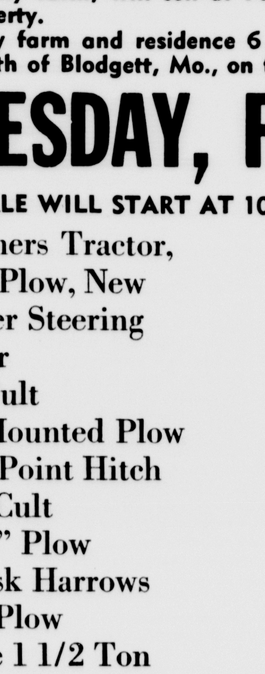

A Federal income tax return must be filed by every citizen or resident of the United States, including minor children, who had gross income of $600 or more in 1964, Mr. E. O. Bookwalter, Director of Internal Revenue for the St. Louis District, State of Missouri, reminded taxpayers today.

If a calendar year taxpayer's 65th birthday is on or before January 1, 1965, he is not required to file unless his gross income in 1964 was at least $1,200, Mr. Bookwalter said.

He added that even though a taxpayer does not have gross income of $600, he must file a return, if any income tax was withheld from his pay, in order to get a refund.

Self-employed persons such as businessmen, farmers, and most professional men must file a return if net earnings from self-employment were $400 or more.

Document 5107 which furnishes more detailed information on this subject is available in limited quantity upon request from the Internal Revenue Service.

Inflation Clouds Hover Over Sunny U.S. Economy

BY BRUCE BIOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

As the President and his economic advisers are pointing out, consumer prices have been held to an average annual increase of 1.2 per cent over the past four years.

No economists, partisan or otherwise, have been heard to dispute that this is just about as close to total stability as could be hoped for in an expansionary period like 1961-65.

Yet an annual rise of only a few additional tenths of a point could start an epidemic of jitters among government price specialists.

THOUGH THERE ISN'T ANY HANDY DEFINITION of how big a rise constitutes "inflation," all the alarm bells probably would ring if the increase shot past 2 per cent.

Last time that happened was in 1958, when the hike was 2.7 per cent. The year before, the rise was a clearly inflationary 3.3 per cent.

Even these boosts do not compare, however, with the great spiralings that occurred right after World War II and again at the outset of the Korean war.

In the first two postwar years, 1946-47, the consumer price level leaped upward 15.1 per cent. With very little breather in between, inflation took a 7 per cent toll in 1951, amidst the Korean war.

U. S ECONOMIC ACTIVITY in 1964 increased so strongly that at least one government price expert was surprised to see the anti-inflation line held so firmly.

But the factors which helped produce this successful price "containment" last year could very well work to the same end in 1965.

As the economic reports of the President and his advisers emphasize, demand is not really pushing hard against supply. The choice given the American consumer by today's immense variety of goods takes away some of the upthrust.

The Council of Economic Advisers says the country's gross national product in 1964 fell about $27 billion short of estimated potential. This gap, narrowed from $51 billion in 1961, is unmistakably an anti-inflation valve.

THE GOVERNMENT'S so-called guideposts—formulas intended to put limits on wage-price increases—are believed also to have been of some real benefit as informal restraints in union-management bargaining over new contracts.

If it were not for these and the other factors noted, the administration's price guardians might be far more than ordinarily concerned at the 1965 outlook. At least 134 wage agreements involving bargaining units of 5,000 workers or more each, affecting a total of some 1.5 million employes, are due to expire this year.

The big ones are in steel, aluminum, rubber, shipbuilding and aircraft manufacture. No one needs to be reminded the steel negotiations are most crucial of all.

As busy as the new bargaining year is, others have been busier and more fraught with inflationary peril. Nevertheless, optimism should not run beyond saying that President Johnson's eggs may not crack for another year.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

"An illuminating and astounding fact is that 25 per cent of all power generated in the United States comes from Uncle Sam."

According to the Federal Power Commission report 1962 (latest year available): The capacity of all Federal Power installations amounts to 12.7 per cent of electrical generating capacity in the United States. This is about half of the 25 per cent you reported. Private power companies 75.7 per cent.

Of the kilowatt-hours generated, private companies produced 76.4 per cent. Federal installations generated 13.6 per cent. This, too, is far from the 25 per cent.

All of the power generated by the Federal Government is sold wholesale or consumed by Federal defense agencies. A large percentage is sold wholesale to private companies who in turn resell at retail for a profit on which they collect and relay an amount for income tax.

The per cent of Federal power has for some years been consistently shrinking because of the curtailment of new installations while private companies have expanded. In 1957, the Federal share of electric power generated was 17.3 per cent (1962 — 12.7 per cent).

The Rural Electrification Administration does not have a single retail or wholesale customer for electricity. Rural electric cooperatives, which borrow their construction funds from REA, serve the thousands of farmers and rural residents you mention. The REC's are no more federally owned than Lone Star Steel Company which borrowed its money from the Federal Government (RFC). They are no more federally owned than is the Louisiana private power company which borrows 2 per cent money from REA. They are no more federally owned than the Capital City Telephone Company, Jefferson City, Missouri, whose subsidiary borrows 2 per cent money from REA — as do several hundred telephone companies and cooperatives.

If rural people are getting a break because of tax-subsidized electric service, then their city cousins would be interested to know that their electric service too is being subsidized at the expense of the tax payer. Private power company subsidies are in the form of accelerated depreciation and investment tax credits. The totals of these subsidies to private power exceeds the entire cumulative loans for rural electrification from start to present. The latter is being and will be repaid to the Federal Treasury with interest.

Mr. Donald Cook, president of American Electric Power Company, says that their interest only amounts to 2½ per cent in an article, May 1964, Fortune.

"Why sell more stock than you need to and pay out both dividends and taxes on them, when, by deducting your interest from taxable income, you can actually get borrowed money at about 2½ per cent?" Besides, the private power companies can and have borrowed 2 per cent money from REA.

Editorials, both pro and con, are the backbone of public opinion in depth. Private power companies, as well as electric cooperatives, must be able to stand the test of criticism and introspective evaluation by editors.

Are the co-ops any threat to the power companies? Is the comparison even in the same league?

	Co-ops	Power Co.
Generation	0.7%	76.4%
Customers	7.5%	79.0%
Average customers per mile-
Missouri	3.1	35.0
Revenue	4.9%	82.6%

If in your shop you had ten customers to every one your competitor had and each one of your ten paid you twice as much, I hope your advantage would not need the defending the private power companies require.

If You Earned $600 A Year, File your Tax

A Federal income tax return must be filed by every citizen or resident of the United States, including minor children, who had gross income of $600 or more in 1964, Mr. E. O. Bookwalter, Director of Internal Revenue for the St. Louis District, State of Missouri, reminded taxpayers today.

If a calendar year taxpayer's 65th birthday is on or before January 1, 1965, he is not required to file unless his gross income in 1964 was at least $1,200, Mr. Bookwalter said.
